KIDNAPED HEIR FREED; U.S. AGENTS HUNT ABDUCTORS

Numbers on Bills Paid in $200,000 Ransom for George Weyerhaeuser to Be Broadcast.

KARPIS GANG UNDER SUSPICION

Lad Tells of 8-Day Imprisonment — Says Uncle Turned Over Money — Captors Masked.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

TACOMA, Wash., June 1.—George Weyerhaeuser, 9 years old, kidnaped May 24, was released unharmed today by three of his reported six abductors near Issaquah, 25 miles from Tacoma, on payment of $200,000 ransom. He had been a captive eight days. Members of the Alvin Karpis gang are suspected of the kidnaping.

No sooner had he been placed in the arms of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Weyerhaeuser, in Tacoma, than Federal agents and state and local officers set out to seek his kidnapers. The authorities had relaxed their efforts during the boy's absence to insure his safe return.

A Pontiac sedan, sought as one of the cars used by the kidnapers, was found today abandoned near Seattle. The trunk at the back of the car contained air holes like those in the automobile trunk in which the boy said he was sometimes hidden.

George Weyerhaeuser said a tan car and a gray one were used by his abductors. Seattle police were directed to watch for a gray Buick sedan or a tan Hudson.

Numbers on Bills Recorded.

"Our long grind has just started," said J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation at Washington. No sooner had word of the boy's return reached Washington than Hoover ordered a search for the kidnapers.

The original ransom note notified the family not to copy the serial numbers of the bills paid, but it was learned in Washington that Federal operatives had a list. The list of serial numbers will be broadcast to banks, postoffices and other centers.

Anonymous Suspects.

The headquarters of the Washington State patrol was ordered by its Chief, William Cole, tonight to circularize descriptions of two men as "probable" suspects in the kidnaping. No names were mentioned. The patrol headquarters staff immediately distributed the descriptions to all authorities in major cities and all counties. The descriptions follow:

"1. Height, 5 feet 10 inches; weight 200 pounds; build, heavy. Slightly prominent stomach; hair, dark, either brown or black; age, about 39; complexion, medium.

"2. Height 5 feet 9 or 10 inches; weight 160 pounds; hair, brown; age, about 40; complexion, dark. May or may not be wearing short, cropped mustache. Probably wearing dark or brown checked suit. Both probably armed with blue steel automatics.

Says Uncle Paid Ransom.

George Weyerhaeuser said his uncle, F. Rodman Titcomb, had handed the ransom money to the kidnapers. From another source it was learned that after Titcomb paid the ransom, the kidnapers took his automobile, forcing him to walk several miles to his home.

He said there were six men in the kidnapers' gang. Three of them called each other "Harry, Bill and Allen or Alvin—that must have been Karpis—Alvin Karpis," he said.

"Harry" may be Harry Campbell, Lieutenant of Karpis and several Tacomans had reported seeing Volney Davis, another of the Karpis gang in the vicinity about the time of the kidnaping.

Walks Six Miles to Farm House.

"Your pa will pick you up," the kidnapers told the boy when they let him out of a car on a country road. They gave him a $1 bill and a blanket and instructed him to wait.

His father did not arrive, so the boy walked six miles until he came to a farmhouse about 4 a. m. John Bonifas, chicken rancher who has 10 children, opened the door.

"I'm the little boy who was kidnaped," said Weyerhaeuser.

Bonifas took the heir to a timber fortune in his old automobile and headed for Tacoma.

Irish O'Malley, in Jail As Luer Kidnaper, Admits Life of Crime Is "Dumb"

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 1.—The kidnaping of August Luer, the movies, the philosophy of the professional criminal, were discussed with urbane impersonality here today by "Irish" O'Malley, himself a frequent breaker of the law, as he awaited transfer from the Jackson County Jail to the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville, Ill.

"A miserable crime" was the way he characterized the kidnaping of the wealthy Alton (Ill.) banker and meat packer. With the air of expecting no one to believe what he said, he declared he had nothing to do with it, but expressed the opinion that Randol Eugene Norvell and Percy Michael Fitzgerald, now serving life terms for the abduction, would be ready to testify against him as State's witnesses.

"Not that it makes much difference," he said. "They have a lot against me here. You are aware of that," he added, turning to Sheriff Tom Bash of Jackson County, who worked with Agent E. E. Conroy and other Department of Justice agents in running O'Malley and others of his associates down in an apartment here last week-end, after a search of almost two years, beginning in July, 1933, when Luer was kidnaped.

Intensive Hunt For Him.

O'Malley, also known as Walter Holland, had become one of the most intensively hunted men in the Middle-West since his flight from Madison County and his subsequent participation in a dozen or more bank holdups in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. He was reminded by Sheriff Bash that he had not been inactive since he became a hunted man.

"Of course, you can understand that," the gangster replied, smiling faintly. "One must live."

O'Malley, who, by his own statement, received most of his education by reading while a convict in Chester (Ill.) Penitentiary, uses careful English, speaks in a dry, impersonal voice. He is 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighs about 150 pounds. His hazel eyes are large and alert, his brown hair stands belligerently, and his lower jaw juts prominently. He is 36 years old, and has been a criminal since young manhood.

"I am not going to indulge in abuse against Norvell and Fitzgerald for putting me in the kidnaping," he said, discussing the Luer abduction. "I had nothing to do with it. The abduction of an old man like that was a miserable crime and I have no sympathy with the men who did it. If I had been in it I would be ready to die for shame.

"Nothing Wrong in Stealing."

"As for stealing, I have never seen anything wrong with it, especially if the fellow you take the money from has plenty of it. I know that that viewpoint is wrong, that it is the attitude of the professional criminal, but I cannot help believing it. I suppose you might say I have a warped mind.

"Getting back to the kidnaping, I knew Fitzgerald only casually. I have no reason to believe he is anything but a nice fellow personally, although I believe he has a criminal record.

"As for Norvell, I knew him closely, to my regret. I am sorry that I did not know enough to cast in my lot with a decent thief. That is all I care to say about Randol."

"How did you leave Madison County after the kidnaping?" the correspondent asked.

How He Got Away.

"Let me see," he replied, with the air of a man whose movements have been too complicated to recall readily. "My recollection is that I—yes, I got away in a hot car."

"Did you take Gracie Chase (also under indictment and a fugitive) with you?"

"No," he answered, then smiling added, "of course that is the only answer you may expect to that question."

"Ever come back through Madison County, ever visit the house of—?" Naming a Madison County resident.

Gracie Chase Still Sought.

Department of Justice agents are still on the trail of Gracie Chase, also known as Vivian Adams, who is known to be a close associate of O'Malley. In his conversation at the jail O'Malley revealed that after his arrest he had "tried to make a deal" for her, under which she would surrender with the promise of a short term in the Luer case. It was refused.

"Anyhow," the prisoner continued, ironically, "I still have a friend in the great outdoors. Maybe I'll need her help when I try to hire a lawyer, because I have only $19.30 to my name."

While serving the prison term for

BOY DROWNED WHEN HOME-MADE RAFT TIPS

William Schwartz of East St. Louis Is Victim; Companion Saved by Other Lads.

William Schwartz, 14 years old, of East St. Louis was drowned in Cahokia Creek near Trendley avenue at 5:30 p. m. yesterday when a home-made raft tipped, plunging him and a playmate into 10 feet of water.

His companion, Eugene Carr, 13 years old, 1028 Piggott avenue, struck out for shore, became exhausted and was rescued by two Negro boys who had launched a skiff when they saw him struggling. Swollen by recent rains, the creek has overflowed its western bank, covering lowlands.

"We'd built the raft out of boards and gasoline cans wired on for floats," Eugene related, "and while we were paddling along Willie wanted to get a big floating can. When he started to pull it in the corner of the raft sank and the cans filled with water. Then we went down. I looked back while I was swimming to shore about 100 yards away, and saw Willie treading water but thought he was just cutting up.

"I knew he could swim, but he had all his clothes on and heavy boots, too. I was beginning to give out when two colored fellows came in a boat and I told them to get Willie first but they pulled me in instead."

William, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schwartz, 1133 Market street, was to have been graduated in about two weeks from the eighth grade of St. Peter's Lutheran Church School. There are three older brothers in the Schwartz family.

East St. Louis firemen, using grappling hooks, recovered the body two hours later.

SOFT COAL STRIKE IS TENTATIVELY SET FOR JUNE 17

450,000 United Mine Workers Ordered to Walk Out Then Unless Otherwise Notified.

GUFFEY BILL WOULD STOP IT, LEWIS SAYS

Union Leaders Demand New NRA — Secretary Perkins Calls Conference Tuesday on State Action.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1. — The United Mine Workers of America today ordered 450,000 soft coal miners to quit work June 17, unless otherwise notified. The order was issued as Secretary of Labor Perkins sought to restore some of the industrial practices Federal enforcement of which was rendered impossible by the Supreme Court's NRA decision. She asked representatives of the Northeastern industrial states to meet in Washington next Tuesday to consider uniform State legislation to maintain some code industrial standards.

Minimum wages, maximum hours, child labor and night work are some of the fields the conference will canvass. Compacts adopted by the conference would be submitted to State Legislatures for ratification or rejection. Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Maine, Vermont, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania were asked to send representatives.

The Union strike order counseled the miners to obey the law and not to disturb the public peace, but directed all except maintenance men "to refrain from entering the mines."

Says Guffey Bill Is Remedy.

John L. Lewis, Union president, said the enactment of the Guffey coal stabilization bill, to create a "little NRA" for the industry, would stop the strike.

Operators favoring the bill completed the amendments they say are necessary. Charles O'Neil, Central Pennsylvania mine owner, submitted them today to the Union. If satisfactory to the miners, they will be introduced in the Senate by Senator Guffey (Dem.), Pennsylvania.

The operators' amendments would remove the provisions of the original bill for Federal purchase of marginal coal lands and production allocation. They also would revise the method of determining coal prices, and—the operators say—make the measure constitutional in the light of the Supreme Court's decision wiping out NRA codes.

F. L. Greever of Tazewell, Va., general counsel for Appalachian Coals, Inc., said: "It seems clear that the Guffey bill and the Wagner bill would be condemned by the Supreme Court upon the grounds and for the reasons given in condemning the Recovery Act, and that those bills under this decision are as clearly unconstitutional as is the Recovery Act."

Demand for New NRA.

American Federation of Labor leaders continue to insist that a new NRA must be created immediately. While they would not permit themselves to be quoted, several labor leaders expressed the opinion that a new NRA should be enacted, even if it were found unconstitutional. The year consumed in testing the new law, they said, might see recovery sufficiently advanced and labor well enough organized with the aid of the Wagner labor disputes bill to make a law of doubtful constitutionality well worth while.

The mine workers attribute the threatened strike to the collapse of the soft coal code's price provisions this spring. Even though wages in most of the industry were much increased by the code, many companies made money for the first time in years during the first 18 months of operation under the code. But while negotiations for new wage and hour contracts between the producers and the union dragged through several months this spring at a slow pace, the price structure rapidly went to pieces.

Many operators declined to continue present wages and hours for another year. They had offered one-year contracts with a $5 basic daily wage in the North and a 35-hour week. The union had demanded a $5.50 day and a 30-hour week.

Some coal men here regard the strike threat as a "big stick" wielded by supporters of the Guffey bill to try to compel its enactment. The Southern operators opposing the measure voted against abandoning wage negotiations with the union, and even offered to make separate agreements for their mines.

ROOSEVELT PRESS TALK VIEWED AS 1936 OPENING GUN

SOME SAY DISCOURSE WAS 'TRIAL BALLOON'

G. O. P. and Many Democrats Likely to Oppose Enlargement of Constitutional Authority.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 1. — The lines of the 1936 campaign are set if President Roosevelt intends to take to the people his interpretation of the far-reaching consequences of the Supreme Court's decision in the NRA case, which his statements yesterday permit the people to believe.

The historic press conference, at which for almost an hour and a half the President discoursed on the Court's unanimous decision holding that the Federal Government had no constitutional authority to regulate intrastate business, is accepted in political circles as the biggest "trial balloon" launched in modern times.

What action the Roosevelt administration will take is still undisclosed, although the White House indicated today that the President would likely reject all proposals for temporary legislation for rebuilding some of the razed code structure.

The political action to the Roosevelt dissent from the Court's decision was immediate. It indicated that if he takes the issue of Federal control of economic and social problems to the people in the form of a constitutional amendment to give Congress the affirmative right to regulate commerce and industry or by an amendment to limit the power of the Supreme Court over acts of Congress, the 1936 political campaign, despite the President's declaration that the issue was nonpartisan, would find most of the Republicans against such a change and man conservative, state rights Democrats joining them. President Roosevelt told the reporters that his plans did not necessarily include constitutional amendment but the general gravity of his remarks and his observation that the reform he had in mind might take from five to 10 years, indicated that some such permanent alteration had been considered.

La Follette Plank Recalled.

It will be recalled that in 1924 the elder La Follette campaigned for a constitutional amendment giving Congress the right to reenact legislation by a two-thirds majority after the Supreme Court had held the original act unconstitutional. This plank in the Progressive platform was the target of much bitter criticism and many political observers believed that it cut down the number of La Follette votes. Times have changed since 1924. For example, organized labor has changed many of its long held opinions as to the desirability of Federal solution of social and economic problems. However, conservative Republicans and Democrats have likewise voiced sharp criticism of the President's vague plans for giving Congress and the Executive power similar to the NRA and the AAA over what the President called national problems.

The President, in his press conference, emphasized and re-emphasized that the United States was the only civilized country in the world without power to deal with these national problems. The implications of the court's decision, he argued, were that the solution of these problems must be relegated to the 48 states, and that the decision had put the country back "to the horse and buggy days" of last century.

Procedure a Mystery.

Among the mysteries in Washington is why the President used a press conference to start his campaign—if there is to be a campaign—for a fundamental change in the American governmental system. The obvious, but not necessarily the real, explanation is that the President did not want his exact words to become public property and this explanation was given substance when the White House refused to give out the stenographic transcript of the conference, although the White House has a rule that such transcripts are only for White House use.

Reporters were forced to rely on

PRESIDENT ON WEEK-END CRUISE ON CHESAPEAKE BAY

Leaves Annapolis on Yacht Sequoia With White House Attaches and Friends.

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 1.—President Roosevelt rode the calm waters of Chesapeake Bay tonight, resting aboard the yacht Sequoia with White House attaches and friends.

He sailed from the naval academy dock shortly after noon and planned to return here by dusk tomorrow. Seated on the after deck of the yacht, he chatted with Admiral David Sellers, academy superintendent, and other officers before leaving for his week-end of relaxation. He asked particularly to be informed by radio of the outcome of the Army-Navy lacrosse game.

The President drove to the Maryland capital from Washington. He was accompanied by Capt. Ross McIntire, White House physician, Mrs. McIntire, Miss Marguerite Lehand, secretary, and Hamilton Robb, an old friend.

HOUSE LEADERS OPPOSE INCREASE IN TAX RATES

Bill Expected to Make Temporary Nuisance Levies Permanent; Measure to Be Rushed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—A definite decision against any increase in tax rates was disclosed today by Congressional leaders as they outlined a plan to put a tax bill on the statute books within 30 days.

They indicated, however, that the forthcoming bill would make permanent, instead of extending for one year, the present "temporary nuisance" taxes which expire within the next month and which will produce about $400,000,000 in the financial year ending June 30.

One tax leader who discussed the situation was Representative Samuel B. Hill of Washington, ranking Democrat on the House Ways and Means Committee. He said: "I don't think we are going out to look for any new sources of revenue. Nor do I think it will be necessary to make any changes in the existing tax rates."

The projected bill must be rushed, because unless it is enacted by June 30, half a dozen big money-producing taxes will expire.

TEXT OF STATEMENT ON DISMISSAL OF NRA COURT CASES

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.

THE White House statement announcing President Roosevelt's approval of the dismissal of 411 NRA court cases:

"The Attorney-General has recommended and the President has approved the dismissal of 411 cases as a result of the Supreme Court's decision in the Schechter case. All of these cases related to the enforcement of code or similar requirements relating to violations of fair trade practices on the part of individual businesses or to failure to live up to minimum wage or hour standards.

"Had it not been for the grounds stated by the Supreme Court in the Schechter case findings, these cases would have been pressed by the Government in order to obtain effective enforcement of the wage standards and fair trade practices set up as the intention of the National Recovery Act.

"There are, of course, a large number of additional cases in every state in which actual court action has not yet been initiated. These also, because of the Schechter case decision, must necessarily be dropped.

RESIGNATION OF MACDONALD AND HIS CABINET EXPECTED

Stanley Baldwin, Conservative Leader, Said to Be Scheduled For New Prime Minister.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 1.—Well informed political quarters said tonight the resignations of Premier Ramsay MacDonald and his entire Cabinet would be handed to King George next Friday when Parliament rises for the Whitsuntide recess.

It is expected that Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, will be summoned immediately to kiss the King's hand as the new Prime Minister.

Names of Baldwin's Cabinet colleagues may not be revealed officially until they walk into the Commons to take the ministerial bench when Parliament resumes June 17.

A. F. L. LEADERS FOR AMENDMENT

Senate Republicans Demand Some NRA Bill Be Passed—Further Sounding of Reaction to Court Decision.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Apparently throwing off the last vestige of restraint imposed by NRA's now dead wage-hour and fair trade practice provisions, President Roosevelt today dismissed 411 court cases involving violations of Blue Eagle rules.

This wholesale action, coupled with an announcement that other legal actions which had been contemplated would not be initiated, followed closely the dropping of hints in quarters close to the White House that the President would propose no stop-gap NRA legislation. And if any permanent plan was ready for submission, congressional leaders, at least, lacked any inkling of it.

Mr. Roosevelt cruised on Chesapeake Bay aboard the Yacht Sequoia tonight while the Capital pondered without answer the course the Administration will take. The most uniform speculation of observers was that further sounding of the Nation's reaction to the overthrow of NRA would precede any definite action.

Labor Cases Thrown Out.

Labor and other cases that made history were formally thrown out by the White House announcement. This action constituted Mr. Roosevelt's approval of a recommendation by Attorney-General Cummings.

Involved were nearly 20 labor cases, including the Houde "majority rule" action, the Firestone and Goodrich labor election cases, and the Weirton Steel and Greif clothing company cases involving company unions.

Others, both initiated by and against the Government, concerned actions taken by the Alcohol Control and Petroleum administrations, the National Steel Labor Relations Board, the AAA and Textile Labor Board.

Announcement of the President's approval of Attorney-General Cummings' recommendation that the cases be dropped came at the White House after Mr. Roosevelt had left for his cruise on the Chesapeake.

The dismissals generally were interpreted in Washington as not only a final release on business formerly regulated by the NRA, but a confession that no hope remained for pressing such actions following the Supreme Court's sweeping decision.

The Attorney General, in an attached letter to the President, reported that "it seems futile to proceed."

White House Statement.

The White House statement said the cases were dropped as a result of the Supreme Court's decision in the Schechter case.

"All of these cases related to the enforcement of code or similar requirements relating to violations of fair trade practices on the part of individual business or to failure to live up to minimum wage or hour standards," it added.

"Had it not been for the grounds stated by the Supreme Court in the Schechter case findings, these cases would have been pressed by the Government in order to obtain effective enforcement of the wage

INDIA EARTHQUAKE VICTIMS BURIED OR BURNED AT ONCE

Little or No Effort at Identification as Authorities at Quetta Express Fear of Epidemic.

RELIEF TRAINS AND AIRPLANES ARRIVING

Danger of Food and Water Shortage — Martial Law Prevails — Dead Estimated to Total 30,000.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

QUETTA, India, June 2 (Sunday) —Fires in the ruins left here by earthquakes, with a loss of life estimated at 30,000, burned themselves out today. Several thousand persons were injured.

Doctors, nurses and medical equipment are on their way here by airplanes as the authorities fear an outbreak of cholera. Most of the survivors spent another night under the open sky, refusing to occupy shelters erected by soldiers. There is danger of a shortage of water and food.

Floods threaten to increase the total of dead and injured.

Though martial law has been established in the whole striken area, fears were expressed that mountain tribesmen might loot Quetta.

Water gushed from fissures in the earth opened by three great shocks about 3 a. m. Friday, laying waste Quetta and its vicinity, and some places in the outskirts of the city were flooded several feet deep.

Soldiers and relief workers were burning or burying bodies as fast as they were found. Little or no effort to identify the dead has been made. Troops took 3000 bodies from the ruins yesterday.

Fear also is voiced that there may be a food and water shortage despite the fact that trains have left Karachi with these necessities, as well as doctors, nurses and medical supplies. The first train arrived today with 60 doctors. Planes from Lahore have landed relief workers and supplies.

An official report to Karachi, which places the British dead at 200 and declares it "impossible to give even the approximate Indian casualties," says the town of Kalat and the Miri Palace, residence of the Khan of Kalat, are leveled.

The Khan and his family are safe in Quetta, but Indian casualties include the Nawab Sir Shams Shah and five assistant commissioners.

A number of European children escaped death in the Catholic Convent, which, despite the virtually total destruction here, was not damaged. All the children and nuns were saved.

hurriedly scribbled notes taken in a crowded, unquiet room while the President spoke deliberately to about 200 persons. Had he expressed his views in a radio broadcast he would have reached several million listeners and his exact words would have been available for study. A message to Congress would have been a state paper and likewise available for analysis.

When reporters asked him to elaborate on some points, the President replied that it would be better to let the big issues sink in. Thus, he gave the impression that he was setting the state for some undisclosed dramatic gesture.

Should this mysterious second act be a striking call to arms such as Theodore Roosevelt sounded in 1912 for a new nationalism, there is certain to be strong opposition to Mr. Roosevelt's plans, both in the presidential and the congressional campaigns. Already such Southern Democrats as Senator Smith of South Carolina have taken the position that "I am for the 48 states."

Advisers Taken by Surprise.

The Roosevelt forces were hopeful that the Supreme Court would enlarge the jurisdiction of Congress by broadening the definition of interstate commerce, thereby permitting what the President has called an evolutionary progress toward national social and economic reform.

The administration was prepared for an adverse decision from the Supreme Court on the unconstitutional delegation of legislative powers to the executive and was ready to remedy the situation by new legislation. The legal advisers were taken by surprise at the court's emphatic ruling on interstate and intrastate commerce. The conference yesterday indicated that there was no remedy for that part of the decision except a fundamental change in the present Federal system. The President said that the issue must be met. If he stands by his political guns, and no stop-gap legislation is attempted the battle field will be the entire United States and contests will be fought out in every congressional district of the country.

standards and fair trade practices set up as the intention of the National Recovery Act."

Letter to Code Authority.

Stressing further the abandonment of the code structure, NRA meanwhile dispatched letters to either the chairman or secretary of every code authority, informing them that their agencies "no longer have any official status or official existence." The word "official" was underlined in each letter.

Speaking of the status of the code authorities, the letter added that "their past actions, taken in good faith under an innocent misconception concerning the validity of the law, leave certain legal questions of relationship and responsibility which must be adjusted."

"We think you should rely upon guidance of private legal counsel in this connection," it added.

The letter suggested that there be no further disbursement of code authority funds except on advice of counsel, and that on the same advice "an orderly and equitable plan for the liquidation of funds on hand" should be worked out.

Halt on Building Contracts.

A temporary halt was ordered by the Treasury tonight in the letting of public building contracts under its supervision. The NRA Supreme Court decision was given as the cause. Officials said several million dollars worth of new contracts for postoffices and other construction would be held up pending a final decision on the terms of future contracts.

Existing contracts require contractors to abide by codes governing the various industries. Until the Department reaches a final decision, officials said these contracts, made prior to the Court ruling, would be allowed to stand. Some doubt was expressed, however, as to the legality of these agreements. But, in view of the administration's expressed wish that codes be observed voluntarily, some thought builders would be asked by the Treasury to follow NRA contract terms.

No Definite Decision.

As the turmoil over the destruction of NRA shaped up today, it was indicated that no definite decision has yet been made by the Administration on what course to follow. There were indications that strong legislation designed, if possible, to save parts of NRA was being sought by Donald Richberg and others.

While Democratic Congressional chiefs appeared almost completely in the dark, except for word that Mr. Roosevelt probably would frown on any temporary plan to re-enact NRA in part, Republican spokesmen in the Senate demanded that some NRA bill be passed immediately.

Additional hint that no rush action was contemplated by the Administration, however, came in the quiet circulation of word among party leaders at the Capitol that Mr. Roosevelt will demand that Congress stay in session until December if necessary to complete his legislative program.

Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which assailed the New Deal at its convention, said in its fortnightly review of business affairs "business will carry on as usual," although the Supreme Court decision had "injected a measure of confusion and uncertainty in the business world." It added signs already indicate business executives were readjusting their affairs "to meet new conditions."

Federal Alcohol Control Administration officials are drafting a new plan for liquor control to replace defunct codes. Officials said they hoped to have it ready for the President's consideration early next week. The House Ways and Means Committee also is to give the subject study next week.

A search for amendments to strengthen the Farm Adjustment Act also was continued over the week-end by AAA officials, despite announcement by Senator Smith (Dem.), South Carolina, chairman, that the Senate Agriculture Committee would eliminate authority to license processors and handlers of farm products.

NRA Drive by A. F. L.

A drive for immediate revival of NRA, meanwhile, was begun today by the American Federation of Labor, leaders of which expressed sentiment for a constitutional amendment to authorize Federal control of industry.

Although out of town, Senator Long (Dem.), Louisiana, issued a statement through his office today, saying the Supreme Court had "saved this nation from Fascism." He said: "The Supreme Court does not forget that there is a constitution written in times of stress to save the institutions of America."

Sill contending his Senate approved 30-hour work week bill would be constitutional, despite the Supreme Court's NRA decision, Senator Black (Dem.), Alabama, said: "Any constitutional amendment has a long weary road ahead of it. We have the powers under the present Constitution to regulate wages and hours, but not under codes. It could be done either through my bill or by a national corporation law."

Senator McNary's Views.

In demanding swift passage of some voluntary industrial regulatory measure to replace NRA, Senate Republican spokesmen predicted "keen and bitter strife" if an attempt were made to amend the Constitution to provide Federal control of the Nation's economic and social structures regardless of State lines.

"Let's not get gun-shy of the Constitution because of this one case," said Senator McNary of Oregon, the minority floor leader. "Everyone has suffered from the shell shock of the Supreme Court's decision, of course, but we ought to do something of a voluntary nature."

Interpreting President Roosevelt's press conference statement and Democratic talk of an all-summer Congressional session as part of a plan to build up popular sentiment for a constitutional amendment, McNary and other Republicans saw a tough political scrap ahead for 1936.

Vandenberg's Attitude.

While McNary would not attempt to say what the Republican attitude would be if the President made constitutional revision the prime issue, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, who has been mentioned as a candidate for the Republican nomination, said:

"The President set the stakes for the 1936 campaign yesterday. He is not simply asking for Federal control but for nationalization. If under any other flag but ours that would be Fascism or Communism. It isn't the length but the direction of the step. What he asked for yesterday was not merely for America to decide whether one section of the Constitution is inadequate, but whether we should tear up the old conception and embrace the new. That inevitably is the 1936 campaign issue."

Vandenberg held the "issue joins itself—have we reached an impasse in economic development so that the traditions and experience of 140 years have ceased to be reliable? I don't believe they have. To say we have to abandon all the root sources of American progress is beyond my conception at the moment."

Terming the President's statement that the Supreme Court decision had sent America back to the "horse and buggy" age as a "gross and malignant exaggeration," Vandenberg declared that, if the simile were justified, "the Democratic platform of 1932 was a horse and buggy platform."

If the administration were "driven to the necessity of letting business alone, the Senator said, "the issue will have been settled" before the next campaign. "Business will settle the question itself," he added.

Voluntary Code System.

Vandenberg favored a voluntary co-operative code system subject to the approval of the Federal Trade Commission "which would provide an industry with a presumption that it hadn't violated the anti-trust laws but not a complete alibi.

"I wouldn't leave it entirely to business," he said.

McNary suggested the new NRA be somewhat along the lines of the Capper-Volstead farm co-operative act under which farmers combine for co-operative purposes so long as they do not "unreasonably elevate prices."

Where prices do get out of control, he said, the Secretary of Agriculture could suggest a change and the whole matter could be appealed to the courts. McNary said if something along this pattern were "adapted to industry within the limits of the Constitution, it will be helpful and could be done without any great delay."

Senator Steiwer of Oregon agreed it was better to amend the Constitution than to "gradually usurp" its powers, but said whether such an amendment would be the outstanding issue next year depended on its nature. He added: "If it is proposed to make Washington into a Moscow, then it will be an issue of outstanding importance."

President Sends Sympathy to King

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—President Roosevelt sent the following message of sympathy today to King George of Great Britain: "I am distressed by reports of the disaster in Baluchistan resulting in so much suffering and in the loss of so many lives. The American people join with me in extending deepest sympathy to your Majesty and to the people of India." Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, retired, chairman of the American Red Cross, announced $5000 had been sent to earthquake sufferers in India.

Shell Maintains Wage Rates.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1. — An agreement with all production and manufacturing workers maintaining present standards of wage rates was signed today by the Shell Oil Company, J. N. Davis, spokesman for the workers, announced. He said the pact protects about 2800 men. It provides a maximum 8-hour day and limits work to 72 hours for any two weeks period. Fruit Industries, Ltd., wine producer, will maintain code standards of competition and labor conditions, it telegraphed President Roosevelt.

FLOW OF GOLD FROM FRANCE IS DIMINISHED

New Coalition Cabinet Under Fernand Bouisson Goes to Work; Franc Rises.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 1.—The franc rose in value today as Fernand Bouisson, new Premier, and his newly-formed coalition cabinet started work. The outflow of gold diminished.

A last minute shift put Joseph Caillaux, former Premier and reputed financial expert, in the finance post. This displeased some financial quarters which said they regarded Caillaux, who is 72, as too old and too fond of his own ideas.

Caillaux gave up the post of Minister of State without portfolio to replace Maurice Palmade, who withdrew from the Government lineup, as Finance Minister. Other Ministers of State are former Premier Edouard Herriot, Louis Marin and Marshal Henri Petain.

In another change of plans, Bouisson gave the agriculture portfolio to Paul Jacquier, Minister of Labor in the fallen government of Pierre-Etienne Flandin. The place was assigned to Henri Roy at first.

The 60-year-old Bouisson will take his ministry before the Chamber of Deputies, which he headed when Lebrun called him to the premiership, Monday. It is expected the Deputies will grant him immediately the financial dictatorship they denied Flandin, forcing his resignation.

Police raided today the offices of the Nationalistic organization numbering 300,000 members, Solidarite Francais, and confiscated all copies of its newspaper which urged mass protests against the new Government.

The official Cabinet list follows: Premier and Minister of the Interior, Bouisson; Ministers of State, Louis Marin, Edouard Herriot, Marshal Pilippe Petain; Foreign Affairs, Pierre Laval; Finance, Joseph Caillaux; Commerce, Laurent Eynac; War, Gen. Louis Felix Maurin; Navy, Francois Peitri; Air, Gen. Victor Denain; Justice, Georges Penot; Labor, Louis Frossard; Pensions, Camille Perfetti; Colonies, Louis Rollin; Communication, George Mandel; Public Works, Joseph Paganon; Merchant Marine, William Bertrand; Agriculture, Paul Jacquier; Education, Mario Roustan; Health, Ernest Lafont, and Under-Secretary to the Premier, Pierre Cathala.

BONUS COMPROMISE PROPOSED

Patman Bill Supporters Outline Bill With Discount Provision.

WASHINGTON, June 1. — Cash bonus forces in Congress started working on a compromise today after a recheck of sentiment showed they could not force the Patman inflationary measure through oven President Roosevelt's opposition.

Senator Thomas (Dem.), Oklahoma, announced he would call a conference of Patman bill supporters for Tuesday to consider a proposal by which veterans could cash their adjusted service certificates at a slight discount from full face value. It would provide for dating the certificates back to the war, thus moving their maturity date forward so that the present value would approach the full face amount now due in 1945. Thomas said the bill he would offer would permit the President to pay the bonus either through the issue of new currency or from bonds, or by using both methods.

the operator, refused to admit him because it was against the rules. She said he would have to wait until the opening time, 7 a. m. At Renton, the boy used the $1 bill the kidnapers had given him to buy gasoline for Bonifas.

Bonifas stopped next at a roadside filling station. He called the Weyerhaeuser home but got no answer. Finally he called the Tacoma police.

John Dreher, a Seattle reporter, hearing of the boy's release drove out in a taxicab and met Bonifas with the boy wrapped in the blanket the kidnapers had left with him.

Bonifas turned the boy over to Dreher, who drove him directly to the home of his parents.

Boy's Story of Kidnaping.

"How did they kidnap you?" Dreher asked the boy.

"I walked down through the tennis grounds (after leaving school to go home for luncheon about noon May 24) you know—the Tacoma Lawn Tennis Club, and I came out there on that path, and you know where the steps go up and you come out on the street?" George Weyerhaeuser replied. "Well, there was a tan sedan standing there. A man was driving, and another—the man they afterwards called Alvin—was standing on the curb. He said, 'Say'—I don't know which he called me, 'son' or 'boy,'—'where is Stadium Way?'

"I told him I didn't know and he came over toward me and said I was 'a shy fellow.' He grabbed me and put his hand over my mouth and pulled me into the tan sedan.

"Then he put me down in the back and covered me with this blanket that you are sitting on. It certainly is dirty, isn't it? And then we drove and drove and drove.

"I don't know where we went to, but they told me I wouldn't be hurt if I didn't yell out. I didn't want to be hurt, so I kept my mouth shut."

Forced Into Trunk.

He said occasionally he was put into the trunk at the back of the Buick but got along all right because there were holes in it to let in air.

"They only hurt me once," he said. "That was when one of them, in the car, lifted me, grabbing me under the arm. I said: 'Say, don't you hurt me!' And what do you think he said? He said: 'Young man, you're too valuable to hurt.' I think there was another car coming. It was something about another car with policemen in it; they were excited.

"Too Valuable to Hurt."

"We stopped one night near a river and one of the men took me up in the blanket, took me out of the trunk and carried me toward the river. I said: "Say, Mister, you're not going to throw me in the river and drown me, are you?' "

"What did they say?"

"About the same thing they said when they hurt my arm: 'You're too valuable to be hurt.'

"They always kept telling me they were going to turn me back to my father."

His captors shackled him once in a while to keep him from running away, the boy said, "but the chains didn't hurt."

He said he thought the kidnapers kept him in a house about a mile and a half from Issaquah. He could not describe the house. He said he was blindfolded when led into it and again when led out early today. He did not know how far his captors traveled in an automobile after leaving the house today before he was released.

The kidnapers made him sign his name three times—once on the envelope that contained the first ransom note, once on the bottom of a blank paper, and once on "the ransom note." His reference to his signature on "the ransom note" was not immediately clarified. The first note had his signature on the envelope. There were reports, however, the family had received a second message. This may have borne his signature.

Abductors Masked.

The boy said he never saw more than three of his abductors and they wore masks. He said they told him there were six in the gang. "They looked funny in their masks and I laughed at them at first," the boy said.

"They called one another Bill, Harry and Allen," he said.

"Allen?" Dreher interrupted. "Are you sure of that?"

"Oh, no; that must have been Karpis—Alvin Karpis. I remember now that sounds more like it—Alvin."

"What do you know about Karpis?" Dreher asked. "Why, hadn't I told you about that?" the boy asked. "They let me read all the newspapers about myself. I couldn't read everything, of course, but I could read all the big lines at the top of the paper."

"And you remembered the name of Karpis?"

"Yes, that wasn't hard to remember, only I didn't hear them call him Karpis; you know they always called him what sounded like Allen. But it must have been Alvin."

"They always gave me all I could eat. I ate the same things they did and they liked good things. Yes, sir, they treated me fine."

The boy said he spent four days and three nights in the house near Issaquah. He said his abductors kept him in a closet by putting against the door a mattress on which one of the gang slept.

Dreher and the boy reached the Weyerhaeuser grounds shortly before 8 o'clock.

Statement by Family.

Following is a statement, signed with the names of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Weyerhaeuser, read to reporters at the Weyerhaeuser home by H. M. Balcom, Seattle insurance man, and spokesman for the family.

"George was returned Saturday, June 1, about 8 a. m.

"First report of his safety came in a telephone call to Tacoma police from Issaquah. He was brought direct to the house. George was frightened and nervously upset and unable to answer questions clearly.

"The terrible ordeal he had gone through has brought him back a badly shaken little boy. We request that further details regarding his frightful experience be withheld from publication to reduce any bad effects on his future life.

"We are overjoyed that George is back and that awful suspense is over. We are very grateful for the many expressions of sympathy and offers of help."

Friends Helped Raise Ransom.

In a later statement Mr. and Mrs. Weyerhaeuser said: "In response to many inquiries we wish to state that the ransom demand was finally met through the assistance of friends. George is safe and apparently well. No further statements with reference to the matter will be made by the family or any member of the household. Since we must assume this attitude in furtherance of justice, we ask that this be accepted as a final statement. The wonderful support and sympathetic interest which has been expressed in so many ways is deeply appreciated."

Following its issuance, the boy was taken to the lawn of his home. He posed smilingly for pictures, but was not permitted by agents of the Department of Justice to say anything.

The family did not tell when or how the ransom of $200,000 was paid. Only in two previous kidnapings has so large a sum been collected—in that of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man, and of Edward G. Bremer of St. Paul. The Karpis gang kidnaped Bremer and collected $200,000 ransom for his release.

The kidnaping law of Washington State provides a death penalty, even though the victim is returned unharmed. A Federal statute makes the death penalty mandatory should the victim be harmed and provides a life sentence if the victim is not injured. A jury decides whether harm has been done.

DROWNING VICTIM

WILLIAM SCHWARTZ

4 FREED IN KILLING OF FEDERAL AGENT

Sheriff Among Those Acquitted for Shooting at Post, Tex., Feb. 7.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LUBBOCK, Tex., June 1.—A jury in Federal District Court late today found Sheriff W. F. Cato of Garza County and three co-defendants not guilty of murder in connection with the killing of Spencer Stafford, Federal narcotic agent, at Post, Tex., Feb. 7, last.

Besides Cato, those freed are Tom Morgan, a farmer; L. W. Kitchen, a veterinarian, and Dr. V. A. Hartman. Hartman was freed on an instructed verdict.

Cato killed Stafford with a machine gun as the men stood in front of Kitchen's office at Post. The Government said Stafford was killed to cover up an alleged narcotic ring.

Counsel for defense based their plea for acquittal on the grounds that Cato fired in self-defense and without knowing that Stafford was a Federal officer.

DEATH TOLL OF 55 FROM FLOOD AND WIND IN 6 STATES

Total in Nebraska Is 19—Colorado, Kansas, Wyoming, Texas and Missouri Report 36.

CASUALTY LISTS GROWING HOURLY

Republican River Ravages Valley in McCook (Neb.) Area — Fatalities There May Reach 250.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

McCOOK, Neb., June 1.—Flood waters, tornado debris and broken communications left in doubt the fate of many residents of the Republican River Valley of Southwestern Nebraska tonight. Dr. J. M. Willis, a leader in relief work here, estimated the number of dead might reach 250 in the devastated area. An early count placed the dead at 19.

In the McCook area approximately 25 persons were missing and officials gave up hope for 10 families lost in the flood. No bodies have been recovered from floodwaters, although late today they were receding. At Oxford, 28 were missing. Unconfirmed reports told of dead and missing at many other towns and villages, including six deaths at Alma.

News that two entire villages—Max and Parks, with a total population of 150 persons—had been washed away was confirmed at Burlington Railroad headquarters here. From Parks came official word that eight persons were killed and 23 were missing. No casualty reports came from Max. A minister at Trenton said 18 persons were killed there but he could give no names or details.

Death List.

The death list in Nebraska included: Tornado deaths, Mrs. John Schmid, about 30 years old, seven miles south of Curtis; Mrs. Franz Zamber, 32, near McCook; Delbert Zamber, 11 months, a son, near McCook; Franz Zamber Jr., 3, also a son, near McCook; Paule Rohde, 18 months, near Miller. Flood deaths: Frank Greenleaf, about 50, Franklin; O. T. Murtha, Trenton; Glen Anderson of Holdrege, Oxford; eight dead at Parks, but no names available.

At Oxford one of the oldest and one of the youngest residents was saved from death. At dawn a group along the bank of the Republican River heard a voice from the water. They spied their neighbor, Charles Clarine, 70-year-old farmer, clinging to the top branches of a tree 150 yards from shore. Two men launched a frail tin-bottomed rowboat and dragged Clarine to safety. They rescued three more refugees.

Near Miller, the Will Rhode family was in their kitchen farm house when the tornado struck. An 18 months' old daughter was killed when the house collapsed. From beneath the debris came a wail and rescuers uncovered another daughter, 3 weeks old. She was unharmed.

There was water everywhere but very little to drink. The reason was a lack of power for operation of the water pumping stations.

Nebraska Valley Inundated.

With candles and kerosene lamps relief crews searched the valley of the Republican River in Nebraska as the torrents dwindled. Twisted rails, driftwood barricades on highways, bridge and road washouts and absence of telephone and telegraph service made progress slow.

Utility plants and communication lines were washed out by the churning waters, houses and buildings, trees, livestock and moveable objects were swept away in the worst flood in Nebraska's history. The water receded slowly tonight in Southwestern Nebraska but residents of Furnas, Harlan, Franklin Webster and Nuckolls couties continued to fight crest waters. Late this afternoon, the flood reached Red Cloud, sweeping great amounts of debris before it. It was expected to reach Kansas tonight.

In South McCook, houses and building were washed from foundations. The Pastime Amusement Park was demolished, but the business section of the city escaped heavy damage.

National Guardsmen took boats into the inundated valley. About 300 guardsmen were pressed into service.

At 2:45 p. m. today the waters poured into Navale, and lowland dwellers at Red Cloud evacuated, although it was believed the city itself would escape the ravages of the flood.

40 Flood Deaths Reported in Five Other States

DENVER, June 1.—The flood death toll was set at 36 persons tonight in Colorado, Wyoming, Texas, Kansas and Missouri. More than 40 are missing and property and crop damage estimates ranged upward from a conservative $5,000,000.

At least 24 persons were dead in Colorado and Wyoming. Texas had seven, Kansas four and Missouri one.

In places the flood situation, created by month-long rains, grew worse hourly. One body was recovered, three other persons were believed drowned and 15 were missing in Cheyenne County, Kan., and across the state line in northeastern Colorado. That sector was covered by swollen waters of the Republican river which devastated South Central Nebraska.

Ottawa, Kan., received weather bureau warnings to be ready for a severe flood, with the Marais des Cygne river rising rapidly.

Rescue workers who succeeded in reaching D'Hanis, Tex., 45 miles west of San Antonio, found that four children were drowned in floods there yesterday. The community's 250 residents were homeless. More than 50 houses were demolished.

Other rescue workers hurried southeast from Denver to Elbert and Kiowa, where at least seven persons drowned. At Elbert, a community of 250, there were 60 homeless persons. Many families took refuge in churches. Most of the business section was wrecked.

Officials at Colorado Springs listed the flood damage within the city at $1,215,000. Pueblo counted its damages at more than $1,000,000. El Paso County, Colorado, authorities estimated damages of at least $1,000,000.

Damages in Texas from flood and wind damage were placed in excess of $2,500,000.

NIGHT VIEW FROM THE PLAZA....Of Illuminated Advertising Signs

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

FAILURE of the Board of Aldermen to pass an ordinance sponsored by the Municipal Art Commission and civic bodies, which would have given the city control of the surroundings of parks and plazas, has made it possible for this group of advertising signs to be placed along the western edge of Memorial Plaza. The picture was made at dusk from Thirteenth street, south of Pine street. On the left is Municipal Auditorium. Next to it may be discerned the back of the sign of a plumbing supply house, next to a water tank. Then, on opposite corners at Fifteenth and Market streets, are an advertisement for beer and one for whisky. Adjoining is a used car sign. Below the Union Station tower a beer sign is painted on a wall. Beneath the outline of St. John's Basilica is a row of placards in the interest of a bank, a gasoline and a rye bread. At Fifteenth and Pine streets is the billboard of a midtown hotel. The structures in the central foreground are two old houses, one remodeled and one untouched, which have been placed on the plaza temporarily to promote the better housing movement..

ASKS ROOSEVELT TO CALL CONFERENCE OF GOVERNORS

North Dakota Acting Executive Wants Plans for ":Continuing Reconstruction."

BISMARCK, N. D., June 1.—Acting Governor Walter Welford of North Dakota tonight sent a telegram to President Roosevelt saying, "overwhelming vote of North Dakota farmers indorsing continuance of the wheat allotment processing tariff, together with Supreme Court decision nullifying NRA and Frazier-Lemke moratorium, prompts me to suggest that you call a conference of Governors to meet at Chicago at once and work out plans for continuing reconstruction activities.

"It is my belief that serious thought must be given to rights of the States and to preserve the integrity of their borders and on all matters within the State as contemplated under the original Constitution, yet continuance of emergency necessitates exercise of nominal control to prevent the crowding out of smaller interest and to provide constructive farm programs.

"The emergency in farm districts continues serious and will so continue for a considerable time and is made more discouraging by continuous decline of grain values in the State and rising industrial goods costs. x x x This section seriously alarmed as to the results to be expected from developing conditions."

IRISH O'MALLEY ADMITS LIFE OF CRIME IS "DUMB"

burglary at Chester from 1922 to 1929, O'Malley said, he had educated himself by reading daily from books in the prison library.

Dickens, Dumas and Hugo.

"You could scarcely say I have an education," he said. "I did not finish grammar school. But I grew to like books, especially those of Dickens, Dumas and Victor Hugo. I think I liked Les Miserables best of all.

"By the way, Les Miserables made a splendid movie. I was a bit disappointed when I heard Fredric March was cast as Valjean. My choice would have been Charles Laughton, because March is not the husky man that Valjean was. But March was great in the part."

"After you got out of the penitentiary did you decide to go straight?"

"Yes, I did, but not for the reason that some men do. It was a matter of utility with me. I knew that if I got into crime I would be caught again, and I didn't want to go back to prison. As it was, I went right on breaking the law. I went in for bootlegging. That was a laugh. It didn't occur to me, until it was too late, that I was back at the same old game again."

"A Miserable Life."

"Did you feel at ease while you were being hunted after the Luer kidnaping?" the Sheriff asked.

"Hardly," was the impersonal reply. "It's really a miserable life—always on the watch, always uneasy."

"But you did keep pretty well out of the way," the Sheriff suggested. "You showed you were cunning, and resourceful and smart."

The prisoner shook his head and thrust his hand into the pocket of his blue-and-white jail overalls.

"I hardly think so," he said bitterly. "I would say that I was dumb, terribly dumb, or I would have been on the other side, with the law. I may have been smarter than some of the men you were hunting, but that is small praise."

"We Got Careless."

"How did you happen to walk into that trap that had been set for you Monday in the apartment at 2500 Independent boulevard?"

The hoodlum looked out the window as though thinking, and lit a cigarette.

"I suppose we get careless," he said reflectively. "When I stepped up to the door and a man with a machine-gun answered it, I didn't know quite what to think. It was dark inside but presently I was able to see other men in there. I had a pistol, but I knew I could never make it to the car outside without being sawed down. I can't run more than 10 feet anyhow, because I have a leaky heart valve. There was nothing to do but give up. I knew that the Government men had me where they wanted me."

Leo La Rue His New Name.

Since he had been a fugitive, O'Malley has adopted the name "Leo La Rue."

"Sounds like the name of a burlesque queen," someone remarked. O'Malley grinned. "It is a bit florid, isn't it?" he agreed. "I took it because it sort of jumped into my head and it was easy to remember."

After he had dressed, he was escorted into Sheriff Bash's office, where Madison County officers waited to take him back to Edwardsville. He chatted easily with them, was finally told to stand up.

He winced almost imperceptibly when his arms were secured behind his back at the elbows with a heavy chain, but was impassive as Sheriff Bash fixed the handcuffs on his wrists, and the leg irons on his ankles. Laboriously, because of the manacles, he put on his hat and with a farewell grin shuffled off down the hall, his leg-irons clanking. Behind him walked Agent Conroy, Sheriff Bash and the Madison County officers who had come for him.

Officers Arrive at Edwardsville With O'Malley.

O'Malley and the officers arrived in Edwardsville about 8 o'clock last night. The gangster was immediately taken to the Madison County Jail and placed in a cell.

Sheriff Henry of Madison County, one of the three officers who rode in the same automobile with O'Malley, said the trip from Kansas City was uneventful and that O'Malley did not discuss the Luer kidnaping and talked very little about anything else.

ELECTROCUTED FOR MURDER

Cleveland (O.) Man Put to Death for Killing Woman.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., June 1.—Peter Treadway, 38 years old, Cleveland filling station attendant, was put to death in the electric chair at the Ohio penitentiary tonight for the murder of Mrs. Ruth Steese, welfare worker.

Treadway was convicted of shooting Mrs. Steese as she sat in her parked car a short time after she had withdrawn money from a bank for the Society for the Blind.

500 SHACKS IN HOOVERVILLE INUNDATED BY HIGH WATER

Riverfront Dwellers Given Temporary Quarters by City Relief Administration.

Rising water in the Mississippi, resulting from recent rains over a large area have inundated a number of low places in and near St. Louis, including most of Hooverville, the squatter colony on the levee south of Municipal Bridge. The St. Louis Relief Administration has provided trucks to take the effects of dwellers there to rooming houses where temporary quarters will be given them.

Population of the colony probably exceeded 1000. It was estimated that 500 shacks were partly submerged and a dozen or more entirely. Few were not affected. The railroads were moving freight cars from nearby tracks in fear of a further rise. Much refuse and a number of dead chickens and dogs were floating in the swollen stream.

Stage of the river here at 7 a. m. yesterday was 27.3 feet, or 2.7 feet below official flood level. The Weather Bureau predicted a stage of 28.8 feet by tomorrow, with the likelihood of a higher mark if more rain fell. A crest between 23 and 24 feet at Alton, where flood stage is 21 feet, was expected today. The high water has slowed the progress of Federal Barge Line boats bound upstream.

The Missouri River below Kansas City has gone out of banks at many places. At St. Charles yesterday the gauge was 29.3 feet, or 4.3 feet above flood point. Much low land in St. Louis and St. Charles Counties was flooded. The lower Illinois River was at or near flood stages.

MANY IRISH DERBY TICKETS HELD IN U. S.

St. Louisan, Giving Name as "Never Lucky," Assured of $2247.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, June 1.—American ticket buyers swept through the fifteenth Irish Sweepstakes Derby draw today, capturing 386 of 880 tickets drawn on 80 horses for assured prize money of £176,668 (about $869,000).

With England's new anti-lottery law striking at the sweepstakes, the drawing was the smallest since the first one on the Manchester Handicap in November, 1930.

The prize fund was £1,160,900, which was divided of 11 units of £100,000 each and 10 residual prizes of £6090.

The United States not only took 43.86 per cent of the tickets, each worth the guaranteed amount of £454 11 shillings, but also gobbled up almost half of the tickets on the five favorites, Hairan, Bahram, Sea Bequest, Theft and Field Trial.

Americans got 25 of 55 tickets on the favorites, including seven out of 11 on Bahram, the big horse in the Derby to be run next Wednesday on Epsom Downs.

One St. Louisan, who used the name "Never Lucky" and gave an address at a brewery, drew a ticket on a horse. By drawing on Conspirator he was assured of about $2247, even if the horse does not run.

Irish nurses drew today's tickets from the "daddy drum" of the sweeps. This was the original drum which turned out the first fortunes and which, held in reserve, was pressed into service after fire destroyed the Plaza where all recent drawings have been held. Today's drawing was held in the round room of the Mansion House, scene of the first two drawings. The drawing will be completed Tuesday.

RELIGIOUS FANATIC HAS SELF NAILED TO CROSS

Contradicting First Story, He Admits, to Rewin Wife, He Had Son Do It.

By the Associated Press.

HIGH POINT, N. C., June 1.—R. J. Riggs, 36-year-old filling station operator, was found nailed to a cross near here early today and officers, terming him a "religious fanatic," quoted him as saying he had his young son "crucify" him in hope of regaining his estranged wife's affections.

Riggs was found nailed through the flesh between thumbs and index fingers of each hand and through the flesh of his heels to a crude wooden cross which lay by the roadside near his filling station. He was taken to a hospital where his injuries were reported as painful but not serious.

He first told a story of three men having broken into his home with the cry "You've been so good we're going to nail you to a cross," but, Solicitor Johnson said, that under question he confessed he had Donald Riggs, his 15-year-old son by a former wife, spike him to the crossed boards with ten-penny nails.

Made the Cross.

"He admitted he made the cross himself, got the nails and everything," Johnson said.

The Solicitor described Riggs as a "religious fanatic" and said the man once had gone to the home of his wife's parents, thrown himself on the floor and prayed for her to see the "light' and return to him.

The son will be turned over to juvenile authorities when his apprehended, the Solicitor said, although Riggs asked that the boy not be prosecuted. The officer said Riggs admitted forcing his son to execute his wishes and told them the boy left for Jacksonville, N. C., hitch-hiking his way.

A neighbor found Riggs early this morning and called for police.

Two policemen removed the nails from Riggs' feet and hands. They also removed a wire that had been fastened about his neck and tied to the upright of the cross. Riggs was clothed only in his underwear.

His First Story.

Riggs in his first story said three men threw a towel over his face, took him outside and nailed him to the cross. He quoted them as saying: "We're going to help you with your religion."

After the nailing, he said, they commented, "that's good. We've got him on the cross." It was several hours, the Solicitor said, before Riggs said the whole business was engineered by himself.

Riggs estimated he was on the cross, hands and feet spiked down, for two hours. He said he had his son nail him to the crossed boards about 3 a. m. It was about 5 o'clock when the neighbor found him.

Solicitor Johnson said Riggs finally broke down under long questioning and made the statement that he himself was instigator of the affair.

"I'm telling you this," the solicitor quoted Riggs as saying, "because I don't want you running around looking for somebody who is innocent. I'm the guilty party and I did it to win back my wife's love."

TRIES SUICIDE USING BLACK WIDOW SPIDER

Wanderer's Recovery From Insect's Bite Doubtful; Note Tells of Reaction.

By the Associated Press.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 1.—A fantastic method of self-destruction apparently was succeeding at City Hospital tonight, where Stephen Liarsky, 26-year-old wanderer, lay unconscious with the poison virus of a black widow spider, he had imported from California, coursing through his veins. Physicians said they knew of no way to combat the poison.

In a glass container in the hospital laboratory was the spider. The insect is large-bodied, with eight long legs. There are small pincers at the head and it is entirely black except for a red dot in the middle.

The story was told in notes, letters and postal cards found in the man's room. That indicating suicide read:

"To whom it may concern: Whenever a man usually takes his life it is always proper to give the reason. My reason is because, first—I have no job. I have no one in this world except a woman I love terribly, and she is too good for me. I am ashamed of myself because I am a failure and not a success. God bless Rose. Good-by."

After Poison Took Effect.

Another note described his sensations. It read:

"I feel the effects now. The room is going around and around. I can barely see what I am writing. Maybe it is the end. Who knows? I don't care. It is very pleasant. Yes. No."

That note ended in a scrawl which was difficult to decipher.

The black widow was found beside Liarsky's bed in a perforated cardboard box, together with a postal card bearing the printed information that the insect's bite was deadly, that there was no known cure. The card also advised Liarsky that for $5 he might purchase a larger black widow and a small one. The card was signed "R. W. Thorp," and bore a Los Angeles postmark.

Box Was Forwarded.

Other postmarks indicated the spider was first sent to Keene, N. H., where Liarsky had been living before his last visit to Worcester, and forwarded to him here a letter signed "James Betzes" of Keene, advised Liarsky: "I am sending you a letter and a box which came from California. I don't know whether I will ever see you again or not but don't forget to send the belt and holster for my revolver."

Another postcard, dated more than a month ago, found in his room read:

"Dear Hon—I am off tomorrow and I want to see you very much. I know you are working at Kellogg's a restaurant across the street) but I cannot see you. Rose."

Police said they believed they knew who "Rose" was.

When in Worcester he always rented a room from Mrs. Nellie Jasmire, and it was she who found him unconscious in his bed today and called the police. On his arrival his name was placed on the danger list and physicians tonight said his condition was "very poor."

MARSHAL HELD FOR MURDER OF TWO BROTHERS

Henry Schwent in Jail After Kin of Victims Gets Warrant in Killings at Flat River, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FARMINGTON, Mo., June 1.—Henry Schwent, new City Marshal of Flat River, who shot and killed Arch and Jewell Faulkner, brothers, when he fired a revolver for the first time in his life during a fight with them last Tuesday, was charged with murder in a warrant issued today by Prosecuting Attorney T. A. Mathews of St. Francois County.

Arrested at his home by Deputy Constable Joe Tinsley of Randolph Township, Schwent was held in jail without bond pending a preliminary hearing next Saturday before Justice of the Peace John Vance at Elvins.

The warrant was based on the affidavit of Emmett Faulkner of Farmington, one of three surviving brothers. An open verdict was returned by a Coroner's jury at Flat River Tuesday night.

Self-Defense, Marshal Says.

Schwent, who became Marshal only six weeks ago contended he fired in self-defense after he had been attacked by the brothers who had laid a trap for him by hiding a revolver in the rear of the National Hotel and seeking his aid in finding it.

Witnesses at the inquest testified that the brothers, both miners, had been drinking and that Schwent attempted to induce them to leave the streets when their conduct became boisterous and disorderly. Schwent said Jewell agreed to take Arch home, but soon returned and asked that he help them find a revolver which Arch thought he had lost in the weeds.

After reaching a point not visible from the main street, Schwent asserted, the men attacked him, striking him in the jaw so hard he was knocked from his feet, and kicking him. Retreating, he said, he warned them to advance no further and fired only after Arch had called to Jewell to "get that gun and kill him." A revolver, identified as Arch's, was found in the weeds after the shooting.

Schwent fired only two shots. Each of the brothers was shot through the heart.

Lenient With Youths.

Three weeks before, Schwent had dealt leniently with three youths who had been drinking and who had cursed and defied him. Some twitted him for being "soft."

Another of the Faulkner brothers, Clyde, was killed with a shotgun at a country dance in St. Genevieve County three years ago. Clarence Harris, exonerated of implication in the killing, was wounded by Arch, who fired a small shotgun at him six months ago. Arch was not prosecuted.

Last Tuesday's killing has been the subject of much controversy in Flat River. Although Schwent has received frequent criticism, Mayor W. C. Huff, head of the city administration, elected last month and which appointed the Marshal, has stated he would support him in his contention that he fired only in an extremity in line of duty.

2700 METAL WORKERS VOTE TO END STRIKE AT CANTON, O.

Committee of Workers Demands That Mayor Give Them Protection From Pickets.

CANTON, O., June 1.—Employes of the United Alloy Co., and the Stark Rolling Mills voted 2723 to 164 to return to work today despite a strike which precipitated three days of violence earlier in the week. A committee headed by Carl Lappin, who announced the vote, presented a demand to Mayor A. R. Turnbull for protection from strike pickets.

The election was conducted by Mayor A. R. Turnbull in the city auditorium at the insistence of Lappin's committee and 150 workers who visited the city hall Thursday.

Pickets of the unions in the two plants, rank and file units of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel & Tin Workers, marched around the auditorium carrying banners and exhorting workers not to vote. Employes of the Berger Manufacturing Co., another subsidiary of the Republic Steel Corporation, where the strike started last Monday, did not participate in the election.

TWO ST. LOUIS OPERA STARS SIGNED BY METROPOLITAN

Elda Vettori and Marion Telva Receive Contracts for Next Season, From New Director.

Elda Vettori and Marion Telva, St. Louis stars of the New York Metropolitan Opera have received contracts for the coming season from the new director Edward Johnson.

Miss Vettori now at the home of her mother Mrs. Josephine Vettori, 4936 Berthold avenue, said last evening that the arrangements for her tenth season with the Metropolitan were completed several days ago. In re-engaging her, Manager Johnson disregarded the decision of his predecessor, the late Herbert Witherspoon, who had assigned no roles for the coming season to Miss Vettori or any of several other noted stars of past seasons.

Among the operas in which she will appear are "Tosca," "La Gioconda," "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Turandot."

Miss Telva, now Mrs. Elmer Ray Jones of New York, is the daughter of Mrs. Elsa Taucke of 4111 Louisiana avenue. Mrs. Taucke said she had been informed by her daughter of the signing of a new contract. Miss Telva left the operatic stage after her marriage in 1929, but has returned under a contract stipulating that she is to sing only roles which she has previously sung with the Metropolitan.

JAMES M. BECK SAYS PEOPLE KILLED NRA

Calls Court Decision 'Funeral Oration'; Thinks Any Revival Would Defy Law.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—James M. Beck, former Republican representative from Pennsylvania and active in constitutional controversies, declared tonight that any attempt to revive NRA "would precipitate a constitutional crisis more grave than any since the Civil War."

Beck said in a statement that "no competent lawyer" could doubt that if NRA was unconstitutional other "extra-constitutional bureaus" of the administration such as the AAA and TVA were in like status.

"The Supreme Court did not kill the NRA," Beck said. 'That bureaucratic monstrosity had been morbund for many months. It had been killed, not by the Constitution or the Supreme Court, but by the individualistic spirit of the American people, who were unwilling to be regimented by an arrogant and tyrannical bureaucracy. The Supreme Court in its fateful decision simply did the double office of pronouncing the funeral oration and interring the corpse.

NRA Revival Futile.

"All attempts to revive the NRA will prove futile, for 'all the king's horses and all the king's men can never put Humpty Dumpty together again.'

"What is not so generally recognized is that attempts by the administration to revive this and other alphabetical monstrosities will precipitate a constitutional crisis, more grave than any since the Civil War.

"Unless the administration now conforms its present and future policie sto the Constitution, as now authoritatively interpreted by the Supreme Court, the fateful issue will inevitably arise whether the administration can deliberately violate a constitution, which the President took a solemn oath to support and defend.

False Counselors Still Guide.

"No competent lawyer can question that if the NRA is unconstitutional, the major policies and objectives of the AAA and the TVA and other extra-constitutional bureaus are equally unconstitutional. Under these circumstances, what will the administration do? If it persists in its attempts to regiment the American people, it can make no further pretense that it is not deliberatetly violating the fundamental law . . .

"Unhappily, the President is apparently still guided by the false counselors, who have led him into this morass. His Attorney-General could give him better advice than Felix Frankfurter and Gen. Johnson, who still dream of a Mussolini type of government for America. If the President follows their advice to revive the NRA in a different form, he will amaze his best friends."

SNOW, NOT SO CLOUDY ON MARS

Astronomer's Early August Weather Report for Planet.

By the Associated Press.

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., June 1. — E. C. Slipher, astronomer at Lowell Observatory here, reported today he presence of patches of new snow in the vicinity of the North Polar Cap of Mars—the first time in the 30 years he has studied the planet that snow has formed in the Northern hemisphere at this season. "Patches of a glistening substance which looks exactly like ice caps have been noted on recent nights," Slipher said, "although the season there is early August."

Mars, recognized by most astronomers as a comparatively inert planet, has been "cutting up" in another respect, Slipher reported, in that its cloudiness has diminished during the summer months after being unusually heavy during the spring.

AUTHOR OF 'WHO'S LOONEY NOW?' DIES

John A. Chaloner, Wealthy Scion of Distinguished Ancestry Succumbs at 72.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., June 1. — John Armstrong Chaloner, wealthy master of Merrie Mills, in Albemarle County, died in the University Hospital here near midnight after an illness of many months.

Chaloner won attention in litigation with his former wife, now Princess Amelie Troubetskoy, and with his famous question, "Who's Looney Now?" during a controversy with his brother over his mental status. He changed his name from Chanler to Chaloner because of quarrels with other members of the family.

None of his relatives was at his bedside when he died early today. They had thought his condition was much better.

Nationally known because of his long court battles to regain control of his extensive properties after he had been adjudged insane and committed to the Bloomingdale Asylum by a New York court in 1897, Mr. Chaloner was particularly known for a telegraphic query, "Who's Looney Now?" The telegram was sent to his brother, Robert Armstrong (Sheriff Bob) Chanler, after the latter had fallen into marital difficulties with his wife.

Chaloner won his fortune back and proceeded to work for liberalization of the lunacy laws.

Chaloner's other brothers were Lewis Stuyvestan Chanler, former Lieutenant-Governor of New York; William Astor Chanler, who won distinction in the Spanish-American War, went to Congress as a Tammanyite and made a name as an African explorer, and Winthrop Astor Chanler. His sisters were Mrs. John Jay Chapman, Mrs. Richard Aldrich and Mrs. Temple Emmett.

Each of these eight brothers and sisters inherited wealth, Chaloner's share being estimated at $4,000,000 when in 1897 his brothers Lewis and Winthrop and Arthur A. Carey, a cousin, joined in having him committed to the Bloomingdale asylum at White Plains, N. Y. They testified he was incapable of managing his own affairs.

Robert Chanler had married Lina Cavalieri, a Metropolitan Opera diva, and when she obtained a Paris divorce in December, 1911, it was disclosed that her husband had mortgaged New York real estate for $200,000 to meet the expenses and settlement of the case. It was then John Chaloner sent his famous telegram.

HOT ON THE TRAIL OF TIRE KILLERS THIS RELENTLESS SLEUTH RAN DOWN THE UNVARNISHED TRUTH ABOUT G3

What happened when Inspector Faurot — who pioneered fingerprinting and the Bertillon system in America — used man-hunting methods to "get the goods" on a famous tire — as told by reporter who shadowed him from coast to coast

Over and over Faurot's reports

PROVED

"G-3" All-Weather tread delivers more than 43% longer non-skid mileage!

— because of the broader road contact of a flatter, wider All-Weather tread — because of the slow, even wear of closer-nested non-skid blocks and ribs

— because of more rubber in the tread — an average of two pounds more per tire

AND MORE SAFETY because of the greater road grip of more non-skid blocks in the center of that famous tread!

(EDITORIAL NOTE: Every advertiser naturally believes he has a good product. But his unsupported testimony is likely to be somewhat biased, and readers of advertising have a right to be skeptical of boastful superlatives and unsupported claims. Recognizing this difficulty, we introduced our "G-3" All-Weather Tire last year by letting the test-fleet records speak for themselves. And again this year, we have sought some method of giving our readers an accurate report of the service which this tire is giving the public, by hiring a detective to gather the evidence presented here. Then, to make doubly sure of an outsider's viewpoint, we assigned a veteran newspaper reporter to the job of giving you an eyewitness account of how the facts were gathered.)

by JAMES CANNON
Former Ace Reporter, New York Journal

Maybe you think tire-hunting doesn't sound exciting. Maybe you think "mileage shadowing" isn't news. But you've never "trailed" Fingerprint Faurot.

How that man goes after his evidence! Running down clues that took us bouncing over the back roads of Georgia — prowling the parking lots of Chicago's west side — blinking our way through the twilight of a New Mexico dust storm!

It wasn't one trail, but thousands we were following — the trails of the most famous tire in the world — on the wheels of cars driven by salesmen, doctors, farmers, lumbermen, cattlemen, and the radio squad cars of state police.

Day after day, week after week, he pieced his scraps of information together—built up his life histories of those "G-3" All-Weathers—checked their brilliant performance — piled up impartial evidence of their extra miles of safety—with the same deadly accuracy that won him number one place in the detective force of Greater New York.

No wonder Goodyear picked Joseph A. Faurot to ferret out the facts about its famous "G-3" All-Weather and report how this tire has been behaving, how on owners' cars it has lived up to its test-fleet reputation for giving 43% longer non-skid mileage.

How that man goes after evidence! Joseph A. Faurot, famous sleuth and Chief of the Department of Identification, Commercial Crime Commission, investigating "G-3" records

How it all began

You have to go back a year to get the start of this story. This new Goodyear "G-3" had just been introduced — after brutal punishment on the test fleet.

Perhaps you remember how the engineers made granite grindstones — ground down treads in laboratory tests — until they developed one that bore the job number "G-3".

Then they put this tire out on the road — told the test-fleet drivers to give it the works — "Speed up to 50 — jam on the brakes — speed up to 50 — jam on the brakes" — in a hurry-up test of its non-skid mileage and safety.

To make a long story short, that "G-3" All-Weather stood up as no tire had ever performed before.

When the reports were in, it had averaged 43% longer non-skid mileage than its famous predecessor — and kept its grip twice as long as tires tested against it.

And because it had what car owners were looking for, because it was longer-wearing and safer too, it hung up a record for sales as well.

Enter—"the average driver"

Something the test fleet couldn't check is the way you drive your car.

The man who burns up the gas on a get-away, burns up his tires too. Driving habits are like fingerprints. Every fingerprint is different. Every tire history is different.

Some engineers figure that a tire may deliver anywhere from 4,000 to 40,000 miles, depending upon the kind of treatment it gets.

So one question remained unanswered. How were "G-3" All-Weathers behaving, how were they standing up, under the varying usage they got in the hands of different drivers?

And that is where Inspector Faurot comes in. Goodyear dared to send this great detective out to trail its tires and report in his own way.

Let's look at the records

There's a battered black notebook resting now in Goodyear's safe. Every page is crowded with closely scribbled notes — jotted down on the muddy fender of a car in the North Carolina mountains — or a porch rail in the Blue Grass country — or at a hot dog stand along U. S. 101 on the Pacific Coast. It's the grizzled inspector's own report of the facts he dug out, but it's too big, too packed with evidence to be reprinted here.

So let's dip into its fascinating pages, and pull out a few typical samples — to get a quick cross-section of the gold mine that's hidden there:

Case No. 23 — River Bend, N. C. Tire now on Goodyear dealer's service car. First owner ran tire 28,000 miles — traded in on new "G-3" for $3. Tire resold to second owner who ran it 8,000 miles. Now back in dealer's hands. Has been retreaded.

Case No. 99 — Elgin, Ill. Police car. Tire serial No. 562136K — mileage 34,011. Tread pattern still visible. Car travels 100 miles per day. Tire of other make on left rear, tread half gone at 10,000 miles.

Case No. 80 — Detroit parking lot. Owner salesman—fast driver, covers 5 states, every kind of road. Mileage 30,286—⅛ inch tread pattern still showing. Owner says this means at least 43% longer non-skid mileage.

Case No. 52 — Cincinnati. Bus running to Bedford, Ky., and Madison, Ind. Round trip 188 miles a day. Mileage 47,681. Getting smooth in center of tread. Easily 50% longer non-skid mileage.

Case No. 124 — Santa Fe, N. M. Architect. "G-3" mileage 15,380, tread pattern not over ⅓ worn. Previous tires wore out at 13,000.

Case No. 254 — Ocean Park, Cal. Light delivery truck. "G-3" had been retreaded at 24,240 miles — previous mileage of tires before retreading, 15,000 to 17,000. Constant stopping and starting causes rapid wear.

What you've just read is a reporter's vivid narrative of the greatest tire-hunt in history — studded with typical examples of the vast mass of evidence this search produced.

We let these facts tell their own story of long-lasting safety. We let the eloquent mileage records show you how consistently this famous tire is surpassing its own test-fleet records of 43% longer non-skid traction.

But you should know also the extra safety, the extra endurance which are inside this tire — thanks to the super-resilience of Goodyear's patented ply material, Supertwist cord. And it is Supertwist that makes a complete success of this heavier, broader, longer-wearing "G-3" All-Weather tread waiting for you now at the nearest Goodyear dealer's.

RIOTING IN GENEVA ON EVE OF ELECTION

20 Women and Children Hurt When Police Charge Fascist Parade.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, June 1.—Rioting broke out tonight on the eve of the Swiss election on a constitutional amendment which has been characterized as leading to a "Socialist state."

Twenty women and children were trampled and injured when mounted policemen charged a Fascist parade.

Despite a police order, Fascists attempted to parade to Socialist headquarters tonight. They were met by police forces, and hand-to-hand fighting resulted.

Injuries were confined to bystanders who were caught in the mounted police charge. A dozen Fascists carrying clubs were arrested.

Early Returns Said to Indicate Failure for Swiss Recovery Act.

By the Associated Press.

BERNE, Switzerland, June 1.—Early returns from the soldiers' vote on a constitutional amendment, containing clauses similar to the United States National Industrial Recovery Act, indicated tonight the measure would fail.

The Swiss Army voted a day before the rest of the country and apparently turned overwhelmingly against the amendment, which the Federal Council opposed as leading to a "socialist state."

TOM LIMERICK GETS LIFE SENTENCE FOR BANK ROBBERY

"They Certainly Poured It On," He Says After Pleading Guilty in South Dakota.

By the Associated Press.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., June 1.—Tom Limerick, who evaded officers in a half-dozen bank robberies only to run afoul of St. Joseph (Mo.) police early this week, today was under a life sentence in a Federal prison for bank robbery. He was sentenced late yesterday in United States District Court after he had pleaded guilty of robbing the First National Bank of Dell Rapids, S. D. Limerick afterward said, "They certainly poured it on."

The sentence of Limerick followed by a few hours that of Ernest Verhuel, his brother-in-law and member of the Limerick-Denning band. Verhuel drew a 25-year term in Leavenworth after pleading guilty to participation in the robbery of the First National Bank of Hudson, S. D., a crime to which Limerick also confessed.

St. Stephen's House Picnic.

St. Stephen's House, Sixth and Rutger streets, will hold its annual parish picnic next Sunday at St. Stephens-in-the-Hills, Allenton, Mo. Proceeds will be used to pay summer vacation expenses of Sunday school children at the Allenton camp.

ILLINOIS CITIZEN GROUP CALLS MEETING ON POWER STRIKE

Committee Will See Gov. Horner Tuesday and Discuss Means of Ending Walkout.

Mayors, business men and employers in 25 representative Illinois cities affected by the strike at the Illinois Power & Light Corporation, which has left many of the municipalities without electric power since April 3, received telegrams yesterday from the Associated Retailers of Granite City, urging attendance at a meeting to be held Tuesday at Springfield.

A committee of the delegation will meet with Gov. Horner at 11:30 a. m. and discuss possible means of terminating the strike. It was planned to send additional telegrams last night and today. Arrangements have been made with legislators from the district to ask a recess of both houses of the State Legislature, Tuesday morning, in order to provide a meeting place in the Capitol Building for the visitors, who will parade Springfield streets.

MURDERED WOMAN

MRS. LOUISE DOERR.

Tribute to Sholom Alechem.

A program commemorating the death of Sholom Alechem, Jewish literary figure, will be held under auspices of the Jewish Art Guild, this evening, at the Y. M. H. A., Union boulevard and Enright avenue. Selections from his writings will be read.

KILLS HIS WIFE, ENDS OWN LIFE IN WELLSTON HOME

C. A. Doerr Mentally Affected, Relatives Think, by Loss of Property Through Foreclosure.

Clarence A. Doerr, a striking gas worker of the Laclede Gas Co., shot and killed his wife, Louise, and ended his life at their home, 8137 St. Charles lane, Wellston, yesterday morning. Doerr was 50 years old and his wife 48. An inquest will be held tomorrow at Pine Lawn.

In three notes to relatives, Doerr spoke of domestic difficulties, mentioning a nephew of Mrs. Doerr as the chief cause of trouble. The relatives stated that he had brooded over the loss of his home through foreclosure a month ago, and they think the shooting resulted from a mental aberration. That Doerr had intended to kill his wife's nephew, but had changed his mind, was shown in one note, which stated: "I was thinking of taking the little —— with me, but decided to leave him."

Mrs. Mary Byerly, 77 years old, mother of Mrs. Doerr, was in the kitchen of the home, which she and the nephew shared with the Doerrs, shortly before 11 a. m. when she heard two shots. She ran from the house screaming, "he shot my daughter." Neighbors telephoned the Sheriff's office.

Bodies in Sunroom.

Deputy Sheriff Litzinger, dispatched to the scene, had to break open a bedroom door to reach a rear sunroom where the bodies lay on the floor, close together. Mrs. Byerly said she heard her son-in-law lock the door a few minutes before the shots were fired.

Mrs. Doerr used the sunroom as a beauty parlor. She was attired in slippers and the green smock she wore when receiving customers. She had been shot above the right eye, the bullet emerging from the back of the head. Doerr, who was in underwear and trousers, was lying face down, shot in the top of the head. A .32-caliber revolver, containing two discharged shells, was under a dresser near his left hand.

Notes to Relatives.

The notes were addressed to O. F. Doerr, 8116 Toddy avenue, a brother; Mrs. Minnie Wilson, 5044 Genevieve avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Dayton.

To his brother Doerr wrote: "I am going to learn the —— (mentioning persons said to be relatives of Mrs. Doerr) a lesson I don't think they will ever forget." The message to Mrs. Wilson asked that she take his mother to live with her, "so her money will last longer." "I hate to disappoint you in this way, but my mind is made up and nothing can change it," the note said. Doerr also requested in the note that his body be cremated "and put with father's." "Don't bury me near Louise, and don't take us to the same undertaker," he directed.

To Mr. and Mrs. Dayton he wrote: "I understand that you were taking up a collection for Louise and me, but I want you to know that it was not for me but for her and her family, so I am going to save you the trouble."

The Doerrs had no children. The bodies were taken to the Baumann mortuary, where autopsies were performed.

COTTON BELT GETS EXTENSION OF $17,882,250 RFC LOAN

I. C. C. Grants It Two Years More and Authorizes $4,500,000 Issue of Notes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1. — The Interstate Commerce Commission today approved a two-year extension of the time of payment of loans tottaling $17,882,250 made to the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway Co. by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Today was the original date of maturity of the loans.

The commission stipulated that $4,500,000 in outstanding bank loans be extended to maturity dates not earlier than the extended maturity dates of the RFC loans.

The commission found the Cotton Belt "not to be in need of financial reorganization in the public interest at this time."

In another order, the commission granted authority to the Cotton Belt to issue not exceeding $4,500,000 of promissory notes to renew or extend matured notes.

CONGRESS FACING LONG SESSION TO COMPLETE WORK

Roosevelt Tells Leaders He Expects Them to Stay Until December if Necessary.

NRA SOLUTION CHIEF PROBLEM

Remainder of Program Probably Can Be Passed Within Another Month or Six Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—President Roosevelt passed the word to congressional leaders today that he expected them to stay in session until December, if necessary, to complete his legislative program.

His move is interpreted on Capitol Hill as having a two-fold purpose—to discourage filibusters against his proposals and to indicate that he is in no hurry to act on measures to take the place of NRA.

Plans for an early adjournment have been discarded by Democratic chieftains, in view of the confusion caused by the Supreme Court's NRA verdict. They are preparing for a hot all-summer session if necessary, but they still hope it may be averted.

Leaders concede the adjournment date depends almost entirely upon what happens in connection with NRA. They are confident they can get the rest of the legislative program out of the way within another month or six weeks.

If the New Deal should suggest a constitutional amendment, some Senators feel the December date may be reached. On the other hand, they see a chance for a reasonably early adjournment, if the administration agrees to some other solution of the troublesome situation.

Progress in the Senate.

In the Senate, where the big administration measures have been piling up recently, rapid progress is in prospect for next week, though the House plans to spend its time on less important legislation.

Informed Senators forecast the controversial public utility holding company bill will be passed by the middle of the week, clearing the way for the social security bill.

The Senate Banking Subcommittee headed by Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, is scheduled to conclude on Monday or Tuesday the hearings on the Administrations' Omnibus banking bill, the last of the vital "must" legislation still in committee.

Some time next week the Senate Agriculture Committee is expected to report back to the Chamber the AAA amendments, with revisions designed to meet the constitutional limitations laid down by the Supreme Court in the NRA case.

Work Yet To Be Done.

Monday will mark the beginning of the sixth month of the Congressional session. Congress has passed much legislation but only one of the major measures on the Administration program — the $4,800,000,000 work-relief bill.

The social security bill has passed the House but not the Senate. The Wagner labor bill has passed the Senate, but not the House. The bank and holding company bills have passed neither house. The concededly necessary revenue bill, extending the nuisance taxes, has not even been introduced.

One ray of hope for the leaders is the fact that all important regular appropriation bills except the final deficiency bill have passed both houses and either are in conference or already at the White House.

George L. Colburn, Head of Land Firm, Wins Restoration of Citizenship.

George L. Colburn, St. Louisan convicted in United States Court here in 1913 of using the mails to defraud in land sales, has received a full pardon and restoration of citizenship from President Roosevelt, the clerk of the court was informed in a notice received today. In addition a $1000 fine imposed on Colburn was remitted.

Colburn, president of the Washington and Choctaw Land Co., was sentenced to serve six and a half years in the penitentiary, but sentence was commuted to two years by President Wilson in 1917 following appeals by the late Paul Brown, wealthy broker, and the late J. W. Bray, vice-president of the Condie-Bray Glass Co. Bray, a member of the jury, said he had no idea the defendant would receive such a heavy penalty.

At the trial it was shown the company advertised as valuable 39,000 acres of land in Washington County, Ala., but that the land was worthless.

DEPOSITS IN BANKS IN CITY WITHDRAWN TO EVADE TAX

$52,376,000 Turned Into Securities Before June 1, Date Levy Is Computed.

Demand deposits in member banks of the St. Louis Clearing House Association at the close of business Friday had declined $52,376,000 from the preceding Friday, due to the custom of evading the city tax on deposits, as of June 1, by turning the deposits into securities until the date of the tax levy has passed.

They totaled $194,966,000 for the week. The decline last year was only $44,404,000 the week before June 1. The average fluctation of deposits is $1,000,000 to $5,000,000.

C. P. NOELL DENIES DISBARMENT CHARGES

Lawyer Makes Formal Answer to Complaint in Court of Appeals.

Formal answer to charges of the Grievance Committee of the St. Louis Bar Association in disbarment proceedings against Charles P. Noell, attorney, was filed yesterday in St. Louis Court of Appeals. He denied generally the allegations of the committee that he had been guilty of "dishonorable and unprofessional conduct" in behalf of clients with personal injury damage suits against corporations.

He questioned, in his answer, the authority of the committee to file charges against him, and added that the evidence submitted fails to contain grounds for disbarment and that the conclusion drawn from the evidence are not warranted by the facts.

The acts which are subject of the complaint, Noell points out, were during a three-year period from 1922, and have been declared innocent transactions by a court in a previous proceeding.

During the period on which the charges are based and at all times thereafter, Noell said, he has at no time been guilty of malpractice, fraud or misdemeanor.

The petition of the Bar Association sets forth that Noell, by his own admissions, secretly made cash payments in the years of 1922 to 1925, inclusive, to employes of railroads and other corporations for information used in seeking damages from railroads and other corporations for clients alleging they had received personal injuries.

OUSTED POLICEMAN FILES SUIT

Seeks to Compel Belleville to Continue His Salary.

A mandamus suit to compel the City of Belleville to pay him $135 a month as a member of the police force was filed in Circuit Court at Belleville yesterday by T. W. Ehret, one of two policemen dismissed April 30 by Mayor George Remnsnider. The other policeman, Frank Kern, will file a similar suit next week.

The suit is intended as a test of the city's civil service law, approved by the voters on Nov. 6, 1934. Ehret contended in his petition that the members of the police department, being under civil service, were not subject to removal by the Mayor and he had committed no acts which warranted his dismissal. He was appointed to the police force May 7, 1934.

NEIGHBORHOOD GARDENS WILL BE FINISHED IN JULY

First Tenants of $740,000 Low-Cost Housing Project to Move In About First of Month.

Neighborhood Gardens, first modern low-cost mass housing undertaking in St. Louis, which has been receiving applications for its 252 apartments for some time, will be ready for the first tenants about July 1 and for the rest of the occupants during July.

No tenants have been accepted yet and before any leases are made inquiries as to the need of the prospective dwellers for these accommodations, their desirability, and their ability to pay the modest rentals will be carried out. The $740,000 Gardens occupy the block bounded by Seventh, Eighth, Biddle and O'Fallon streets.

Rentals will range from $18 a month for the plainest one-room efficiency unit, to $38.50 for the largest suite, with two bedrooms, living room, kitchenette, dressing nook and bath. Location, size and other factors will govern the price of each apartment.

Three Oil Burners for Heat.

Tenants will be furnished, without extra charge, steam heat supplied by the vacuum system from three central oil burners; hot and cold water; either gas or electricity for cooking, the choice of a single fuel remaining to be made; gas for laundry fuel; the use of a unit laundry one day weekly, and the use of janitor-operated incinerators for garbage, cans and other refuse. They will pay for their own electricity for lighting, at an estimated average cost of $1.50 a month per apartment, and, if they desire and can afford telephones, they will pay for them, outlets having been provided at each apartment.

Fixed equipment in each apartment will include iceboxes, stoves, sinks, with drain boards and backs of waterproof, acidproof, alcoholproof wood, veneered and pressed; also built-in cupboards, broom cabinets and clothes closets.

Library and Social Rooms.

Neighborhood Association, whose director, J. A. Wolf, conceived the idea for Neighborhood Gardens and carried it out in spite of many difficulties, will maintain a branch at the Gardens. It will furnish a library and social rooms, a domestic science kitchen and demonstration dining room, and supervision for the playgrounds for children and adults. Lectures and other things to interest the people will be provided. Quarters for this activity have been built in a well-lighted basement suite at the Eighth and Biddle corner.

Population of the Gardens may exceed 1000. Wolf, who is the general manager, has concluded that all the apartments would be filled speedily. About 300 applications have been received so far, informally. Blanks for applicants to fill out will be ready in about two weeks. Preference in renting will be given first to persons now residing within a radius of eight or 10 blocks of the Gardens, who are acceptable and able to pay rent, and then in inverse order to residents of increasingly wider sectors of the city.

Prospective Applicants.

Among those who have inquired about apartments have been owners of small stores, clerks, bookkeepers, stenographers, men operating small trucking businesses, factory workers, street car men, school teachers, social workers, widows living with working daughters and young couples recently engaged or married. Social case inquiry will be made for all tenants accepted, for Wolf said: "We want to get the right kind of underprivileged people." Leases will obligate landlord and tenant for only two weeks, but will be automatically renewable. Rules, to be reasonably strict, will be incorporated in the leases variously in English, Italian, Polish and Yiddish.

Applicants have given, among their reasons for desiring to live in the Gardens, the saving of car fare to and from work, the avoidance of a tiring trip morning and evening, the convenience to markets, other stores and downtown movies, or the desire to remain in the neighborhood in clean, modern homes.

Ground was broken May 27, 1934, but construction did not really begin until Sept. 10. In less than nine months the extensive three-story structures, containing nearly 1,500,000 cubic feet, have been nearly completed. The average residence contains 25,000 cubic feet and requires four months to erect. Hoener, Baum & Froese are the architects and H. B. Deal & Co. the builders.

Description of Buildings.

Roughly, the buildings, in three separate units, form a square around the outer sides of the block, in the heart of an old tenement, factory and warehouse district. Arms of the structures reach into the interior plot, breaking it into sections. The chief entrance is on the Eighth street side, but the apartments are so arranged in groups that comparatively few persons will use any one door and these doors may be reached by passing only a few windows.

Every one of the apartments has a concrete balcony with iron railing, built to hold four rocking chairs and placed to afford the greatest possible privacy. It was the endeavor throughout the planning to assure privacy as far as possible. The apartments are soundproof and well insulated against heat and cold.

In appearance the Gardens are of severely plain design, along angular modernistic lines. Each entrance has a conventional arrangement of brick for ornamentation. The graveled roofs are flat. The outer walls are of a specially baked red shale brick of large size.

Wading Pool and Shower.

In the extensive courtyards is a wading pool, which will have a shower for hot days, and it will be surrounded with sandboxes and other play facilities for younger children. There will be two play areas also for older children and two for adults. In addition, use of a 150x270-foot lot facing the Gardens on O'Fallon has been obtained without cost for use as a ball field and for other activities of the residents.

Over much of the courtyards topsoil will be spread to a depth of six or eight inches for planting purposes. Ten hardy varieties of shrubs and two trees—the poplar and the Chinese elm—have been selected for planting.

The interior walls are of cinder blocks. A heavy paint will be applied to them, in varying colors, to afford an attractive surface of rough texture, free from the vermin and dirt collecting tendencies of paint or plaster. Baseboards are of vitrified brick. Floors will be of marbleized asphalt tile.

23 Laundries in Basement.

In the basements will be 23 laundries, each serving an average of 11 apartments under a fixed schedule for use. The architects even thought of the prospective infant population by including a basement room to store 80 perambulators, reached by a combination ramp and steps.

Floor space of the largest apartments is twice as great as in the smallest. The largest ones were intended to furnish sleeping quarters for six adults and the smallest for a couple and a child. The rental office, not yet ready, will be in the basement at 1210 North Eighth. It was thought likely that stores, shops and garages would spring up in the vicinity to serve the tenants.

A department store will be asked to furnish a model apartment. Each kitchenette has a cold box to store food in winter, to save on ice. The windows, all to be screened, are of the steel casement type. Because of the nature of construction, the Gardens will pay a low fire insurance premium.

Financial Arrangements.

The site cost $86,000. The buildings and finishing details will cost $654,000. Neighborhod Gardens, Inc., was financed by $2100 subscribed by the 10 directors for a nominal stock issue; $638,000 furnished by the Housing Division of the PWA on a first mortgage, and $100,000 put up by the 10 directors on a second mortgage. The PWA loan will mature over a 35-year period beginning one year after completion of construction. Annual payments will be $34,000 including interest at 4 per cent. The 5½ per cent limit second mortgage bonds will be retirable after 10 years. Any surplus income will be devoted to reducing rentals or improving the property. The Gardens are not tax exempt.

The directors are: James Lee Johnson, president; James T. Pettus, Sam Plant and Bert H. Lang, vice-presidents; William T. Ravenscroft, treasurer; George Oliver Carpenter Jr., P. John Hoener of the architects, Lewis S. Haslam, David P. Wohl and General Manager Wolf.

MAN, WOMAN HELD UP IN STORE; $200 STOLEN

Manager and Telephone Operator Are Victims at Ralston-Purina Establishment.

Clifton Osterkamp, 3809 Osceola street, manager of the city sales department of the Ralston-Purina Co., 835 South Eighth street, was robbed of $200 at noon yesterday by two armed men who fled with a third man who waited outside the store in an automobile.

Osterkamp and Miss Virginia Rohan, 5575 Maple avenue, telephone operator for the company, were alone when the two men entered the store. They drew revolvers from under their coats, Osterkamp and Miss Nolan told police, and, after taking the money from the cash drawer, ran out and entered the car, which went east on Gratiot street.

NEW TRAFFIC PLAN FOR MUNICIPAL OPERA

Control System for Handling Autos Effective at Opening Tomorrow Night.

A system of traffic control, designed by Maj. A. B. Lambert of the Board of Police Commissioners to expedite movement of motorists to and from the Municipal Theater in Forest Park will be placed in effect tomorrow night when the opera season opens with a performance of "Teresina."

There will be one-way traffic on many drives each night from 7 until 8:30 o'clock during the opera season, and no turns, right or left, will be permitted at points where they might impede the movement of traffic.

Routes for Motorists.

Motorists entering the park at Lindell boulevard and Kingshighway will follow Grand drive to Jefferson drive. Those who desire to park on the lower lot will turn into Theater drive, and those going to the upper lot will use Union and Summit drives. Entering at Union and Lindell boulevards, motorists will use Union and Grand drives. A right turn may be made at Grand and Theater drives to reach the lower lot, while those going to the upper lot will continue on Union drive to Summit. Automobiles which enter the park at Kingshighway and Oakland, or Kingshighway and Euclid, will go over Jefferson drive to reach the opera traffic lanes at Theater drive.

Special opera bus service will be provided as usual during the season by the Public Service Co. Four lines will operate direct to the theater. All fares now accepted on street cars and busses, including weekly transfers, school tickets and Sunday-holiday passes, may be used on the special opera busses. These busses will issue transfers to any street car or bus line except the express busses operated on the Delmar, Lindell and Page routes.

Routes of the four bus lines which will operate direct to the theater are:

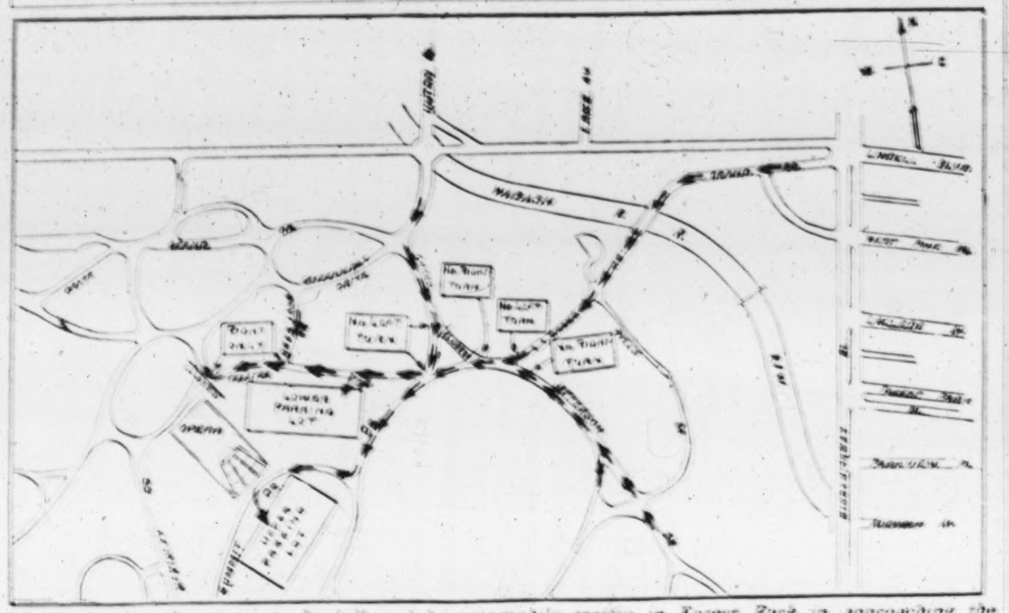
Eads Bridge-Opera: Starting at Third and Washington, west on Washington to Fourteenth, to Locust, to Lindell via cut-off, to Union, and thence over park driveways to lower entrance of theater. Same route returning except busses will proceed east to Twelfth street instead of Fourteenth. Service starts at 6:40 p. m.

Carondelet-Kingshighway-Opera: Starting at Grand and Holly Hills (Carondelet Park), north on Grand to Chippewa, to Kingshighway, to Clayton road, and thence over park driveways to lower entrance of theater. Same route return direction. Service starts at 6:48 p. m.

Florissant-Kingshighway-Opera: Starting at Florissant and Kingshighway, south on Kingshighway to Lindell, to Union, and thence over park driveways to lower entrance of theater. Returning, busses will leave the park at West Pine and Kingshighway where they will resume regular route northbound. Service starts at 6:32 p. m.

De Baliviere-Opera Shuttle: Starting at Delmar and De Baliviere, south on De Baliviere to park entrance, and thence over park driveways to lower entrance of theater. Return same route. Service starts at 6:40 p. m.

Systematic Routing of Motorists to Municipal Opera



MAP showing the routes to be followed by automobile traffic in Forest Park in approaching the Municipal Theater during the opera season. Beginning at 7 o'clock each evening there will be one-way traffic on the principal drives leading to the theater. Arrows indicate the direction in which traffic will move.

DAVIS SAYS AAA WILL HOLD MARKETING AGREEMENTS

No Thought, He States, of Abandoning Present Program; Working on Strengthening Plans.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—A positive statement that the AAA is contemplating no abandonment of marketing agreements was made today by Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator.

A telegram he prepared to reply to all inquiries concerning the administration's plans said:

"The Agriculture Adjustment Administration has no thought of abandoning either its present program of marketing agreements for fruits and vegetables or its milk marketing plans. On the contrary, we are now working with Congressional leaders on amendments designed to strengthen these marketing agreements and milk plans.

"Efforts are being made to revise these proposed amendments in the light of the Schechter decision so as to retain the substance of the marketing agreement programs while modifying enforcement procedure to conform to customary Government regulatory practices readily sustainable in court."

Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, expressed the view that Congress "ought to leave the AAA alone until the courts pass on it."

NATIONAL AUTO DEALERS DECIDE TO CONTINUE CODES

Meeting Occasioned by NRA Court Ruling Discusses Factory-Dealer Relationships.

The board of directors of the National Automobile Dealers Association decided yesterday at a meeting at the Coronado Hotel to continue fair trade practices developed under the NRA code. The meeting was called because of the Supreme Court decision against the NRA.

Dealers will continue to use the guide book for valuations of used automobiles taken in part payment on new cars.

Plans proposing to maintain code principles through factory-dealer relationships, legislation, the Federal Trade Commission, and other methods were discussed.

Fifty dealers attended. The 1936 annual convention will be held during the second week of January in Detroit.

CAMPBELL WILL CASE TAKEN TO MISSOURI SUPREME COURT

Circuit Judge Ryan Recently Dismissed Suit to Set It Aside; Estate Worth $1,200,000.

An appeal to the Missouri Supreme Court was taken yesterday by Anton Schuler as guardian for Hazlett Kyle Campbell, from the recent decision of Circuit Judge Ryan dismissing the guardian's suit to set aside the will of Hugh Campbell, brother of Hazlett. Judge Ryan decided the contest had not been filed for the benefit of Hazlett Campbell, 78, 1308 Locust street, but was in the interest of collateral heirs who, in the absence of a will, eventually would receive the estate, worth $1,200,000.

Hugh Campbell died Aug. 9, 1932. He left the principal part of his property in trust for the benefit of his brother who has been a mental incompetent nearly half a century, according to the court's findings. At his death Yale University, the will provided, is to receive the assets as a memorial to the late James Campbell, another brother.

The decree of Judge Ryan was rendered in an equitable counterclaim filed by Allan C. Orrick and the St. Louis Union Trust Co., trustees, Yale University and various individual beneficiaries, the latter being represented by Clifford B. Allen. The court was asked to enjoin further prosecution of the suit.

In the motion for an appeal it was contended by counsel for the guardian that the trial court erred in the decision as it was the duty of a court and jury to determine the issue raised by the will contest. Counsel also said authority to file the suit had been granted by the Probate Court, where the guardian was appointed.

Ford V-8 Brings Fine-Car Performance Within Your Reach

THE FORD V-8—one of the most important forward steps in the history of the automobile—brings to all the people what was formerly within reach of the few. The V-8 engine had always been known for its outstanding performance, but it was used only in expensive cars. People wanted it—knew it was better. But few motorists could afford to pay $2000 or more for an automobile.

The principle of the engine was right but the price was prohibitive. The Ford Motor Company decided to get that price down to where more people could have a V-8 car.

That was the new idea. The V-8 was a new kind of car to fit new times, but the thought behind it was the same . . . the tested Ford idea of service. The Ford Motor Company simply continued to do the pioneering work that has been its specialty for 30 years and set a new standard of value.

The significance of the Ford V-8 is that now it becomes possible for every one to have a really fine automobile at low cost. Price is not a barrier. Even those who can afford high prices for an automobile are driving the Ford V-8. It is the car of fashion as well as utility.

Today's Ford V-8 gives everything you would like to have in performance, beauty, comfort and safety. As for dependability and economy—the Ford has always been known for that. Today it stands also for the newest, latest developments in automobile building.

Editorial Views on Roosevelt Comment on Supreme Court's Decision Knocking Out NRA

New York Times Regrets Tone of His Remarks; "Not Inspiring," Says Philadelphia Inquirer; "Trial Balloon."

EDITORIAL comment by some of the nation's leading newspapers on President Roosevelt's discussion of the Supreme Court decision on the NRA follows:

NEW YORK TIMES: Friends of President Roosevelt will be the first to regret the address which he made to the newspaper correspondents yesterday . . . One of the things most admired in Mr. Roosevelt, all through his term, has been his calmness and poise of spirit. Modest in victory, he has been cheerful in defeat. No one could have expected him to betray the pique that appears in his remarks yesterday. It is to be feared that the bitterness of his attitude will frustrate the very purpose he has in mind. People will believe that he meant it when he said that he was afraid of wheat falling to 36 cents and cotton to 5 cents. This was, of course, only a prophecy of the possibly extreme result, but it comes ill from the President, who has been constantly preaching confidence and good cheer.

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE: Fair-minded Americans, regardless of party, will regret President Roosevelt's address to the Washington correspondents. He had the opportunity to prove that he was a good sportsman and a good loser. He also had the opportunity to make clear where he stood on the fundamentals in issue by coming out frankly for or against a constitutional amendment centralizing governmental power in Washington. He met neither challenge. He could have said in effect: "We have been mistaken, but we are not discouraged. We shall start again . . ."

He dodged the implication of his argument and refused to come out courageously for a rewriting of the Constitution. "Save yourselves. I can do nothing, in view of the Supreme Court decision," would be a fair summary of the talk.

WORLD TELEGRAM: The President defined the issuses as he understands them. He asked the people to see and think clearly. He asked them to decide whether they will go—drifting along as a tangled federation of states, powerless to act as a nation, or moving forward under a vigorous national government which can help the people themselves to better life.

NEW YORK SUN.—The nation is too familiar with President Roosevelt's habits of expression to feel disappointed that no clear intimation of his intentions came out of his long talk yesterday. He flatly refused to divulge his immediate plans but he did leave his hearers convinced that in his opinion the court had laid a dead stymie for the New Deal. The nation must therefore reconcile itself to wait for piecemeal revelations in whatever fashion he may decide to put them forth.

What seems clear, however, is that the President is under no illusion as to the implications of the decision. Mr. Roosevelt knows that there is just one way of getting around it—and that is by amending the Constitution.

It is natural for the President to be displeased at the Supreme Court's overthrowing his policies; he has every right to express his displeasure. But he is good citizen and good sportsman enough to obey the law when he is told so authoritatively what the law is.

NEW YORK POST.—President Roosevelt meets the emergency with courage. He exhibits the characteristic American trait of abiding by the rules even though the game goes against him.

COLUMBUS O.) STATE JOURNAL: The President opines the NRA decision has taken the country back to the horse and buggy stage. But even that will be more satisfactory than the nightmare.

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER: It is certain that the last few years, and particularly the years of acute depression, have emphasized the need of a competent central government for handling vital problems which recognize no state lines. Liberals would naturally sponsor the kind of constitutional amendment hinted at by the President as necessary to preserve social and economic justice. Conservatives might oppose the revision on the ground that it put into the hands of the central government dictatorial powers over state and local communities. Regardless of politican labels, the question must be as to which policy will in the long run better serve the greatest number of people.

NEW ORLEANS MORNING TRIBUNE: Social legislation is indeed needed. But so is logical construction of the Constitution. This is not to say that constitutional amendment should not be undertaken whenever it is desirable. But it has not become clear yet that legislation cannot be framed under the existing Constitution to accomplish most of the good objects sought by the NRA.

BALTIMORE SUN: After all, this country had not only endured a long time, but had made amazing strides away from the horse-and-buggy stage before ever it had occurred to anyone that an ex-army officer, employed in the office of Barney Baruch, should be made the czar of American industry, and empowered to write laws called codes for the Government of everything from steel mills to barber shops. The country had done some amazing things in production and distribution of goods, and in increasing real wages of labor while reducing work hours, before ever a brain truster was exported to Washington from Columbia University. Indeed, as late as the summer of 1932, the bands in Democratic national convention were roaring out "Happy Days Are Here Again" as Mr. Roosevelt himself concluded a speech in which he said he accepted "every word" of a platform that included a surprising volume of historic Democratic doctrine in support of individualism, and contained no hint whatever of those cartels, or "great industrial guilds," which were NRA.

Mr. Roosevelt's preternatural solemnity is unfortunate. When a man has fashioned a reputation for gay insouciance, during a period in which he got everything he asked merely for the asking, he ought to be a little careful about the depth of the gloom he spreads when the going becomes more or less rocky.

BOSTON GLOBE — Throughout the country the people will be watching intently for the next move from the White House.

BOSTON TRANSCRIPT — New Deal No. 2 is in the making. What it will be or how it will be accomplished nobody knows, least of all, apparently, the President.

BOSTON TRAVELER — Had he been bitter, he might have said that wide powers used for taking life (delegation of power during the war) were not challenged, but when it come to a matter of preserving life, the challenge comes and is successful.

BOSTON HERALD — Notable in the President's comment was the absence of any helpful constructive suggestions.

BOSTON POST—There is grave danger that we may be hurried into some unwise constitutional amendment. carried through with a rush to meet an alleged emergency, as inthe case of the prohibition amendment.

WASHINGTON POST: The statel ment which President Roosevelt mode at his press conference . . . was of the most far-reaching political significance. In it he definitely turned his back on the traditions and principles of the party and gave tremendous stimulus to the move for a complete political realignment in the United States.

PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER: President Roosevelt in his statement at the news conference yesterday, appeared to be testing the country's reaction to the NRA decision, to be sending up a trial balloon for signs of a popular demand that legal obstructions be removed from the path of the New Deal's crusade of regimentation and interference. . . . If the American Constitution were amended to provide for the Socialistic ambitions of the New Deal, the American Government would be something fundamentally different from that to which Mr. Roosevelt has pledged fealty. His alarm over the discovery that the 48 states are perilously unregimented, and undominated by central government, would be tragic were it not for this country's 150 years of brilliant and honorable history. . . . It is not difficult to understand Mr. Roosevelt's keen disappointment. . . . But the spectacle of a President of the United States rebelling against the Constitution's safeguards and, in effect, rebuking the Supreme Court for upholding the American system of Government is not inspiring. Far better would it become Mr. Roosevelt to accept his failure to substitute dictatorship for representative Government, to acknowledge the errors of the Socialistic philosophy he has espoused and to devote the remainder of his term to upholding America for Americans.

DENVER POST: The President made it clear that the main planks in his platform in the next national campaign will be: Abolition of states' rights and concentration in the Federal Government of constitutional authority to control business, industry and agriculture, and regiment the activities of every individual. Adoption of such a program would mean the end of this republic as it has existed from the time it was founded.

HARTFORD COURANT: Even if the President should be able to induce Congress to propose an amendment giving constitutional validity to his "new order of things," the chances are that it would not get very far. Where is there a state that would give its consent, either through its legislature or by a convention, to repose in Congress or in the President the power to order the affairs of its citizens from Washington? If Mr. Roosevelt wants to go before the country on a platform demanding a choice between his New Deal and the Constitution, he is welcome to do so. His present attitude, which probably he will not long maintain, is strangely at variance with his repeated assertions that all our problems can be solved within the framework of the Constitution.

SPRINGFIELD (MASS.) REPUBLICAN: In deciding as he may, to become the leading champion of Constitution changes designed to make the United States a nation, as it never has been before in the strict legalistic sense, the President will carry his New Deal into the constitutional realm, as a logical necessity of the judicial interference with his program. True conservatives, who are not motivated by partisan malignancy, could welcome such a development since it would give them an issue close to their hearts. A battle over the Constitution would divide both the old parties, forcing a coalition of Republican and Democratic conservatives. The South would split again owing to the resentment of Southern champions of states' rights yet the collision would achieve the high dignity of a conflict between political philosophies that have always contended for supremacy since the unification of the 13 colonies.

Chicago Tribune: Mr. Roosevelt's confession at his press conference of Friday put him definitely in the open as the advocate of the abandonment of constitutional government, the suppression of the various states, and the establishment of a political autocracy free from judicial restraints and limitations of authority. In statements at once comprehensive and specific, he says that the Union of States under the Constitution has seen the end of its useful days. The President admits that his true purposes are those which have been attributed to him. The policy of his administration is to change the form of American Government and the organization of society which it served and protected. There can be no further confusion of political issues in the United States. Mr. Roosevelt and his revolutionaries are through with American Government as it has existed. They will seek means to create in its place a form of government with which a large part of Europe is unfortunately now familiar. He says it is better.

NO. 12 VANDEVENTER PLACE TO BE RAZED

Built by Late J. D. Perry—To Be Torn Down to Save Taxes.

The old residence at 12 Vandeventer place, built about 1885 by the late John D. Perry, is to be demolished to save taxes of about $110 a year and the expense of maintaining it.

The 14-room brick and stone dwelling has not had a permanent tenant for many years and is now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beecher, 419 East Argonne drive, Kirkwood, who obtained the wrecking permit yesterday. They came into possession of the property about eight years ago through the estate of Mrs. Beecher's father, Charles E. Bradley.

Vandeventer place, when Perry built his home there, was the fashionable residence district of St. Louis, but with the growth of the city it has become less desirable and real estate values have declined greatly. Barry Craven, valuation engineer in the Assessor's office, estimated yesterday that it would cost $45,000 to reproduce the house. But it was assessed, for tax purposes, at only $4000, and the ground on which it stands, a plot 100 by 143 feet, at $4500.

Restrictions adopted at the time the place was laid out, and which can be changed only by unanimous vote of the property owners there, require that the property be used only for single residences. Efforts to lift the restrictions to permit commercial development have been unavailing.

Perry, manufacturer and railroad builder, who died in 1895, was the father-in-law of the late David R. Francis, former Governor of Missouri and Ambassador to Russia, who built, at about the same time, the residence at 16 Vandeventer place, just west of the building to be wrecked.

Several other permits to wreck buildings were obtained yesterday, presumably for the purpose of demolishing them before the tax rolls are made up. Taxes payable in 1936 will be based on assessments as of yesterday, June 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Beecher obtained a permit to wreck a 2½-story residence at 2922 Washington boulevard. The Manufacturers' Bank & Trust Co. took out permits to wreck three old residences at 615 Lafayette avenue, 709 Russell boulevard and 2437 Kosciusko street.

HELEN STEPHENS TIES WORLD RECORD, SETS U. S. AND OZARK DISTRICT MARKS

Equals Stella Walsh's Time for 100 Meters; Wins the Discus Event

By Damon Kerby.

Helen Stephens, the Fulton flash, tied one world record and broke one National and one Ozark district record in the three events in which she participated in the annual Ozark A. A. U. women's outdoor track and field championships yesterday afternoon at Maplewood Stadium.

She equaled the world record in the 100-meter race, running the distance in 11.8 seconds. The mark was set by Stella Walsh in Poland Sept. 7, 1933, and since that time has withstood the battering of girl track stars on both sides of the Atlantic. Miss Walsh's best time in the United States for the distance is 11.9, made as a representative of Poland in the 1932 Olympics at Los Angeles.

Miss Stephens tied the world record only about 10 minutes after traveling the 200-meter distance in 24.4 seconds to break the American record of 25.1, set by Elizabeth Robinson of Chicago, and to come within three-tenths of a second of Miss Walsh's world record of 24.1, a mark established three years ago.

The Ozark district record which fell at Miss Stephen's hands was in the discus. In efforts interrupted by the necessity of competing in a 200-meter preliminary, she made a record heave of 129 feet 1 inch. The old district record, made by Dee Boeckmann back in 1929, was 126 feet 8 inches.

Miss Walsh Fails to Appear.

The record breaking and record tying performances of the tall, masculine Fulton girl, helped, in part, to minimize the disappointment in Stella Walsh's failure to compete in a special race against her conqueror in the National Indoor meet here last March. Efforts will be made by A. A. U. officials to debar Miss Walsh from amateur competition both here and abroad for running out of the scheduled appearance.

Miss Stephens was not pressed to the utmost in winning either the 200 or the 100 meter race, though 16-year-old May Brady of the St. Louis A. C. turned in a surprising effort to finish second and keep the Fulton star stepping in the 100. Gertrude Webb was 15 or 20 feet back of Miss Stephens at the 200-meter finish, with Miss Stephens easing up.

Track conditions were fair, despite a downpour earlier in the day.

A breeze, noticeable to spectators—and blowing from behind the runners—prevailed during the running of the 100-meter event, but Miss Dee Boeckmann, chairman of the women's track committee of the National A. A. U., said Ozark A. A. U. officials would ask for official recognition for both marks.

Threatening weather and the absence of Miss Walsh combined to hold the crowd down to about 500 spectators, among which were about 25 residents of Fulton, including Miss Stephens' parents, her brother, and Fulton's Mayor. They had a large afternoon.

Three Other Records.

The story of Miss Stephens' achievements was just about the story of the meet. Jaunita Farmer of Warrenton, Mo., set a new district record of 200 feet, 7 inches in the baseball throw, and Jessie Crain of the St. Louis A. C. exceeded by three and a half inches the best previous district performance in the running broad jump. Her mark was 16 feet 8 inches.

The final Ozark record of the day to do down was in the 400-meter relay, won by the St. Louis A. C. in 50.8 seconds. The old mark, 58.1, was held by the old Headlight A. C. and was made in 1927.

The St. Louis A. C. won the team trophy with 62½ points. Fulton,—in the person of Miss Stephens—scored 15 points for second place. Other points scored: Wright City, Mo., 10; Warrenton, Mo., 5; Polish

Connie May Peddle a Star.

CONNIE MACK already is showing symptoms of distress and turning over in his mind which one of his remaining stars he will put on the block, should fans continue to stay away in large numbers.

CONNIE MACK.

"We can't go on losing money," Mack told a reporter. "And if we do lose this season it means only one thing—sell a player.

"I would hate to lose any more of my stars, but if we don't take in the money what else is there to do?"

And so, having lost through rain many opportunities for good crowds during the current season, whether Mack puts Jimmy Foxx on the block later on is more or less up to the team's good luck on its Western trip.

In the meantime, Tom Yawkey will be fumbling with his checkbook waiting for the good news.

Can't Keep Him Down.

"WHAT do you think of my team now?" asked Rogers Hornsby, home from an eventful road trip which saw a big shake-up in the personnel of the club, including the loss of the club's ace pitchers—Newsom and Blaeholder.

We intimated that if given a good stiff shake, the outfit might fall to pieces. "Very seldom a team goes anywhere without pitchers and you haven't any stars—only a few 50—50 throwers," we added.

"That's where you're all wet," was the retort.

"The new pitchers we got will win as many games as those we let go and they're younger," he said. "If I can pick up another as good as Cain or Van Atta, I'll be as strong in pitching as I could reasonably expect to be. Nobody is letting go of aces even for a price."

Well, we still stand on the same platform—you can't win without pitching. The two pitchers Hornsby commends have only so-so reputations. The one he hopes to get can't be classified. Those he has—well, let their records speak for them.

The Brighter Side.

ON the other hand, Hornsby has some very good men in his squad. West needs no mention. Then there's Hemsley—a fine, hustling, hard-hitting young catcher, one of the best. Jack Burns is coming to life at bat and when Jack hits, he is top high in the first base class.

The outfield shapes up well. Besides West, Hornsby has Solters, Coleman, Pepper and Bell—not

HELEN JACOBS FAILS FOR FIFTH TIME IN FRANCE

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 1.—For the fifth successive year, Helen Jacobs failed today to win the French hard court tennis championship. Her defeat surprised experts.

The American champion was eliminated by Mme. Sven Sperling of Denmark in a semi-final match, 7—5, 6—3. Mme. Rene Mathieu of France won the other final bracket by overthrowing the defending titleholder, Margaret Scriven, of England, 8—6, 6—1.

Baron Gottfried Von Cramm of Germany, seeking to retain the men's crown he won a year ago, qualified for the final by ousting H. W. (Bunny) Austin of England, 6—2, 5—7, 6—1, 5—7, 6—0. His opponent in tomorrow's championship round will be Fred Perry, British ace, who conquered Jack Crawford of Australia, 6—3, 8—6, 6—3.

Miss Jacobs took the first four games, then ran into a spell of wildness. Mme. Sperling squared the match at 5—5 and reeled off the next two games for the set. In the second set her drop shots, carrying plenty of topspin, forced Miss Jacobs into many errors.

In the final game Mme. Sperling finally crashed through the American's defense after being at set point seven times.

Mme. Sperling learned her tennis in Germany as Hilda Krahwinkel.

AL BROWN LOSES BANTAM TITLE TO SPANISH BOXER

By the Associated Press.

VALENCIA, Spain, June 1. — The Spaniard Sanchili, weighing 117¼, tonight won the world bantamweight championship, defeating Al Brown, 117¾, of Panama, in a 15-round bout in a bull ring.

Sanchili fought an aggressive battle, continually boring in, and general opinion conceded him 13 of the 15 rounds. Brown was bleeding and battered in the closing chapters. It was the second time the Spaniard had taken Brown's measure.

Rhem Sent to Minors.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 1.—President Jack Corbett of the Syracuse Chiefs, International League, announced tonight that Bob Brown, who today won the only game he pitched for the Chiefs, is to go back to the Boston Braves in exchange for Flint Rhem, veteran right-hander.

Babe Didrikson Turns Pro in Golf

CHICAGO, June 1.

MILDRED "BABE" DIDRIKSON, world famed Texas girl who can do most anything well in the line of sports, today announced she had turned professional in the women's golf world.

Miss Didrikson decided to turn her golfing genius into a business affair after she had failed on several occasions to get the U. S. G. A. to permit her to continue as an amateur.

While photographers crowded around and a host of reporters interviewed the famous woman athlete, she signed a contract with a Chicago concern to permit the use of her name on golf clubs, golf balls and many other lines of sporting goods.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1. — Sid Brews, invading golf ace from South Africa, today clinched victory in the Philadelphia P. G. A. invitation tournament by posting a final-round card of 71 for a 54-hole total of 213.

Brown Vaults to a Record as Trojans Win College Meet

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 1.—Southern California's all conquering Trojans fulfilled expectations today by romping off with the blue ribbon Eastern track and field team prize, for the seventh time in 10 years, but the hero of one of the most thrilling meets held in the 59-year history of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. was a lanky son of Yale, Keith Brown of Chicago.

Wearing the Blue in competition for the last time in his brilliant varsity career, Brown hoisted himself to world record heights by clearing the dizzy altitude of 14 feet 5⅛ inches in the pole vault. The black and white striped bar quivered perilously for a few seconds but stayed in place as Brown picked himself up from the sandpit, then amazed the small crowd of onlookers by essaying three futile tries with the bar raised to 14 feet 7 inches.

Brown's performance surpassed the world record of 14 feet 4⅜ inches, made by Bill Graber of Southern California in the 1932

Beaverdam, a strong factor most of the way, weakened after getting to the front. Summithill was done early. Went 4:36 at 4, 2-1-5. Time 2:04.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Paul Dean and "Fidgety" Phil Collins held the Cubs to four runs in 21 innings this afternoon, and the Cardinals, showing a stubborn defense and a timely, if not devastating attack, lopped a full game off the New York Giants' lead and dropped Charley Grimm's team to fourth place by taking both ends of a doubleheader, 4 to 3 and 4 to 1, the first game going 12 frames.

The two triumphs ran the Redbird winning streak to five in a row, the longest of the season for the World Champions, and gave the Chicago club a three-game losing string to worry them.

Paul Dean Starts Winning Rally.

Paul Dean racked up his fifth victory of the season in the first contest, a hectic struggle in which the score was tied three times, once by the Cubs as late as the tenth inning, only to have the Redbirds make away with the decision to the disappointment of Wrigley Field's largest crowd of the year, announced as 20,693 cash customers. Paul helped materially in the triumph by starting the twelfth inning with a double and sprinting home from third on a comparatively short fly to center field.

Frisch's Strategy Succeeds.

The big moment of this game and the turning point of the afternoon, was the eleventh inning when Galan tripled to center with one out, only to have Frisch's strategy prevail. Frank ordered two intentional bases on balls in the emergency to fill the bases and Gabby Hartnett, who previously had driven two runners home with a four-bagger and a single, obligingly bounced into a double play. After that the Chicago morale sagged and the second game was won without the champions scoring an earned run.

One Card Run on Four Hits.

Hartnett produced the first run of the opening game by hitting over the left field wall in the second inning and over-zealous base running prevented the Cards from taking a commanding lead in the fourth. Martin led with a single to right and was out trying for third on Rothrock's one bagger to left, Rothrock taking second on the play for Pepper. Frisch's pop fly fell in right for a single, moving Rothrock to third and he scored when Medwick singled to center for the fourth straight hit. That was all the safeties produced, however, as Collins lined to Cuyler and Delancey flied to Klein.

Moore walked to start the fifth, advanced on an infield out and Martin's infield hit and scored on Rothrock's double to right, to put the Cards ahead, 2 to 1.

This lead survived until the seventh when Hack led with a double to right, took third on a passed

Martin Hits Safely in 21st Straight Game

CHICAGO, June 1.

"PEPPER" MARTIN, the "Wild Horse of the Osage," hit safely in both games of this afternoon's doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs to run his string of safe hitting to 21 consecutive games.

In the first game Martin didn't get his hit until the fourth inning, but he made his string of 21 sure by driving out a single to open the second game.

By James M. Gould.

Rogers Hornsby yesterday afternoon gave 3500 fans, including a few hundred women guests, a chance to decide for themselves whether his recent deals while the Browns wer in th East, had producd more power for his team. After looking over Ed Coleman in one game and Julius Solters in two, fans unanimously decided that the Rajah was right in his claim that "those two guys can hit."

In the first game, Coleman hit 1.000 with three safeties in three times up. In the two games, Solters was up eight times and made four hits, including a homer, a double and two singles, for an average of .500.

These hits, while excellent evidence for Hornsby's case, couldn't bring a double victory over the Cleveland Indians, for, after the Browns had won the opener, 7 to 3, with Andrews credited with the decision after relieving Coffman, Walter Stewart, former Brownie, outpitched Fay Thomas in the nightcap to take a 4-2 verdict.

Solters Hits Homer.

There were no homers in the first game, but, beside that hit by Solters in the second game, his first in a St. Louis uniform, Earl Averill, one of the most persistent jinxes a St. Louis team ever had, hit two. Both times the bases were unoccupied.

The first game was a Donnybrook, with the Indians getting 13 hits, which they were unable to weave into more than three runs, two in the second and one in the fifth. The Browns, with only 10 blows, scored two in each of the first, third and fourth innings and one in the second. Cleveland used four pitchers, Pearson, Lloyd Brown, Lee and Winegarner, with Pearson being charged with the defeat.

In the second game, Walter Stewart was unhittable except in the first when Solters got his homer, and in the seventh when Bejma doubled and Bell, pinch-hitting, singled him home. Thomas, for the Browns, pitched creditably, but Averill's homers and timely hits by Trosky and Hale cost him the decision. Coffman, who started the first game, pitched two innings in finishing up the second.

Winning the first, the Browns were enabled to go into double figures in the victory column, as it was their tenth of the year. Also, it was their fourth "bracket" in their last seven games.

Andrews Stars in Relief Role.

Had they followed precedent, the Browns would have "played dead" before the Cleveland pitchers. Instead, they used up two in four innings, hammering Pearson for five hits and as many runs in less than three frames and gathering two more on three hits off Lloyd Brown in the fourth. Burnett, West and Coleman were prominent hitters when safeties meant runs.

The Indians were harsh in their treatment of Coffman and drove him out in the second, when three hits, combined with errors by Burns and Burnett, gave them two runs. Andrews relieved and they knicked him for a run in the fifth, although it took three hits to push it around.

Lee, like Brown, a southpaw, faced the Browns in the fifth and held them through the seventh, after which he retired in favor of right-hander Winegarner. The Indians hit Andrews once in a while after the fifth but were unable to score.

Passed Ball Helps Indians.

A passed ball by Heath helped the Indians to start the second game with a run in the first frame. Vosmik had singled with one down and, after Averill had struck out, was on second following the catcher's slip. Trosky's single put him over. In the last half, Solters tied it up with his homer, but Hale's double after two singles added one to the Cleveland total in the third. In the fifth, with nobody on, Averill hit to the flagpole. He was justly awarded a homer when, in fielding the relay, Bejma slipped on the wet outfield and missed connection with the ball. Fine catches followed by West and Pepper to save Thomas more trouble.

Knickerbocker began the seventh with a single and Vosmik hit into a double play. This was fortunate for Averill hit the roof of the pavilion for a second homer. Thomas then walked Trosky and Hale but Campbell obliged with a fly to West.

After being shut out for five innings, the Browns scored a second run in the last half. With two out, Bejma doubled to right-center and scored when Bell, batting for Strange, sent a single to left. Hemsley batted for Thomas to no avail and Coffman, who started No. 1, finished up No. 2.

Brownie Notes.

THE new American League rule forbidding Sunday doubleheaders before June 15 made it impossible to schedule one for today even though there are two more postponements to be played off here with the Indians.

Brownie pitching choices for the Sunday game are Van Atta or Walkup. That is, they are possibilities; with the Hornsby pitching corps, there are no certainties. Harder is due for Cleveland.

The start of the first game was delayed 25 minutes so that the field, muddied by morning rains, could be put in shape.

About 3500 fans, including a few hundred women guests, saw the Browns' home-coming.

Manager Hornsby was in uniform for the first time since the New York series.

Both Solters and Coleman singled their first times up in "home" St. Louis uniforms.

Hornsby didn't go along very far with Coffman. He derricked him with Averill coming up and two out in the second inning of the opener and Andrews got the dangerous Clevelander on a line-drive to Burns.

Hornsby gave Coleman a chance to rest and started Pepper in right field in the second game. The Browns are probably the only team in the league to have inter-changeable "clean-up" men.

For several seasons, the Indians didn't have a left-handed pitcher. Yesterday, they used three—Lloyd Brown, Lee and Stewart—against the Browns.

Solters' hit in the opening inning of No. 2 was a homer right from the bat. It landed in the left-field seats where, yesterday, Julius made a flock of friends by his hitting.

In the fourth inning of the afterpiece, Knickerbocker almost knocked Strange down with a line-drive but "Smoothie" held to the ball.

Burns misplaced two well-hit line-drives when he sent one straight to Campbell in the second inning of the second game and one just as straight to Knickerbocker in the fourth.

Hole in One.

Tom Ramack, a member of the Forest Park Golf Club, shot a hole in one recently on No. 4 of the nine-hole course. The yardage on No. 4 is 115. Rumack was playing in a foursome with Erving Hitt, William H. Jones Jr. and Baron Levy.

INTRODUCING: Mr. Coleman, Mr. Solters, Mr. Van Atta and Mr. Cain

GRAND SLAM WINS PRAIRIE STATE STAKE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 1.—Grand Slam, juvenile son of Chance Play, carrying the silks of the Bomar Stable of Detroit, and packing top weight of 122 pounds, conquered a crack band of 15 two-year-olds to capture the first important two-year-old race in the West this season at Washington Park today.

Grand Slam won the Prairie State Stakes, with a gross value of $7980, before a crowd of 15,000 spectators. The winner, ridden by Jockey Edgar Legere, who came on especially to ride the colt, paid $7.82 to win, $6.10 to place and $3.50 to show. He sprinted the five and one-half furlongs in the ordinary time of 1:07, but was never extended to win. Pursuing the winner at the finish was Miss Diavolo, an extreme outsider in the wagering, which paid $35.46 to place and $13.80 to show.

Both Score in Tenth.

The score remained tied then until the tenth when Rothrock walked and scored after two were out on Medwick's double to right, only to have the Bruins tie it up again in their half. Klein singled with one out and Stainback, running for Chuck, took third on Cavarretta's single to right and scored when Cuyler beat out a teasing bounder on the third base side of the pitcher's box.

When Galan hit his triple to center with one out in the eleventh, the stands jeered as Paul walked Herman and Hack to set the stage for the slow moving Hartnett, but when Gabby bounced sharply to Frisch, and Durocher pivoted for the double play, the customers had to admit that Frisch hadn't gone to the McGraw school for nothing.

The younger Dean's double, starting the twelfth, was a drive down the right foul line, after he had fanned twice and popped up twice on previous trips to the plate. Martin flied to Galan and Gonzales stopped Paul at third on Rothrock's line single to center, but when Frisch flied to Cuyler, Mike sent Paul home and he made it without having to slide.

Cub Infield Goes to Pieces.

Martin started the second game with a single to right and then the Cub infield went to pieces. Rothrock bunted and both runners were safe when Lee threw wild to second. Frisch also bunted and Lee's throw had Martin forced at third, but Hack dropped the ball as the Wild Horse charged into the bag and the bases were filled with nobody out.

Medwick lined a single to left, scoring Martin and Rothrock and when Galan picked up the ball and then dropped it as he was trying to throw, Frisch reached third and Medwick second. Lee had the jitters by this time and passes to Rip Collins and Davis forced a run over the plate.

The three runs would have been more than Phil Collins needed, but the Cards added a fourth that was unearned in the sixth. Davis singled to right and when Moore singled to the same field and Klein fumbled, Davis reached third and Moore second. The runners held their bases on Durocher's short fly to Galan, but when Phil Collins flied to Cuyler in short center, Davis raced home and was safe when Hartnett dropped the ball after tagging the Cardinal catcher.

Fidgety Phil had a shutout until the eighth inning, when with two out, Hack and Hartnett singled and Frisch missed Klein's grounder.

It was Fidgety Phil's second start, his second victory, and his first complete game. He seemed to be throwing what the trade calls a "nothing ball," but it was too much for the Cubs, who went through contortions of slugging, but wound up hitting only pop flies and easily handled grounders.

RED BIRD NOTES

BILL WALKER, who has won five and lost one, will face the Cubs tomorrow, with Tex Carleton likely to pitch for Chicago.

The double-header opening the series, the first of the year at Wrigley Field, attracted the Cubs' largest at-home crowd of the season, announced as 20,693 paid.

There was a long argument over a trick double play in the fourth inning of the second game. After Durocher singled, Phil Collins, trying to sacrifice, popped to Lee, who, instead of dropping the ball, kept it in his hand, grounding it with a quick motion. He then threw to Jurges, who relayed to Cavarretta, and the umpires sustained the crude trickery and called it a double play, though finally they explained that they ruled Lee had held the ball and that Durocher had been doubled off first.

Medwick, who drove two runs over the plate with a single in the first inning, was hit by a pitched ball the next time he went to bat, a palpable bean ball hitting him on the right shoulder blade, but nobody wanted to fight about it.

PITTSBURGH ELEVEN MEETS FALL RIVER IN AMATEUR SOCCER FINAL

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 1.—Fall River's astonishing young soccer club, the All-Americans, conquerors of the Philadelphia Germans last Sunday, oppose the Riehls of this city here tomorrow in the final of the National Amateur Cup Competition. The Riehls survived as Western champions by defeating leading clubs in this district and then cleaning up on Cleveland and Chicago.

SANTAN WINS ST. CLAIR STAKES AT DETROIT

By the Associated Press.

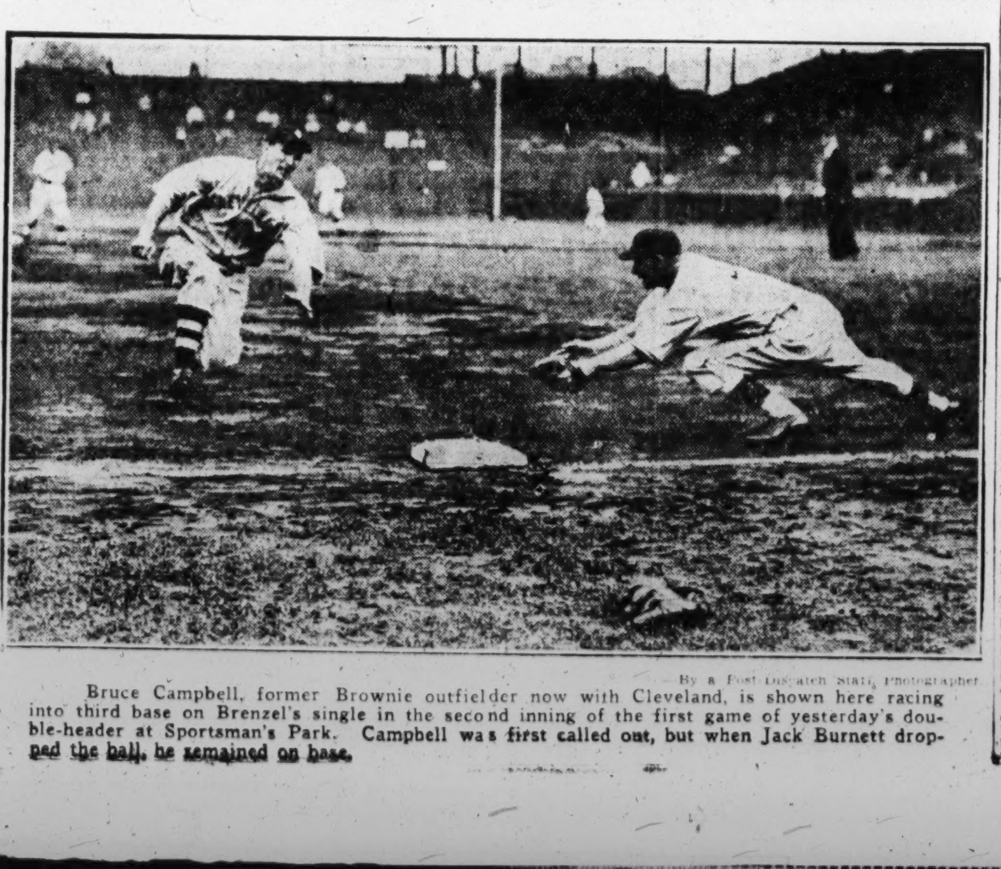
Campbell Is Coming! Grab That Ball, Jack! But—



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

GROVE BLANKS YANKEES, 6-0; GOMEZ TRIMS RED SOX, 4-2

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 1.—A pair of famous left-handed pitchers hit the comeback trail today and as a result the Yankees and Red Sox divided a doubleheader. Lefty Grove pitched a six-hit shutout to give Boston the opened while Lefty Gomez elbowed the Yanks to a 4 to 2 triumph in the afterpiece.

The division of honors enabled the Yanks to retain the American League lead by a one-game margin over the second-place Chicago White Sox. A crowd of 32,424 cash customers turned out for the bargain bill.

yet "arrived" as aces—but all verging on it.

The infield still remains a question mark outside of Burns. Burnett, who should be a good hitter, hasn't shone in the field, Clift, victim of a bad arm, has been below par all season, Strange, a fine fielder, is of dubious hitting power. Bejma, the lively cricket of the infield, will have to prove himself quite a man to take the place of the departed "Spinach" Melillo.

The real hope of new infield strength lies in Bejma and Burnett. Bejma is getting a regular assignment for the first time, due to Melillo's departure. Burnett is due to improve in his hitting.

And we still say it would be easier to make a Swiss watch out of hairpins than a contender out of the present Browns, even though Hornsby himself be the pilot.

Boy, Pass the Crying Towel.

A WRITER refers to participants in yesterday's marathon as "those plodding gluttons for punishment who torture themselves for 26 miles," etc. How pitiful!

That view dates back 30 years, when medical opinion was horrified at the idea of men abusing nature in a race more than 26 miles long, requiring more than two and one-half hours to complete, and when runners were accompanied on bicycles, each and every one attended by solicitous advisers with restoratives in case of collapse.

Today the view that participants in a race are being punished in proportion to the distance they travel is laughed at. In fact, if any form of running is conducive to athletic longevity it is this very same marathon running.

Athletic history is filled with names of famous marathon men who continued to be successful contenders long after the age when sprinters and middle-distance men were through.

Clarence De Mar, in his forties, is still rated a national marathon factor. Bill Kennedy, a St. Louis product, who moved to Portchester, N. Y., is still competing and he'll never see 50 again. Joie Ray took up marathon running after the half-mile and mile had worn him out. Joe Forshaw, an Olympic star and for years a participant in marathon races, is still a pretty fair athlete, although in his fifties.

The sprints are the damaging races as they speed up far beyond normal all the muscular and heart activities. The methodical progress of the distance runner, without extreme pressure, seems to be the easiest on the system. It is almost a demonstrable fact the longer the race, the less strain on the athlete.

Battle of the Helens.

DESPITE all her tuning up abroad, Helen Jacobs was beaten in the semifinal of the French hardcourt tourney. Perhaps she has overestimated the improvement she spoke of in a recent interview, when discussing her chance against Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, at Wimbledon.

Her conqueror was the German girl, Hilda Sperling, who hardly figures to be that good. Perhaps Miss Jacobs is not at her best on the en-tout-cas surface and prefers turf.

However, she still will have an enormous advantage over her prospective rival, Mrs. Moody, if and when they meet at Wimbledon.

Mrs. Moody has had only a very few weeks of private workouts as compared to months of competitive tennis by Miss Jacobs. There seems hardly a remote chance that Mrs. Moody can remove the rust of two years' idleness and return to top form in time to give her best.

BROWN OF YALE VAULTS TO RECORD AS TROJANS WIN MEET

SO. CALIFORNIA ROLLS UP HUGE POINT TOTAL IN WINNING CROWN

Olympic tryouts at Palo Alto, Cal. This spring Graber was credited with clearing 14 feet 5⅝ inches, but I. C. A. A. A. A. officials said today it had been established the take-off for this achievement, at Santa Barbara, was faulty and no recognition would be sought for it.

Wipes Out Graber's Mark.

Brown also wiped out Graber's former I. C. A. A. A. A. record of 14 feet ½ inch, made at Philadelphia in 1931, and gained revenge from one of the few athletes who have ever beaten him in competition. Emile Dubiel of Harvard, who upset Brown in the "Big Seven" championships at Princeton three weeks ago, was tied for second place with two Southern Californians, Earle Meadows and Bill Sefton, at 13 feet 9½ inches.

Four record-smashing performances were registered altogether, in the finals, marked by a series of upsets, including the dramatic break-down of Columbia's Ben Johnson while leading in the 100-meters dash. Johnson, Eastern favorite in both sprints, staggered across the finish in sixth place after pulling a muscle in his right leg and withdrew from the 200 meters. He first was awarded fifth place but motion pictures showed him sixth.

Rapidly closing in on Johnson at the time of his mishap, George Anderson of California flashed through to win the 100 in 10.7 but was beaten in record-breaking time in the 200-meter final by Foy Draper of Southern California, whose time of 20.8 seconds was disallowed because of the wind.

Draper had clipped a tenth of a second off the 200-meter dash record, with a 21-second performance in the semifinals, and this was officially accepted. His Trojan teammate, Phil Cope, captured the 110-meter high hurdles final in the new meet record time of 14.5 seconds, beating out the defending titleholder, Bowdoin's Phil Good, who stumbled over the last barrier while making a great closing bid.

The remaining meet record went to the credit of a Cornell sophomore, Hamilton Hucker of Buffalo, N. Y. Forced to run an extra semifinal heat in the 200-meter low hurdles to qualify, Hucker stepped it off in 23.2 seconds for a new I. C. A. A. A. A. mark and then came back to capture the final in 23.3 seconds, beating three Far Western timber toppers.

East Wins 8 Firsts.

Outclassed in the team competition, the Eastern contingent salvaged prestige by sharing the record-breaking honors and rallying its forces to capture eight of the 15 individual championships, with Brown striking off the decisive gesture in the closing event. Otherwise the meet was a holiday for the Westerners as Southern California piled up the tremendous winning total of 51 points and the University of California landing second place easily with 27½ points.

Columbia lost its single point and Southern California's winning total was reduced from 52 to 51 tonight when officials viewed slow-motion pictures of the 100-meters dash and 800-meters run finals.

While upsets ruined the scoring chances of the favored Eastern teams, Bates College of Maine came through unexpectedly to take third place with 12 points, thanks to the exploits of two young stalwarts in two field events. Anton Kishon topped his teammate, Larry Johnson, as they finished 1-2 in the hammer throw and also landed third place in the discus.

Southern California, rolling up points with monotonous ease, won four first places and tallied in 11 events. The Trojans sent 20 athletes into the 15 finals and 17 of them contributed points to the victorious total without attempting to double up in a single event. The champions collected 31 points in the track events and 21 in the field as they gave one of the finest all-round team performances on record. They were 10 points short of their all-time record "high" of 62¾ made in 1932, but today's figure was the third highest in I. C. A. A. A. A. history.

Trojans' Great Record.

Southern California won the meet previously in 1925-26, came back to capture four titles in a row in 1930-33, but did not defend the championship last year. Mostly sophomores, Dean Cromwell's present aggregation has had an all-conquering season and will be favored to take the National Collegiate A. A. title at Berkeley, Cal., three weeks hence.

The only Trojans who failed to get into the point column were Strother in the low hurdles, Cassin in the 400-meter run and Cartwright in the 800. The first place winners were Al Olson in the broad jump, Ken Carpenter in the discus, Phil Cope in the high hurdles and Foy Draper in the 200-meter dash.

DALLAS SOFTBALL TEAM DEFEATED

The Katy Flyers, National softball league pace-setters, staged a five-run rally in the eighth frame to give the Katy Bluebonnets of Dallas, Tex., their first defeat of the season, 6 to 2, last night at the National Softball Park. Morris Dudley toiled on the mound for the losers with Clyde Kahlert hurling for the winners.

DUTRA BEATS PAR ON FIRST NINE AT OAKMONT

PITTSBURGH, June 1.—Big Olin Dutra, who says he's sick but doesn't look it, arrived today from Detroit and played a practice round at Oakmont Country Club where he is to defend his National Open golf title next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The Californian took 35 strokes on the first nine, two under par, but quit tabbing on the way home after plunking a few into the cavernous traps and experimenting with recovery shots.

"I landed here with two strikes on myself," he said. "I want to say right now that when someone quoted me as saying 283 would win, I was talking about the Augusta, Ga., open—not here.

"This is the most wonderful golf course I've ever seen. The fairways are velvety and the fast greens hold the line but the ball must hit the center of that cup."

Dutra added that he did not think the traps were fair because the course was "tough enough without raking the sand." He played around with George Von Elm, former National Amateur champion; Jimmy Thomson, one of the world's longest drivers, and Jimmy Hines.

Tommy Armour, the "Black Scot" who won the 1927 open at Oakmont, played around with MacDonald Smith, Ted Luther of Youngstown, and Emil Loeffler, the local pro. Armour posted a 78, six over par, Luther 77 and Smith and Loeffler 79s.

Roland MacKenzie, former amateur and now professional at the Congressional Club in Washington, turned in the best score of the day, a 70.

Gene Sarazen is expected to report tomorrow and the foreign delegation of six Japanese players, headed by Tommy Miyo-Motto, and Sidney Brews, the South African, are due Monday.

SPORT SALAD

No Contest.

THOUGH Stella Walsh was longing for
A chance to even up the score
With Fulton's youthful sprinter,
Because unable to compete
She didn't wipe out the defeat
That she sustained last winter.

She said the time that Helen won,
Her youthful rival beat the gun,
And starting blocks was using;
In view of which it's hard to see
Why she declined to run as she Stood little chance of losing.

However, be it as it may,
The Polish flyer stayed away
From little old St. Louie,
Where she had met with a defeat
So at the Ozark Women's meet
Another grudge went blooie.

Who's Stella?

Promoter. Miss Walsh, I want you to come over and meet Miss Stephens. She is very anxious to meet you.

Stella. Really, you'll have to excuse me. I meet so many people.

We'd like to say something about the guy who went south with the office dictionary, but we can't find words to condemn an act like that.

K. M. Landis, Judge of the Court of Appeals, remanded the Johnson-Kamm case back to the lower court on the ground that they were both good Indians. Kamm asked for and was given his unconditional release and everything will be serene until the next uprising.

Ask Uncle Dudley.

Dear Uncle Dudley.—Why does the batter so frequently step out of the box and rub dirt in his hands?—Ann Teater.

He does it to confuse the pitcher, who is trying to confuse the batter by dilatory tactics. It is all very confusing.—U. D.

There are two coaches who apparently never have to worry about their jobs. Bob Zuppke of Illinois and Ned Brant at Carter.

Rogers Hornsby concluded that when a baseball team is down as far as it can go, the logical thing to do is shake them up. It was so ordered.

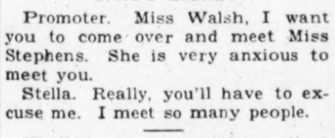
George Blaeholder says he got a break when the Browns traded him to the Athletics. The Browns are not kicking either.

"Rickey Cites Discipline as Factor."

A few good pitchers don't hurt, either.

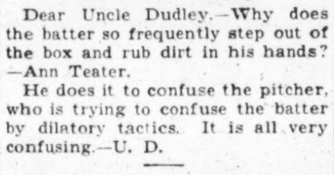
A report comes from the East that Jimmy Londos is nearing the end of his reign. And we hope that Jupiter Pluvius is nearing the end of his.

Decoration day was also red letter day for the Browns. It marked the occasion of their first stolen base of the season. Demonstrating that there is nothing those boys can't do.



However, it goes without saying that one of the essentials of base stealing is to get on base. Now that they have acquired the knack of getting on base we look for further depredations along those lines.

Dizzy Dean, who has tried nearly every way there is for getting hurt, discovered a new one the other day. He slammed the door on his pitching thumb. It gave Diz a chance to try out a new delivery on Cincinnati. He calls it the thumbscrew ball.



Veterans Win From Youngsters In Cup Practice

By the Associated Press.

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 1.—The five-man American Davis Cup team, on which Uncle Sam is pinning his hopes of wresting the world's tennis supremacy from Great Britain, completed its intensive training on home soil today and began to break camp preparatory to embarking for England next Wednesday.

The final workouts were given over to a three-day domestic cup series with the veterans Wilmer Allison of Austin, Texas; Sidney B. Wood Jr. of New York, and Johnny Van Ryn, Philadelphia, lined up against the team's freshmen, Gene Mako and J. Donald Budge of California and Hans Nusslein, professional champion and coach of the amateur internationalists.

The series, played in typical Davis Cup fashion of four singles and one doubles match, resulted in a 3 to 2 victory for the "oldsters." Allison and Wood, ranked No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, in this country, scored victories over Budge. Van Ryn and Allison swamped Budge and Mako in doubles, and Nusslein accounted for both Ward and Allison in singles exhibitions.

BRADLEY'S BLACK HELEN, BLOODROOT ONE-TWO IN 'OAKS'

WRIGHT EASES UP TO ENABLE HELEN TO NOSE OUT STABLEMATE

BELMONT PARK, June 1.—Black Helen of the Ed Bradley Stable today won the nineteenth running of the Coaching Club American Oaks, mile and three-furlong filly classic for three year-olds, barely nosing out Bloodroot, another Bradley horse, for top money.

The finish was so close that hardly any of the crowd of 12,000 knew which horse had won the race until Black Helen's number was hoisted.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Good Gamble, recent winner of the Acorn Stakes, was a bang up third, a scant half-length away, with Walter M. Jeffords' Judy O'Grady Daylight in fourth position. There were 13 crack lassies in the field.

Black Helen, ridden by Don Meade, covered the distance in 2:18 4-5, to pull down $7750 for Col. Bradley, while Bloodroot added another $1000 to that sum.

Vicaress led the field by a narrow margin for nearly six furlongs with the favorites pretty well bunched. It looked like any horse's race until they had left the back stretch. Vicaress then dropped back as Bloodroot shot to the front with Black Helen in third place, just headed by Good Gamble. The trio drew away from the pack until Meade pulled the whip on his little horse and she romped in as Jockey Wright did a masterly job of pulling Bloodroot up and into second position. Col. Bradley had favored Black Helen to win.

TWO ONE-HIT GAMES AND A 25-0 SCORE

Two one-hit games featured the play at two Sisler softball parks last night. In the girls' opener at South Side, Marie Berger, hurler for the White Lines, allowed but one hit in defeating the Barons, 8 to 0. At Maplewood Athletic Park, Miss Schlueter, pitching for the Wolfs, allowed one hit in beating the Maplewood Business Men's girls' team, 25 to 0. Both games at Sisler North Side Park were rained out last night.

PAT DENGIS, A WELSHMAN, WINS NATIONAL A.A.U. 26-MILE RACE

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Racing the last 10 miles with a darting pain in his side, Pat Dengis of Baltimore, a comparative novice at distance running, today won the National A. A. U. marathon championship by a 200-yard margin in 2 hours, 53 minutes and 53 seconds. The distance was 26 miles, 385 yards.

The 32-year-old toolmaker, who took up the marathon route only three years ago, grabbed the lead some 11 miles from the Mount Vernon (Va.) starting point and held it all the way along the memorial highway, across the Potomac, around the capitol and on to the zero milestone finish behind the White House.

Hugo Kauppinen, a 42-year-old German carpenter who has been running the marathon distance for more than a decade, was second, pulling up from the ruck in the last eight miles to pass many of the favored marathoners. His time was 2:55:27.

Mel Porter of New York crossed the line four minutes after Kauppinen and was followed closely by Dave Komonen, the Sudbury, Ontario, mine carpenter, who won the race in 1933 and 1934. Komonen drew from his weary legs a brief spurt in the last few yards to nose out Jimmy Bartlett of Oshowa, Canada.

Dengis, a lank, slender native of Wales, using an even, smooth stride, joined the front group as they plodded away from the 10-mile pole. He never was challenged from the 20-mile mark to the finish. So badly did the stitch in his side hurt, however, that he alternated between walking and running the last five miles.

"Every time I started running again, the pain nearly killed me," he said. "It was the hardest race I've ever run. The sun was terrific."

The first 20 finishers, their clubs, home towns and times follow:

1st. Pat Dengis, Baltimore, 2.53.53.

TEAROUT WINS LATONIA DERBY; WHISKOLO 2ND

By the Associated Press.

LATONIA, Ky., June 1.—Turning on the power in the final sixteenth, Tearout of D. B. Midkiff's stable took the fifty-third running of the Latonia Derby handily here today.

The Mauler and Gillie, the favorite, were left almost at a standstill in the closing drive after leading most of the way. In their place, Whiskolo, second to Gillie in the Santa Anita Derby, took second a length behind the flying Tearout, beating out Beaver Dam by a nose.

Scarp, 50 to 1 shot, took fourth, with Gillie fifth, three lengths back.

Victory brought Tearout's owner $12,680, and Tearout paid $21.20 for $2.

For a time it seemed that The Mauler and Gillie would have matters all their own way in the first mile-and-a-quarter Latonia Derby. First away, The Mauler held the lead into the back stretch, with Gillie only a length or so behind, and McCarthy and Summit Hill trailing by three more.

But as the horses reached the far turn the rear ranks began to close in rapidly. They were well bunched as they struck the home stretch, with The Mauler still in front but Gillie struggling to hold second.

Then Tearout shot to the fore in a rousing finish to win handily as Whiskolo drove in to nip Beaver Dam, which had sneaked up along the rail.

Last until the far turn, Scarp came in with a burst, too, to put the weary Gillie and The Mauler definitely out of things.

It was the first major victory for Tearout, and the third derby in which Whiskolo has placed. He was second to Gillie in the Santa Anita and third in the Kentucky.

The time was 2:04 over a fast track, with the race at a mile-and-a-quarter as against the mile-and-a-half of all previous Latonia Derbies.

New Conservation Measure Helpful.

Although the new conservation department measure which was passed in the closing hours of the Legislature early this week did not include all of the changes in Missouri's conservation set-up as originally proposed, those favoring the plan believe a definite gain was made through the bill's passage.

The act as finally passed by both branches of the Legislature creates a Department of Conservation to replace the present Game and Fish Department. Under the new law the title of department executive, now Wilbur Buford of Ellington, will be changed from Game and Fish Commissioner to Conservation Commissioner of Missouri. The former title has been used since 1904.

The biggest break sportsmen received out of the change is the amendment to the original bill earmarking "20 per cent of the revenue of the department for the propagation and protection of game in Missouri."

The present regulation providing for 25 per cent of the revenue to be used for the operation and purchase of State parks remains unchanged, and 20 per cent for purchase and operation of fish hatcheries. This totals 45 per cent of the department's revenue being earmarked for special purposes.

As originally introduced, and passed by the House, the bill would have given the commissioner power over the declaration of open and closed seasons on fish and game and the drafting of regulations. This provision, however, was removed by the Senate.

Groups favoring the commission form of administration for the conservation department say their desires have not yet been realized and they will continue to advocate a bi-partisan set-up. They say, however, that the change elevates the status of the department and is a step toward even greater recognition of the importance of conservation in Missouri.

High Water Halted Anglers.

When the State Game and Fish Department's weekly fishing condition report was resumed this week, just before the 1935 fishing season opened Decoration day, it was able to contain little of interest to anglers because of floods prevalent throughout the State.

The information in the reports, gathered through game wardens and others in close touch with actual conditions on streams and lakes, are furnished free by the department to daily newspapers, radio stations and sporting goods houses.

The reports will be continued throughout the summer months, E. L. Preston, publicity director of the department, said this week.

Now in season in Missouri are all game fish excepting channel catfish. Squirrels also may be killed at this time.

Floods Destroy Fish.

Flood waters continue to cause considerable damage to fishing places over the State and show prospects of furnishing plenty of work for the State's fish rescue crew. The crew, operating under the direction of Dr. G. B. Herndon, chief of hatcheries for the State Game and Fish Department, has been at work in Southeast Missouri for several weeks, but as the Central Missouri streams and the lower part of the Missouri River have all been up and in some instances out of their banks it is expected receding waters will find many fish stranded in fields and sloughs that will dry during the summer months.

At the Lake of the Ozarks, where water has been pouring through the spillways on the great dam there at the rate of 100,000 cubic feet a second for many days, the toll of fish life is believed to be heavy. Observers say they have seen scores of big fish hurled through great overflows many feet below to the concrete aprons down stream from the dam.

Illegal seiners and others, some of whom "hand-fish" or use pitchforks and scythes to gig fish stranded in fields adjacent to flooded streams, are also believed to be taking toll of the fish life. Game wardens have been instructed to watch for all violations of this nature.

Eleven floating docks on the Lake of the Ozarks which were constructed for use at the Glaize Regional Recreational Area near Kaiser, a permit granted by the National Park Service through the U. S. War Department this week revealed. These docks will be anchored from two to 12 miles from the confluence of the Glaize arm with the lake proper above the U. S. Highway No. 54 bridge.

MISS SARA GUTH BEGINS GOLF TITLE DEFENSE TOMORROW

WOMEN'S EVENT AT ALGONQUIN USHERS IN BUSY LINKS SEASON

By W. J. McGoogan.

Sara Louise Guth, schoolgirl, who won the women's golf championship of the St. Louis District last year in the first tournament which she entered, will defend her title in the annual event which gets under way over her home course tomorrow with an 18-hole qualifying round.

Miss Guth has been playing good golf this spring in her practice rounds, but her studies at Washington University have prevented her from competitive play. However, she will be favored to retain her crown over the well-groomed Algonquin course, although her competition likely will be stronger this year than it was last season.

Sixty-seven women filed entries in time to be paired and it is likely this number will be increased to 75 or more by the time first-tee entries are counted.

Three Former Champions.

Included in the field are three former champions—Mrs. I. S. Hynes, Westborough, from whom Miss Guth won the final match last season and with whom she is paired in the first qualifying twosome at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning; Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., St. Louis Country Club, and Mrs. Rossmore Kohn, of Norwood Hills.

Mrs. Wallace, with Miss Virginia Pep, who turned professional and has not been returned to her amateur status as yet, had the women's golf situation to themselves from 1922 to 1928. Then Mrs. Hynes won the championship, but Miss Pep recaptured the title in 1930 and Mrs. Wallace won it in 1931 and 1932 to restore the Wallace-Pep combine.

Mrs. Kohn broke through with a victory in 1933, then Miss Guth came through last season. However, Mrs. Wallace will be seeking her sixth championship while Mrs. Kohn and Mrs. Hynes will be after their second. They are rated the chief competitors of Miss Guth.

Threats From Others.

In addition there is a group of women in the field who have not been able to crash through to the championship but play well enough to win the title and their previous experience makes them first rank contenders.

Among them are Mrs. G. A. Bedell, Algonquin, who has been cracking 90 consistently in practice over her home course; Mrs. C. P. Daniels, also of Algonquin; Mrs. Laurence Schwab, Bellerive, winner of the Miami-Biltmore tournament in Florida the past winter, and a newcomer to St. Louis golf; Mrs. W. A. Ramelkamp, Norwood Hills, whose assiduous practice stamps her as a contender; Mrs. H. E. Davis, Algonquin, runner-up to Mrs. Wallace in 1932, who was unable to play because of illness last year but is back on her game now, and Mrs. R. I. Caughey, Sunset Hill, a dangerous match player who has never gone very far in the championship but has given the best of her competitors the jitters.

Match Play Tuesday.

After the qualifying round tomorrow the field will be divided into flights. The 32 low qualifiers will play for the championship with the next 16 in Class A and the next 16 in Class B. Other flights of 16 each will be added if necessary.

Match play begins Tuesday morning with a round of 18 holes each day through Friday, with the finals Saturday, the championship being at 36 holes and all other finals 18 holes.

In addition there will be the usual side competitions—driving contest, approaching and putting. Also those eliminated in the first round will go into consolation flights in each class and those eliminated in the first rounds of the consolation and non-qualifiers will play a medal tournament of 18 holes.

There will be a mixed two-ball foursome with members of the Men's District on Friday.

First Big Meet of Season.

The women's tournament ushers in the active golf season in the St. Louis District with the men's tournament the following week at Norwood Hills and the Missouri amateur at Bellerive the week after that.

Courses are in fine condition for the play due to the heavy spring rains and Algonquin's greens and fairways are in such fine shape that it would not be surprising to see a new record low set for the score necessary to qualify.

The qualifying round pairings and starting time:

9:00—Miss Sara Louise Guth, Algonquin; Mrs. I. S. Hynes, Westborough.

JIMMY SNYDER TO RACE TUESDAY AT WALSH FIELD

The Midwest's midget racing car aces not only stood off but completely overwhelmed a young regiment of highly-rated Pacific Coast stars Friday night as the Welcome Inn outdoor programs were inaugurated at Edward Walsh Stadium and immediately began preparations for a second joust with the California boys in an intersectional program which Promoter Earl Reflow has announced for next Tuesday night under the Walsh lights.

That the Far West will have to send along some more champions for this program is necessitated by the fact that Jimmy Snyder, who drove to the midway mark in the Indianapolis Speedway Thursday, will join the Midwest group here Tuesday night and promises to have on hand both his Mighty Midget and his Dreyer Special for the races.

Jimmy was all set to show up Friday but that bad shaking over the 250 or so miles of rough bricks at a century clip and the fact that he had a portion of the prize money coming to him forced him to remain over in Indianapolis for the official awarding Friday night. Harry McQuinn, another driver in Thursday's classic, hurried on to St. Louis, however, and took part in the races.

More Drivers From Coast.

With Snyder behind the wheel of a car Tuesday night, the Midwest will be represented by its five top-rated drivers. No. 1 pilot is, of course, Tony Willman, who carried his laurels well in walking off with the opening al fresco performance Friday night in his Auburn Special. Jimmy is rated second in the Midwest while the other three are Marshall Lewis, No. 3; Ted Hartley, No. 4, and Tudy Marchese No. 5.

The Far West will counter with Paul Russo, champion of Hawaii and a leading driver at Gilmore; Curley Mills, fourth rated driver in coast midget racing circles; Al Sherman, Pat Warren and Roy Richter. However, Reflow has been informed that one or two other coast drivers are headed towards St. Louis as re-inforcements and looks forward to some real competition when the whole lineup of coast and Midwest stars get together next Tuesday.

Bill Beveridge, Here, Talks Of Golf and Hot Weather, Says Eagles Will Fly Higher

Bill Beveridge, goalie for the St. Louis Eagles of the National Hockey League, drove to St. Louis from his home in Ottawa, Can., to find out if the weather here is really as hot as he had heard. And Bill thinks it is warm now!

BILL BEVERIDGE.

Puffing, fanning himself with his hat and perspiring, he had a difficult time getting his mind on hockey but when he managed to do it—between golf shots at Algonquin—he said that all the hockey news he has is he understands the Eagles will be back in St. Louis next winter with a strengthened team.

"All we need is one outstanding defense man and a forward of ability to make the club a contender," he said. "Somebody like Ebbie Goodfellow of Detroit at defense and Frank Boucher of the Rangers on the forward line and we'll go places.

"All our kids are great prospects. Bill Cowley is putting on weight this summer. He was a greatly improved player at the close of last season. Next winter he'll be good and the following season great. You know, it takes three years to make a big league hockey player.

"Kelly is an excellent prospect and he's another who will be a fine player within two more seasons."

Bill received considerable criticism for his play last season and only recently the Eagles drafted a goalie from the International League, but Bill refuses to worry.

"We have our bad nights and our good ones," he said. "Wilf Cude of the Montreal Canadiens, missed one more goal than I did, yet his team landed in the playoffs, so there you are. I think Tiny Thompson of the Boston Bruins is the greatest goalie in the league now but after all a goalie is only one-sixth of a team and you can lump a flock of them behind Thompson—one is as good as the other."

Beveridge said he and the rest of the Eagles are playing considerable golf this summer to stay in condition that some of the boys would like to have jobs but you can't buy any in Canada, that particularly a professional hockey player has a hard time getting work because employers think it would be taking a place from somebody who needs it more.

Bill's golf is good, too—he plays at the Ottawa Golf and Hunt Club regularly, a course nearly 7000 yards long and he plays in the eighties. At Algonquin he broke 90 by approximately five strokes.

His visit here is purely social, he said. He was at Indianapolis for the Memorial day automobile race and came here to see some friends before driving back home.

BOXERS IN TRAINING FOR JUNE BATTLES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 1.—Max Baer boxed eight fast rounds with sparring partners today, sharpening his timing in preparation for his title bout with Jimmy Braddock.

Baer boxed four rounds with Dynamite Jackson and two each with Eddie Haughton and Bob Fraser.

Braddock's Left.

LOCH SHELDRAKE, N. Y., June 1.—James J. Braddock, who, within 12 days, is to have his chance at the world's heavyweight championship in the meeting with Max Baer, today began leveling down to fighting weight when he scaled 197 pounds after a strenuous workout with Paul Pross, Jack McCarthy and Norman Barnett.

Pross, a 215-pound German, was almost finished by a blazing left hook to the stomach, the indication now being that Braddock hopes to use the same punch against Baer in the hope of bringing the champion's guard down for a clean shot at his jaw.

Pross doubled up with the force of the blow but managed to retain his feet. He previously had given the crowd of more than 700 quite a show by standing toe to toe with the challenger and slugging for a full minute.

Louis Scores Kayo.

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., June 1.—Joe Louis, preparing for his fight with Primo Carnera, today knocked out one sparring partner and draped two others over the ropes.

Horses and Mules.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., June 1.—The horse and mule market was moderately active the past week and there was no essential price change recorded. Receipts made a moderate total of approximainly 500 commission horses and 100 commission mules.

Broke horses looked in line with the previous week, but some shippers did not make money for the reason that they had bought them too high in the country. Dealers report a fair trade for work horses, but say buyers are reluctant to better the present price schedule.

Green horses, especially good fillies and mares, maintained a steady price level. Unbroke horses are said to be in a strong position as a result of good grass this season.

A satisfactory outlet prevailed for all of the good aged mules. Worn-out plug stuff, on the other hand, did not receive very favorable action.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $120@150; medium to good draft, $90@110; good to choice chunks, $95@125; smooth-mouthed chunks, $70@90; young farm mares, $90@115; Southern mares, $50@85; small cheap horses, $30@50.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The obituary for NRA, written in the form of an invalidating decision by the United States Supreme Court, had a deadening effect upon metals as a whole this week.

The non-ferrous group, where buoyancy had recently prevailed, turned irregular as buyers became confused and reduced commitments.

Lead was perhaps the steadiest item on the list. While one leading producer reduced prices after an earlier advance, another important factor maintained advances throughout the period.

Tin prices were ½ cent lower. World consumption in March totaled 12,685 tons, against 10,086 tons in February and 10,426 in March last year. World visible stocks at the end of April, including "buffer stock" amounted to 19,997 tons, or 16 per cent of current annual consumptive rate.

Zinc was unchanged in a rather slow market. Consumers are well fortified on early requirements, while the producing end continues tied up by the tri-state miners' strike.

Export electrolytic copper, just prior to the NRA decision, made a new high price at 8.55 cents cif European ports. A break of 45 points was followed by a partial secondary advance to 8.30 cents. The domestic situation was one of confusion, although the price held at 9 cents. Producers voted unanimously to make no change in the present status pending clarification of the situation.

Antimony was quiet and unchanged in both the domestic and Chinese markets.

WOOLS, HIDES AND PELTS

The local wool market was reviewed by the "Daily Market Reporter" as follows: "The week just closing saw wool reach its peak, at least for the moment. After reaching a top of 24c on Tuesday, a decided easiness was encountered and while prices held at that level, liberal selling was encountered and mill buyers who had been paying above St. Louis prices at country points, reduced bids drastically or withdrew from the market entirely. The unsettlement is attributed to the Supreme Court code ruling."

LACLEDE GAS REPLIES TO RECEIVERSHIP SUIT

Asks Court to Dismiss Action Brought by J. Lionberger Davis.

The Laclede Gas Light Co., answering a receivership suit filed by J. Lionberger Davis, president of the Security National Bank Savings & Trust Co., asked the Circuit Court yesterday to dismiss the suit and enjoin Davis from taking depositions under it.

The answer, filed with Circuit Judge Baron, stated that the issues raised in Davis' suit were substantially those presented in an accounting suit filed two years ago by Louis M. Monheimer, merchandising manager of the Famous-Barr Dry Goods Co. Circuit Judge Ryan has Monheimer's suit under advisement.

Allegations in the Davis suit, which do not duplicate those in the Monheimer suit the Laclede answer stated, are of such nature that they could be incorporated in the Monheimer suit as an intervening petition.

The Laclede company, the answer continued, ought not to be subjected to the harassment of numerous individual suits and be put to the expense of making a full and complete answer to the Davis suit.

Monheimer filed his suit in April, 1933, as the owner of 400 shares of Laclede's common stock. Davis, who owns 65 shares, filed his suit two weeks ago. The Monheimer suit did not ask for appointment of a receiver.

Both suits alleged that the Laclede company was dominated and controlled by the Utilities Power & Light Co., a holding firm. Both charged that Laclede stockholders had suffered because of that control through the various contracts and leases the Laclede company entered into with the holding firm and its subsidiaries.

The gas company's answer was filed by the law firms of Ragland, Otto & Potter, Fordyce, White, Mayne & Williams, and Taylor, Chasnoff & Willson.

Beautiful

Victor presents the music of
JOHANN STRAUSS
Played in the Authentic Viennese Spirit
by Eugene Ormandy
and the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra

WHETHER you are musically sophisticated, or whether you simply "know what you like", here is your favorite music! For no other purely instrumental music, with so much of the common touch that speaks to all human hearts alike, has lived so long as the music of Johann Strauss.

Think of the many happy hours at home when you will play over and over again the exultingly ioyous melodies of:

"The Blue Danube"
"Die Fledermaus" Overture
"Tales from the Vienna Woods"
"The Acceleration Waltz"
"The Gypsy Baron" Overture

And never before have you heard them to better advantage. Played in the authentic Viennese spirit, under Eugene Ormandy, one of our foremost American conductors, who spent years of study in Vienna, the homeland of this music. Recorded by the new Victor Higher Fidelity process that brings to you a realism, a life-likeness of tone such as has never been heard outside the living presence of the actual performers.

By Berry Moore.

Negotiations at the close of the week centered on buildings on Olive street, east of Twelfth boulevard, available at attractive rentals under long time leases, to responsible retail establishments.

The five-story building at 916-18 Olive street, formerly occupied by Browning, King & Company, is sought by an old retail house, with an exclusive line, now on Washington avenue, east of Ninth street. In this instance, onerous moving costs confront the prospective lessee. Plans include remodelling the building at a large outlay. Negotiations are being conducted by Fred C. Breitt, president of the Breitt-Naumer Real Estate Co., in conjunction with the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co.

The building was acquired by Browning, King & Co. from the W. W. Thompson estate in 1927, under a 99-year lease. Under its provisions the lessee was required to erect a new building on the site within a given period. The lease was made in anticipation of an influx of retail stores into Olive street, following the widening of the thoroughfare, started virtually on the eve of the depression, which placed things in abeyance. The property reverted to the Thompson estate under the provisions of the lease in 1932, when the Browning-King Company was thrown into receivership.

Dorris Block a Magnet.

The five-story Dorris Block at the northwest corner of Eleventh street and Olive street is also a magnet which is attracting attention as an eligible location for a retail store on a large scale, notably in the furniture line. A large East St. Louis furniture concern has been prominently mentioned as a potential lessee of this block for a major store.

The block comprises five attached buildings known as 1101-03-05-07-09 Olive street. All the buildings are now vacant except one, which is occupied by a month to month tenant. Identical in design and floor plan, the buildings would be available for occupancy as a whole, with few alterations, such as removing of partition walls. While the block virtually constitutes one building, its several units were built with party walls with a view to facilitating distribution of the property among the heirs of the building.

Taking time by the forelock, a progressive retail concern, has concluded negotiations for renewing in advance of expiration the lease on its quarters comprising several of the most commodious buildings in this section of Olive street.

Leases recently acquired on quarters on Olive street between Twelfth boulevard and Tenth street, have focused renewed attention on this stretch of thoroughfare, as a retail center, according to the members of the real estate fraternity.

The American Furniture Co. several weeks ago leased the five-story building at 1116 Olive street, of which possession will be taken as soon as the premises are available. It now occupies the adjoining building at 1114 Olive street. The two buildings, comprising a total of 32,000 square feet, are to be consolidated. The Mullin-Walters Realty Co. negotiated this lease, which is for a long term.

The J. D. Carson Furniture Co. has acquired a long lease on the five-story building at the southeast corner of Eleventh and Olive streets, owned by the Waldheim Realty & Investment Co., a holding company of Aaron Waldheim, which purchased it in the pre-depression era. Recently damaged by fire, the building is now being restored at a heavy outlay for occupancy by the Carson Co. It was formerly occupied by the Universal Radio & Supply Co., which leased the modern two-story and basement building at 1014 Olive street, through the Breitt & Naumer Realty Co., in conjunction with N. S. Wood.

Year's Record Transaction.

The foremost real estate transaction executed so far this year was that through which the Union-May-Stern Co. acquired the eight-story building at the southeast corner of Twelfth boulevard and Olive street. The building is now being reconstructed at an estimated cost of $100,000 for occupancy by the Union-May-Stern Co. This will include a new front and mezzanine floor, which will add largely to the usable floor space of the structure. The Union-May-Stern Co. is now housed in a five-story block at 1126 Olive street.

Overlooking the Memorial Plaza and dominating the Olive street approach to downtown St. Louis; the mammoth structure is regarded as one of the most advantageously situated in the city for major retail concern purposes. It occupies approximately a quarter block. The purchase price of the property, which included the fee to the ground, were at a figure which combines both an investment and a speculation, real estate dealers declare. Negotiations for the property, owned by several non-residents were handled by Cornet & Zeibig, in conjunction with Jack Dubinsky.

The building was held under a 99-year lease by old May Stern Co., in which Aaron Waldheim held a controlling interest, before it reverted to the former owners of the fee under the provisions of the indenture. Several years ago the May Stern & Co., which formerly occupied the building, was consolidated with the Union Household Furniture Co., under the name of the Union-May-Stern Co.

REALTY FIRM FORMED WITH OFFICES IN CLAYTON

The Houts - Grossman - Hocker Realty Company has been formed to conduct a general real estate and financial business, with offices on Central avenue in Clayton. It is composed of Henry Houts, Valley Grossman and Marion Hocker. The new concern will specialize in the sale and management of county property. Houts has been connected with the sales department of the Eggers Realty Company of Clayton for several years. Grossman was formerly manager of the real estate department of the St. Louis County Bank in Clayton. Both have had broad experience in the suburban real estate field. Hocker recently was graduated from the Country Day School. He is the son of Leon O. Hocker, prominent St. Louis attorney.

GLICK CO. TAKES LEASE ON 8TH ST. CORNER

The Glick Real Estate Co., of which Nathaniel M. Glick is president, has taken a long lease on the large store room at the northwest corner of Eighth and Chestnut streets, and the adjoining storerooms at 101-03 North Eighth street in what is known as the Lafayette Hotel Building. The corner is regarded as one of the best in downtown real estate circles.

The premises leased will be remodeled and equipped for occupancy by the Glick company. A modernistic front will be an attractive feature. The concern contemplates taking possession July 1, its present quarters being inadequate to an expanding volume of business.

One of the largest and most aggressive in the real estate field, the Glick company conducts a general real estate and financial business, with special attention, given to the sale of both residential and investment properties. The firm is now at 822 Chestnut street.

The State Life Insurance Co., with headquarters in Indianapolis, is the lessee, it having acquired the building, a three-story structure, through a loan made prior to 1929. It was represented in the negotiations by Cornet & Zeibig. The rental involved was not disclosed.

Three stories in height, the structure has a frontage of approximately 70 feet on Eighth street, with a depth on Chestnut extending to the north and south alley of the block. The upper floors comprise hotel rooms.

The offices of the Oreon E. & R. G. Scott Realty Co. occupy the ground floor of the building at the southwest corner of Eighth and Chestnut streets, an ornate three-story terra cotta structure, erected by the concern a number of years ago. The corner portion of the first floor of the International Building at the southeast corner of Eighth and Chestnut streets, forms the quarters of the Henry R. Weisels Co. The Mullin-Walters Realty Co., composed of Charles M. Walters and T. J. Mullin, recently moved from ground floor offices at 824 Chestnut street to larger quarters at 907 Chestnut street in the Western Union Building.

The Wanstrath Realty Co., of which George J. Wanstrath is president, recently erected its own building, a distinctive two-story structure, at 715 Chestnut street. This building includes an attached garage accessible from the alley in the rear of the premises.

Stock Firm in New Quarters.

Gatch Bros., Jordan and McKinney, a St. Louis Stock Exchange firm, formally opened its new quarters in the Bank of Commerce Building last week. The new offices, leased through the Mercantile-Commerce, include the entire western half of the second floor of the building, part of which had been formerly occupied by a New York Stock Exchange house.

HOUSE DESIGNED BY JOHNSON TO BE BUILT ON WARSON RD.

In the FHA section, published last Sunday in the Post-Dispatch, a picture was shown of a residence designed by T. L. Johnson with the statement that it was to be built in Richmond Heights. This seven-room Colonial residence is to be built on Warson lane, near Conway road, in Warson Terrace.

Record Loan for Month.

The record loan in May was for $110,000, secured by a first deed of trust on the Von Hoffmann Printing Company's properties at the southwest corner of Ninth and Walnut street, consisting of two fireproof structures, occupying a lot 140 by 125 feet. The loan is for 10 years. Interest is at the rate of 5 per cent, with amortization every six months. The loan was made to the Edward K. Love Realty Company, trustee for G. H. Dudley.

RESIDENTIAL VACANCIES BEING REDUCED

Rents for One-Family Units Have Shown an Abrupt Rise, Survey of National Association of Real Estate Boards Says.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 1.—A survey by the National Association of Real Estate Boards today showed that vacancies in residence buildings, especially one-family dwellings, are rapidly being filled.

Based on local reports, the survey said, rents for the one-family units have shown an "abrupt" rise. For metropolitan centers, it stated, rents have jumped more than six points in the last three weeks, and are now at approximately 77 per cent of their 1926 levels. Apartment rents are still only a little more than 50 per cent of their 1926 figure.

A rapid increase also was reported in home building for individual communities, with Illinois permits showing a 123 per cent gain for April over March. In urban centers, the association said, the gain in construction of family units was less than 3 per cent over April, 1934.

Implications of Survey.

A study of the current housing situation reveals facts which hold great national implications, Walter S. Schmidt of Cincinnati, president of the association, said. Citing figures indicating that units built in 1934 totaled only approximately 29,500, in 1933 approximately 35,000 and in 1932 about 125,000, Schmidt said during this period, although no accurate figures are available, destruction is known to have been unusually heavy.

"It is safe to say," he said, "that destruction exceeded replacement, so that we now possess actually a lesser number of living units than existed three years ago. From now on, even assuming that conditions do not improve, to fill needs of our nation means that we must multiply by 12 the construction of these past two years. With bettered conditions, which would bring a rush of deferred marriages and an expansion of space-use, we may experience such an acute shortage as this nation has never known."

Cites Case of Detroit.

The association pointed out the residential occupancy figure for Detroit is an outstanding instance of the real estate transition. This city, frequently cited in the earlier depression years for heavy "over-building," now reports residential vacancies of all types as reduced to 2.6 per cent, the lowest vacancy figure in its history and with one exception probably the lowest figure recorded for a major American city since occupancy surveys have come in to use, the summary said.

Vacancy in single-family houses in Omaha now total less than 1.4 per cent, according to a house-to-house count made in April. The present vacancy figure in Omaha is the lowest in the record for 13 years, according to the Omaha Real Estate Board. The annual residential survey of the Scarsdale community, including Yonkers and New Rochelle, Scarsdale, East Chester and Greenburgh, in New York, showed this territory has a vacancy in houses totaling 2.8 per cent.

BUILDING ON SOUTH SIDE CORNER CHANGES HANDS

The property at the northwest corner of Jefferson avenue and Pestalozzi street has been purchased by Sylvia Pollock. The seller was the Hamedo Co., of which Jack Dubinsky is president. The two-story building comprises nine stores and nine flats. It occupies a site 103x125 feet. The reported purchase price was around $30,000. The Acme Realty Co. handled the sale. The purchase was made as an investment.

HOUSING EXPERTS ATTEND CONFERENCE

Take Steps to Work With Purdue University in Establishing Better Housing Institute.

By the Associated Press.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., June 1. — More than a hundred leading industrialists, engineers and housing experts gathered at the national homes conference here today and took steps to co-operate with Purdue University in the establishment of a better homes institute.

They heard from David E. Ross, president of the university board of trustees, an explanation of research plans for a huge "test tube" in which engineers might perfect homes for persons of moderate means. He described a building large enough in which a house might be erected and there subjected to tropical heat, zero cold, desert dryness and excessive humidity—all produced artificially—so that the best materials for construction could be determined.

Owen D. Young of New York was the principal speaker. M. C. Honeywell of Minneapolis, formerly of Wabash, Ind., was named chairman of an advisory committee which will work with the Purdue Research Foundation. Tyler S. Rogers of New York will be secretary. Another committee on coordination of the building industry will be headed by Emmett Chapple of Middletown, O., with R. L. Harrison, of LaFayette as secretary.

Ross recently gave the research foundation, of which he is a director, a tract of 143 acres immediately west of the university campus, where a model village of moderately-priced homes will be built within the next year or two. They will be occupied by faculty members and others connected with the university. The village will be a living laboratory for the study of better housing and community development with the occupants of the homes keeping the records desired in the research project.

Mrs. William Brown Meloney, of the New York Herald-Tribune, talked on interior appliances in the home. The kitchen of 1926, she said, is obsolete and she asked the conferees to keep their minds open to other changes.

America needs a new industry now and it needs it particularly in the field of durable goods as distinguished from those of current consumption, said Mr. Young, whose address was broadcast over a radio network.

Inflation, Mr. Young said, will not bridge the chasm "for while it may increase the number of normal dollars which the potential home owner gets, it will at the same time increase the cost of materials and correspondingly diminish the purchasing power of every dollar of his savings."

FIRM REPORTS RECORD VOLUME OF SALES IN MAY

Lewis Booker, sales manager of H. A. O'Rourke, Inc., reports that its sales for May, 1935, showed an increase of more than 100 per cent over the same period of 1934, with a larger volume of transactions in income property. The firm's loan business was also brisk. The following is a partial list of sales recently closed by the concern:

The stores will carry a complete line of tires, radios, batteries and automobile accessories.

MUTUAL MORTGAGE INSURANCE PLAN HELPED BY AMENDMENT

Debenture Bond Replaces Certificate of a Claim for Interest.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—While the volume of mortgage insurance applications has been growing rapidly through the past several weeks, Acting Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald announced today that Administration's program has been strengthened by an amendment to the National Housing Act.

This amendment provides that, upon foreclosure of an insured mortgage and conveyance of the property to the administrator, the holder receives debenture bonds which include in their face amount interest on the unpaid principal of the mortgage at the rate provided by the bond from the date the holder instituted proceedings to foreclose the mortgage to the date of the delivery of the bond.

Under the old terms of the act, the holder would have received only a certificate of claim for this interest.

These debenture bonds are guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Government when given in exchange for a mortgage issued prior to July 1, 1937.

INVESTMENT PROPERTY FOR SALE

3000 ACRES IN OZARKS, ON MERAMEC
Rich in Minerals—Suitable for Resort or Farm Land

At cash prices subject to approval of the Probate Court, the undersigned invites offers for the following properties in order to close the Rueppele Estate:

Approximately 3000 acres of the most picturesque Ozark land in Missouri, located in Franklin County near Stanton about 85% of which lies in one tract and adjoins Missouri State Park at Sullivan. This property, most of which has been held by the Rueppele family for over fifty years, fronts in part on both sides of the Meramec River and located on this river frontage are the famous Meramec Caverns, better known as "Bat" and "Saltpeter" Caves; noted geologic and scenic wonders containing deposits of saltpeter used in the manufacture of explosives. Some of this acreage consists of improved farm land; other portions well timbered and practically all of the land lies in a mineral country heretofore developed with successful mining operations.

The proximity to St. Louis, scenic beauty and natural resources of this land, including sparkling springs and timbered areas; also commercial possibilities of the awe-inspiring caves; and its accessibility by automobile from Route 66 at Stanton make this one of the most outstanding properties of its type that has been offered to the public for many years. It is suggested that aside from a development of its mineral possibilities and the commercialization of its caves and river frontage, the property is ideal for a hunting and fishing preserve or for the purpose of developing a charming country estate for one who loves the magnificent Ozarks and the setting which these beautiful hills afford.

Also approximately 5000 acres of land lying about three miles west of Stanton consisting of several cultivated improved farms along creek bottoms, as well as timbered hill land. Soil highly adaptable to fruit tree cultivation.

Offers for all or substantial parts of the above property will be considered by the undersigned, who will be glad to furnish further detailed information upon request.

HISTORIC

COUNTRY HOME

Beautiful GRANT PARK with its six acres of giant cedar; spruce, pines and elms, shrubbery, blue grass lawns, small lake fed by wonderful spring of 10,000 gallons daily, pure water of medicinal value. Old brick mansion with over 4000 feet floor space, 12-ft. ceilings—70 feet walnut stairway.

Erected on this place is a monument of bronze and red granite, designating the spot where Col. U. S. Grant received his commission during Civil War as a General. Adjacent two old artillery pieces left there, well preserved. The old mansion, semi-modern, has electricity and city water, but needs repair.

LOCATED IN ARCADIA VALLEY

On State Highway No. 21, at edge of town, one hour and fifty minutes from Broadway, St. Louis; paved road to door. Altitude over 1000 feet, cool summer nights, balmy winter sunshine. In the heart of the Ozarks, the undisputed playground and health resort of Missouri. The Hunter and Fisherman's paradise.

EXCELLENT TRANSPORTATION.

Quick action will take it for less than assessed valuation. A triple-A depression bargain. Drive down—look it over. No big overhead for upkeep. People of modest means can afford, at the price. For inspection, phone or see owner. No curiosity seekers, please. Address Kathryn Mills Goodman, Box 58, Ironton, Missouri.

Adjacent two old artillery pieces left there, well preserved. The old mansion, semi-modern, has electricity and city water, but needs repair.

Why we shake hands ~

OUR ABORIGINAL ANCESTORS LAID ASIDE THEIR CLUBS TO SHOW THEIR GOOD INTENTIONS. WHILE HAND CLASPED HAND HOSTILITIES WERE MUTUALLY SUSPENDED

Good intentions are one thing—A BUSINESS DEAL THAT IS MUTUALLY SATISFACTORY IS ANOTHER. Instead of merely shouting "SQUARE DEAL" and saying that we are the only reliable dealers in the auto business, we ask you to get the story of one who has bought a Used Car of us—ASK HIM A LONG WHILE AFTER HE'S BEEN DRIVING THE CAR.

SALESMEN WANTED

WE WILL PUT ON 6 ADDITIONAL MEN WHO NEED EMPLOYMENT AND WHO WISH TO TRY TO SEE IF THEY CAN DO THIS WORK. WE WILL TRAIN SUCH MEN FREE! FURNISH FULL EQUIPMENT WITH NO DEPOSIT REQUIRED. THERE IS NO EXPENSE: BUT THOSE WHO CAN QUALIFY CAN MAKE $150.00 TO $400.00 OR MORE THE FIRST MONTH.

While you cannot make money here unless you earn it, many men who never previously even thought they could do work of this kind have found it to be just the opportunity they sought for years and are making more money than they ever previously dreamed of making. We have men making up to $750.00 a month. Others $600.00, $500.00, $400.00 and $300.00. On the other hand, many fail to fill the requirements and cannot do the work.

Experience in sales work is not necessary. Some of our best men never sold anything before. Men who made as high as $50.00 their first day in the field knew nothing about selling other than what they had learned the previous two days from our sales instructor. This man is himself an experienced salesman who first went into the field and made a splendid record selling this product. He is a man of earnest and sympathetic understanding with the problems of the beginner. He can and does awake and activate the latent abilities of men to do creative work. Many men who least suspect it possess very great and very valuable sales ability. It is not unusual for a beginner to make $20.00 to $40.00 his first few days here.

Perhaps he can help you to make a success of this work. It is worth a try. The training is free. The opportunity is open. If you can do it, you make real money and have assurance of its permanence. If you cannot do it, no harm done. The experience will have been valuable. Last year was the biggest year in our business, nationally and locally; and this year is following the same program of progress.

This is a new product by an established institution—the largest of its kind in the world, and the product already has a greater sale than anything in the world ever offered for the same service. It is now being introduced in this market. This is a genuine present opportunity for cash, and also for future progress in the certain growth of the business. It is for men who have foresight—men who are in earnest about seeking a sound opportunity to get in and work ahead.

Our requirements of you are that you be honest, of good reputation, active, alert, willing to learn and do the following things:

To learn (as taught) how to make a clear and convincing explanation of why you have called to see your prospect.

To learn (as taught) how to show the product so it will reveal the absolute need for it and the necessity of buying it.

To learn (as taught) how to persuade some one to do that which positively ought to be done.

To be honest in your own thought, so that you are entitled to confidence.

To work hard every day to make a genuine success in return for the privilege of a genuine opportunity in a permanent position with good people who will deeply interest themselves in helping you to get started and to get along.

This is a straightforward offer of sincere intent to worthy men who are in need of good, substantial positions. Please do not apply for these positions unless you feel you can meet these requirements. Applicants will be personally interviewed at Suite 512, Paul Brown Bldg., 9th & Olive Sts., Monday, from 9:15 to 1:15.

DENIES DECEIVING RFC ON FRISCO TRUST FUND

Counsel, However, Admits He Didn't Mention Specifically $400,000 for Managers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Denial of "concealment" from the RFC of a $400,000 "trust fund" created for expenses of the readjustment managers of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co., was made today by Robert T. Swaine, New York, former general counsel for the Frisco.

Testifying at the Federal Securities Commission's hearing into the financial difficulties of the railroad, Swaine insisted that he explained to members of the RFC board that expenses of the readjustment managers would have to be paid by the railroad.

Under questioning by W. O. Douglas, head of the commission's division for protective committee study, Swaine insisted there had been no "concealment," although he said he made no specific mention of the "trust fund" or the amount of expenses.

He explained to RFC officials, he testified, that expenses under the reorganization plan of July 6, 1932, "would have to be protected in the eventuality of receivership."

The Frisco went into consent receivership, Nov. 1, 1932, and the reorganization plan finally was abandoned in December, 1933.

Couch Was Surprised.

The entire session today was confined to details of the "trust plan." Harvey Couch, former RFC director, testified several days ago that he was "surprised" when he learned of the "trust funds," and Miles Kennedy, formerly a railroad examiner for the RFC, said he had no knowledge of it at the time the Frisco obtained a $3,800,00 loan June 30, 1932.

The Frisco's trustees, James M. Kurn and John G. Lonsdale, are seeking to recover the "trust fund" for the railroad. There was a balance of $196,840 in the fund when the trustees started court action Nov. 24, 1933, and the readjustment managers have listed unpaid bills of $168,883, including a claim of $22,500 by Edward N. Brown, New York, Frisco board chairman, for services as chairman of the readjustment managers.

The "trust fund" was created June 30, 1932, when the Frisco board voted an appropriation of $200,000. Later the executive committee, with the same personnel as the readjustment managers, voted a like appropriation.

Transfer of $100,000.

C. W. Michel, former Frisco vice-president, now Eastern representative for the trustee, testified today Brown instructed him on Oct. 31, 1931, to transfer the unpaid $100,000 of the $400,000 appropriated into the "trust fund." The $100,000 check was drawn on Nov. 1, the date the Frisco went into consent receivership, Michel said.

Frisco bonds with a face value of $7,500,000 have been posted with the RFC as collateral for loans totaling $5,190,000. The bonds now have an actual value of approximately 10 per cent of their face value.

Details of negotiations for the final loan obtained from th RFC—$3,900,000 on June 20, 1932—were given by Swaine today. The railroad's bankers, he testified, posted Frisco bonds as collateral. After obtaining the loan, the railroad purchased bond sand turned them over to the bankers.

MISSOURI RIVER RISES; ABOVE FLOOD STAGE IN CAPITAL

Dwellers in Lower Bottom Lands Warned to Evacuate Homes; Water Over Roads.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 1.—The Missouri River, already well above the flood stage, was still rising here this afternoon and a further rise is expected tomorrow. Warnings have been issued by the State Highway Patrol and by the United States Government Engineers' office here, advising dwellers in the river bottoms, to get out as a safety precaution.

The government gauge here registered 26.3 feet here early this afternoon, which is 3.2 feet above the flood level of 23.1. The river had risen 1.8 feet in 30 hours and engineers said they expected a further rise of a foot and possibly more. This afternoon, trucks and wagons were moving out of the Callaway County bottoms, across the river, carrying live stock or household goods to Jefferson City, or to the bluffs north of the bottoms. Other lowlands, particularly near Boonville were also being evacuated.

A force of highway department men were sent to United States Highway No. 40, in the Missouri River bottoms north of Boonville, after a report was received today that the levee protecting the bottom lands might break from flood waters. If the levee broke four or five miles of the highway would be submerged, it was said. Highway No. 17, near Tuscumbia, was blocked today by high water, as were Highway No. 13, south of Clinton; United States Highway No. 36, west of Chillicothe; Highway No. 6, near Novinger, and Highway No. 11, south of Brookfield.

Naturalized American Says Action Has Been Held Up Pending Inquiry.

By the Associate Press.

OPPELN, Germany, June 1. — John L. Asmenn, German-born American Jesuit priest, who said he was naturalized at Buffalo, N. "However, the Provincial Governor informed me my expulsion was being held up pending investigation of my utterances," he added.

Asmenn said he was denounced for having said "Hitler always mentions God in his speeches, but never Christ."

BASIC IDEAS OF NRA HERE TO STAY, GERARD SWOPE SAYS

Thinks Decision Will Have Little Effect on Big Industry, Foresees New England Revival.

By the Associated Press.

OSTERVILLE, Mass., June 1.—Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Co., tonight asserted that, regardless of the Supreme Court's action, a policy of establishing maximum hours, minimum wages and the abolition of child labor are here to stay. He predicted that big industry in New England would see a "phenomenal" revival within a year.

Swope's predictions were made at the fortieth reunion of his class, 1895, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"Business conditions throughout the Nation," he said, "have shown a marked improvement. Business failures during the first few months of this year have been less than in any year since 1929.

"The Supreme Court decision ruling the NRA invalid should have little effect upon big industry. The General Electric Co. will not reduce wages because a reduction in payrolls would mean unpleasant headlines."

MOVE MADE AGAINST SETTING ASIDE DAMAGE SUIT DISMISSAL

Attorneys for Miner Employed by Lead Company Had Filed Previously for Counsel Fees

Counsel for the National Lead Co. filed in Federal Court yesterday suggestions in opposition to a motion by attorneys for a former plaintiff to set aside the dismissal of the plaintiff's suit against the company.

The suit, which had been pending for two years, was brought by Albert Durbin of Desloge, Mo., a former miner, alleging he had contracted silicosis in the company's mines. Durbin dismissed it May 11, settling his claim for $150, according to a company representative.

His lawyers, Everett Hullverson and Eugene J. Schmick of St. Louis, filed a motion to set the dismissal aside and to assess counsel fees for them. They had a contract to receive 50 per cent of whatever they recovered for Durbin. In their motion they said they understood Durbin had settled for $2000.

CHALLENGES PREMIER TO DUEL

Hungarian Opposition Leader Sends Second to Goemboes.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 1.—A duel involving two of the nation's outstanding political leaders appeared likely today after Tibor Eckhardt, dashing adventuresome president of the small Landowners' party and opposition chieftain, challenged Premier Julius Goemboes. Two seconds delivered Eckhardt's challenge to the Premier's office, only to discover that Goemboes was absent for the week-end. A secretary forwarded word of Eckhardt's demands and tonight Budapest tensely awaited the Premier's answer.

Goemboes, who is an army officer, is obliged under the military code of honor to give satisfaction to anyone demanding it. As head of the Government, however, he has special obligations.

ADVISORY COUNCIL FOR MODIFIED UTILITY BILL

Report of Business Group Presented; Wheeler Predicts Passage With Slight Change.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Into the fight against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill to abolish public utility holding companies today was injected a hitherto unpublished report by the Commerce Department's business advisory council, recommending modification of the measure.

Despite this, however, predictions were forthcoming from Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, and others that the bill would pass the Senate next week, altered but slightly from its present form.

The report by the business council, composed of 50 prominent business men, was not made public by the council itself. Typewritten copies, marked "highly confidential" and "approved by the council, May 2," were made available in other quarters.

Senator Wheeler during the day waived aside suggestions that the bill might be altered substantially to meet objection of its opponents. From a Republican leader, who declined to be quoted, came a prediction that only 21 votes would be cast against the measure.

While saying some rephrasing would be made in the bill before it passed, Wheeler declared there was no possibility of such sweeping changes being written into the bill as were urged by the advisory council.

Under terms of the bill, certain holding companies, notably the larger ones, would be subject to reorganization on a regional basis or to dissolution by 1942.

The Advisory Council's report, prepared by its committee on the holding company bill, was critical of many phases of the measure. It did not, however, contain the bitter attack attributed to it in informal reports circulated since it was prepared more than a month ago.

It proposed a gradual abolition of holding companies, asserting in their favor that they have "enabled the financing of electric power projects at lower costs of capital resulting in lower rates to the public."

While concurring in the aim of the bill to establish regionally integrated, interconnected operating systems, the Council advocated that instead of limiting a holding company to control of one such regional system, it be permitted to control five or perhaps more under Federal regulation.

The report contended that such wide ownership permitted a vastly diversified and safer type of security for the public, assured experienced able management, and would "avoid undue disruption of the industry, impairment of the credit of existing holding companies, and unnecessary loss to the holders of their securities."

This breakdown of vast Nationwide holding companies, the report said, should be required by the end of five years.

The argument that a greater diversity of risk would be obtained ran exactly counter to assertions by Wheeler, who recently told the Senate that companies claiming the greatest diversity of risk had the "worst record" of insolvency.

The report joined Wheeler in denouncing the multi-stage holding companies, or in his words, "a holding company piled on a holding company piled on a holding company piled on one operating company."

Larger Number of Weddings Than Usual Scheduled for Traditional Month of Brides

JUNE, traditional month of brides, will have more than its usual share of marriages this season. Beginning Wednesday, and continuing until almost the last day, a variety of ceremonies marks the social calendar. One is a large garden wedding, others are church affairs, and still others are small informal home ceremonies to be attended only by the families of the principals. In addition to those in St. Louis, several in which a St. Louisana is either the bride or bridegroom, will be held out of town.

In chronological order the weddings of the month include the following:

Arrangements have been completed for the marriage of Miss Ethel Chenault Kingsland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kingsland, 6034 Cabanne place, and Christian Baird Peper, son of Mrs. Clarence F. Peper, 6343 Waterman avenue, which will take place Wednesday evening at the Kingsland home.

In addition to the attendants already announced, the wedding party will include Shirley Frances Richardson, young cousin of the prospective bride, and Alice Jean Albrecht, cousin of Mr. Peper. They will fill the role of ribbon bearers in the ceremony.

Among the pre-wedding parties for Miss Kingland is a luncheon which Mrs. James Harris, mother of Miss Virginia Harris, the maid of honor, will give tomorrow at her home, 10 Carrswold. Tuesday evening following the rehearsal at the Kingsland home, a buffet supper will be served for members of the bridal party.

Mrs. Ben Lang Jr. gave a luncheon Thursday at her home, 5959 Cabanne place, and last night the wedding party was entertained at supper at the home of Mrs. Louis T. Hall, 225 Spencer road, Webster Groves.

Saturday will be the wedding day of Miss Ellen Dustin Finney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul K. Finney, and Edward McCray Thompson, son of Mrs. E. D. Thompson, which will take place at 9 o'clock in the morning at St. Roch's Church with a large bridal party in attendance. Mgs. John P. Spencer will perform the ceremony.

Seven weddings have already been planned for the second week of the month. Two of them are Tuesday, June 11—that of Miss Bodine Keene Forder, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carver Forder, and Dr. Samuel Arthur McDonald of New Haven, Conn., formerly of Prince Edward Island, and that of Miss Alice Franc, daughter of Mrs. Harry L. Franc of the Park Plaza, to Edward Greensfelder, son of Mrs. Bernard Greensfelder. Miss Forder and Dr. McDonald are to be married at 5 o'clock at the Church of the Ascension by the Rev. Dr. John S. Bunting, with a small reception following at the Forder home, and Miss Franc and Mr. Greensfelder will be married at the Savoy-Plaza in New York at 8 o'clock in the evening, after which they will sail for a honeymoon abroad.

Miss Florence Richardson Usher, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Roland G. Usher, will become the bride Wednesday, June 12, of William Walcott Lord, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Anderson Lord of Woburn, Mass. For the first time under university regime, Graham Memorial Chapel on the campus of Washington University, is to be utilized for a marriage service. Dr. Usher is the head of the university's history department, and one of his colleagues, the Rev. Dr. Donald McFayden, will perform the ceremony. Miss Dorothea Usher will be her sister's maid of honor and only attendant, and Mr. Lord's father will serve him as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Lord are to arrive in St. Louis next Sunday for the pre-wedding festivities. The service will be followed bya a small reception at the Usher home.

That Saturday, June 15, is a popular wedding day is evinced by the four ceremonies arranged for that date. One, an out-of-town event, is that of Miss Margaret Humphreys, daughter of Mrs. Otho F. Humphreys of Clearwater, Fla., and Dr. Barrett Learned Taussig, son of Dr. and Mrs. Albert E. Taussig, 5038 Washington boulevard, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's brother in Mantoloking, N. J. Invitations reached St. Louis Friday. The bridegroom's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Taussig will go East for the ceremony at which he will be best man. The bridal pair will spend the summer at his parents' home after a trip through the Cumberland mountains en route west. Mrs. Adalyn Faris McKee, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Charles Breckenridge Faris, will be married at her parents' home the same day to Harold Joseph Moore, son of Joseph Willis Moore of Brook-

Carnival Time At Canoe Club In Valley Park

THE glib melodies of a steam calliope, syncopation and the chants of concession barkers mingled with the jingle of glasses and the hubbub of revelers as the annual carnival at the Meramec Canoe Club got under way last night in the lantern-lit grove surrounding the clubhouse at Valley Park.

Gone were the canoe races, the tennis matches and horseshoe tournaments which used to be part of the club's annual carnival, but new diversions planned by a hard-working committee rounded out the program. Although every one of the 35 members had his responsibilities, from barking to bouncing, those chiefly in charge of the frolic were T. C. Noel (former president for two terms), John M. Hall, president, C. Todd Clark, J. Boyd Ware and George L. Dyer Jr.

More than 500 persons responding to the red and blue invitations circulated several weeks ago, followed frequent roadside directions and presented their credentials at the gate over which George Dyer, making good his nickname of "The Sultan," stood pompous guard. They found themselves in the midst of a country fair—open-air bar, hot dog stands, African dodgers, spindle wheels, Japanese roll board, spill the milk bottle, turtle races, and all.

Over the lower of the two adjoining tennis courts, a tarpaulin was stretched for dancing. There the 10-piece band was seated. There also performers staged a floor show for spectators at tables on the upper tennis court, as waiters dispensed food and drink—the kind they sell at fairs.

Japanese lanterns, strung in the trees, and flood lights thrown on the red, white and blue booths, illuminated the scene all night for those guests who took the invitation seriously and lingered "from 4 to 4 o'clock." And many of them did.

The Meramec Canoe Club was founded in 1903 at old Meramec Highlands. The following year it took up headquarters in the farm house on the Timmerman estate near Valley Park. After that burned in 1920 the present clubhouse was built on the 75-acre estate about a half mile from the river.

Celebrating Decoration Day at Country Clubs as Swimming Pools Open

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

THE post-repeal scene in New York has yet to call into being any wine salesmen to compare with those of a generation that knew George Kessler and Manny Chappell and the other celebrated champagne openers of 30 years ago. When Harry Lehr was retained as an exploiter of a famous brand of fizz, his expense account ran into hundreds of thousands of dollars a year, and he was worth it, too. Four dollars for promotion was allowed most agents for every case they sold; and Lehr, because of his social pretensions, got a little more. The agents bought champagne in tidal waves wherever they went. They sent bottles by the hundred to notable folk entertaining guests in Churchill's or Sherry's. They threw parties that would addle the wits of the little hosts of today who order their refreshment by the bottle instead of by the van. And in so doing they sold incalculable quantities of wine and made their firms rich beyond the dreams of avarice.

The first wine firm that has the good sense to engage the services of a real celebrity to exploit its goods and gives him an unlimited expense account is due to clean up today. The only such person engaged in the liquor trade is Grover Whalen, and he prefers to be known as a big executive and sticks to a high pressure office rather than the bright lights. Wines and spirits around town are touted by a few third-rate notables, down-at-the heels social registerites, spavined stage stars and fly-blown noblemen, but they would lose their jobs if they turned in a $1000 dinner check, and their notion of a great coup is to get a bottle of their product included in a photograph of a last year's debutante in a night club. A good wine salesman could command publicity in New York as a public institution in the manner of the circus or the Metropolitan Opera, neither of which ever have to pay a dime for the most generous news space known. But the midget minds of liquor executives think that the by-blows of once reputable families on their sales forces will sell their bills of goods. They're missing a swell bet.

Katharine Hepburn has never been a flower to blush unseen, and the other day we noticed a crowd assembled around a town car outside a Madison avenue shop and, reporter-like, shouldered our way obnoxiously through to find out what the devil. "It's Katharine Heyburn's!" muttered an awed citizen, pawing the lacquerwork. As we departed we glanced through the window of the shop itself and there was the orchidaceous Hepburn registering what could only have been grief, rage and bitterness. It was her car every one was staring at!

Fashion Note: Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken didn't wear a single feather about her person at the Belmont Park opening. Not even a simple bird of paradise hat. The day was warm and she roughed it in a cape of imperial Russian sables, which an adjacent expert appraised at $50,000.

If the municipality has within its gift any award for toning up the social scene of the city it should go, at the moment, to the youths in the vicinage of Gracie Square, whose hard-hearted family won't give them a sports roadster and who have to drive instead a hand-me-down Ford station wagon of outmoded vintage. The lads and their friends have ripped out the seats in the back, supplanted them with a wicker table and chairs, festooned the top of the body with Japanese lanterns and life preservers and transformed the entire shebang into a land-going yacht. Whenever they go abroad for the evening they and their friends don yachting caps, blue coats and white flannels, and sit around the cockpit hoisting tall ones as they speed through traffic with loud nautical singing of catches and glees. It attracts attention, too, and their parents are wondering if perhaps a smart two-seater wouldn't have been a better idea in the first place.

BOULEVARD NOTES: "Naming Quintuplets," a game based on Joseph Bryan 3d's book by that name, is getting around town. . . . Saks Fifth avenue is tickled with the title of its new pamphlet on cocktail accessories called "Snacks Fifth Avenue." . . . We saw the first straw hat of the season along with one of the last pearl gray derbies within a block of each other on Madison avenue . . . Whyever do those Fifth avenue shops curtail their windows on Sundays? . . . More window shoppers and potential customers are out then than on any other day of the week. . . . Virginia Faulkner has joined the staff of "Town and Country" these several weeks. . . . A chap in Fifty-eighth street near Broadway has opened a haircut parlor with no shaving, massaging or shampooing and no tonics; just the haircut, and out you go. . . . He ought to make a fortune. . . . The French Casino has pepped up its Folies Bergeres for the summer and merits the attention of all students of Manhattan's sin palaces. . . . Larry Jennings up in Fairfield, drives what must be the only Minerva station wagon extant.

LONDON, June 1.

WITH the jubilee excitement over, the London season is in full swing. King George and Queen Mary will attend a performance of "La Boheme" at Covent Garden next Thursday in which Grace Moore, American soprano, will sing.

The King and Queen attended the Marie Tempest matinee jubilee of stage life, in which three Americans took part—Bernard Nedell, his wife, Olive Blakenay, and Mary Ellis.

The Prince of Wales probably will be godfather to the son born to Lord and Lady Grenfell. Lady Grenfell was formerly Betty Shaughnessy, daughter of the Hon. Mrs. Piers Legh and the late Capt. Alfred Shaughnessy, who was killed in the great war. Mrs. Piers Legh is the daughter of Judge Bradford of Nashville. Her husband is equerry to the Prince of Wales.

On her annual visit to London, Mrs. Charles Pfizer of New York, is the guest of her sister-in-law, Lady Duncan, at Stoke Poges. Mrs. Pfizer, who is accompanied by Victoria Swartouts of New York, plans to visit several European capitals.

DETROIT TO HAVE SUMMER OPERAS AT BASEBALL PARK

Huge Portable Stage Constructed Which Can Be Set Up on Diamond.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 1.—For 12 weeks this summer operettas and musical comedies will be staged at night at Navin Field where the Detroit Tigers, American League champions, play by day in their home baseball encounters. J. J. Shubert, New York theatrical producer, is directing the enterprise.

A huge portable stage, 40 by 120 feet, has been constructed. When the ball club is playing at Navin Field the stage can be set up between the close of the game and the opening of the night performance. Scenery in keeping with the extraordinary size of the stage is being built. There will be times when the choruses, dancers, actors and actresses on the stage will number 200.

The stage will be placed at the home plate and extend to the dugouts on each side. Ten thousand grand stand seats directly in front of the stage will be used.

The opera season will open next Saturday night with "The Student Prince." Each musical will run seven nights. The productions will be similar to those given in Forest Park in St. Louis. Although the Detroit enterprise is not a municipal one, it has the backing of certain civic organizations.

MIDDLE CLASS FAMILIES NEVER SO MUCH IN NEED AS IN 1934

Research Director Reports Increase of Want in Western, Southern and Southwestern Districts of City.

A much larger proportion of the families and individuals who sought help from St. Louis welfare agencies during 1934 came from middle-class neighborhoods than ever before, according to a survey made by Irving Weissman, research director of the Community Council.

The increase in need was most noticeable, Weissman said, in the western, southern, and southwestern districts of the city. In some of the poorer neighborhoods there was an actual decrease in the number of new applications, a fact accounted for by the circumstance that most of those aided in such neighborhoods had been continuously under care over a long period.

The study covered applications for family relief, child care, health and delinquency services in the 26 census districts of the city.

CANADA SATISFYING TO SUMMER TOURIST

New and Old in Cities, Great Parks and Even Wilderness Furnish Variety.

The tourist who seeks the contrast of the old and the new, civilization or the exuberance of wilderness, need not go abroad to find it. From the maritime provinces on the Atlantic to the Rockies on the Pacific, Canada offers every possible aspect of civilization.

Quebec is France transplanted to the New World. It has retained most of its traditions and customs. English speaking people live side by side with neighbors who speak nothing but French. Shops bear French names, while some streets bear purely English names. It is this close union of French and English that is one of the chief charms of Quebec and Montreal.

Historical figures closely identified with the United States have at some time been connected with the city of Quebec. Joliet and Marquette, La Salle, De Bienville, who founded New Orleans; La Motte Cadillac, the founder of Detroit, all have come from the old world by way of Canada and Quebec. Churches and shrines, among them the famous Anne de Beaupre, seminaries and convents vie with the busy life of trade centers and shipping on the water front. The quaint two-wheeled caleches drive up and down the tilted streets of Quebec with drivers who are all too willing to explain the beauties of their native city in two languages.

Where Life Is Quiet.

Isle d'Orleans, just across in the St. Lawrence River, carries on undisturbed by the noise and bustle of modernity the customs of forefathers. Churches, convents, seigneurial mills still stand and function as they did a hundred years ago. Steep-roofed Norman farmhouses, brick ovens in daily use, flapping wind mills that raise water from wells dug centuries ago, testify to the quiet life of these people whom progress seems to have forgotten. Here one still hears the whirr of the spinning wheel and the rattle of the handloom where blankets, rugs and garments in "homespun" are turned out that find few equals anywhere.

The maritime cities of Halifax and St. Johns have taken on a certain commercial atmosphere such as identifies our larger centers in the States but English history in the guise of monuments, public buildings and museums still holds forth. Acadia and Grand Pre, called the Evangeline country and immortalized by Longfellow, are not mere names. A cross constructed of foundation stones marks the site of the old church and cemetery. Evangeline's Well still stands. Of the priest's garden nothing is left save the willows planted in an orderly row by the early settlers. The Memorial Chapel is a stone replica of the old frame building and was erected with contributions from Acadians scattered all over the continent.

Canada has its share of national parks and primeval wilderness. A great portion of Conada is known, geologically, as "young" country and abounds in mountains and turbulent streams and thousands of lakes all bearing descriptive French names.

Parks in the Rockies.

The Laurentides National Park which lies north and northwest of Quebec is one of the finest fish and game preserves in Canada. For sheer rugged grandeur little can equal the parks in the Canadian Rockies. Jasper and Mount Robson Parks offer towering peaks, glaciers and steep canyons, and delightful resorts. There are pine forests, brilliant flowers of Alpine uplands and snow-topped mountains that change color as the clouds drift about them.

Jasper National Highway has been constructed within the bounds of the park. Along this road one may see Maligne Canyon, Pyramid Lake and the Columbia Icefield. The central geographic feature of the region is the valley of the Athabasca River. The valley is 60 miles long and from two to five miles wide. The Athabasca River begins as a tiny rivulet at the foot of the Athabasca glacier and gathers a number of tributary streams in its course. There are rapids, whirlpools and finally the broad bed of the river itself. Mount Robson Park, the Valley of a Thousand Falls, Robson Glacier and the Cirque from which it flows make this region one of the most famous in Canada.

For fishing, hunting and primitive living this section has few equals. In the resort district, however, one may have all the luxuries of the Riviera. Lake Louise with Victoria Glacier at its back is one of the most beautiful spots.

Tourists who wish to vacation de luxe gather at Banff for the Scottish Music Festival which is held each year in August. Highland music, dances and games are shown. No less colorful is "Indian Week" when 400 members of the Stoney Tribe from Morley Reserve gather during the third week in July for tribal sport. Dressed in full tribal regalia and mounted on excellent horses, they make an impressive pageant.

YELLOWSTONE PARK TO BE OPENED JUNE 16

More Natural Wonders There Than Are to Be Found Anywhere Else in World.

Yellowstone Park, which has the distinction of being America's first and largest National Park, will open on June 16.

The area, which became a national park in 1872, contains approximately 3400 square miles and was discovered long ago by the Indians who called it the "Burning Mountains" because of its geysers. They believed it to be the haunt of devils and evil spirits.

There are more natural wonders within the confines of Yellowstone Park than are found anywhere else in the world. There are 3000 geysers and hot springs, the largest of them being Old Faithful which erupts at regular intervals, and Mammoth Terraces whose remarkable formations and colorings are due to the action of water and mineral deposits. As a wild animal and bird preserve the park is unequaled in the United States. Vast herds of buffalo, elk, deer and mountain sheep have grown to great numbers.

Obsidian Cliff, to which Indians from hundreds of miles around went for material for arrowheads, is a mountain of volcanic glass. Scout Jim Bridger who came back to civilization with the tale of a mountain of glass in 1830 was not believed.

The famous Cody road through the park begins at Gardiner Gate and winds along mountain sides and through "Buffalo Bill" country for some 90 miles, touching on all the important scenic spots in the park. It has been blasted out of solid rock and passes Yellowstone Canyon with its remarkable colorings and many waterfalls, the Petrified Forests, glaciers and curious rock formations, and Yellowstone Lake which offers some excellent trout fishing.

Photography Exhibit at San Diego.

The California Pacific International Exposition, which opened at San Diego May 29, is sponsoring the fifth annual Salon of Photography. Entries have been received from 24 foreign countries besides many hundred from the United States. The entire exhibit, made up of several thousand photographs, is being held in the Palace of Photography.

GO ABROAD THIS YEAR

FOR A Real VACATION!

You've earned it . . . and it isn't expensive if you will let your Travel Agent help you

Just suppose for a minute . . . some day this summer, you'd walk up the gangplank at Pier 88, and a little later, you'd be leaning on the rail, watching the skyline of New York fade away . . . white gulls wheeling in a blue sky . . . and beyond the Narrows, the strong tonic breeze from the open sea.

Six days aboard ship . . . an airy cabin . . . lots of closet space . . . gleaming bathrooms . . . smiling service (English spoken by everybody, of course) . . . placid hours in your deck-chair, set in a sunny corner of the deck . . . brilliant hours at dinner and afterwards . . . food composed as a poet might compose a sonnet (and accompanied by good wine, with our compliments) . . . interesting new friends. . . .

One evening, a white light stabs the dusk off the port bow . . . the Lizard, your first contact with Europe . . . seaweed in the water . . . a five-master bound for Halifax skims by like a bird . . . the next morning, Plymouth . . . lovely English hills . . . a prim water-front . . . you say good-bye . . . "Good-bye, see you in Paris! 8 o'clock at Maxim's!"

We're still supposing . . . you go up through Devonshire towards London . . . it can't be real, you think . . . it's a stage-setting . . . but it is real . . . Hampshire . . . Surrey . . . London . . . you have four days in London . . . the Tower and Traitors' Gate . . . stately St. Paul's . . . a day in the West End . . . Westminster Abbey . . . this is the King's Silver Jubilee Year . . . you'll see the pageantry of a mighty Empire . . . another day for Warwick and Stratford-on-Avon, or Windsor, Hampton Court and Stoke Poges, or whatever you like . . . Victoria Station, and a boat train for France.

The channel . . . barely an hour later, the cliffs at Calais . . . another boat train waiting . . . before you know it, you're through the customs and in your compartment, whirling over the plains of Northern France at 60 miles an hour . . . down through Picardy . . . your window frames a Corot every time you look out . . . you glimpse the mighty towers of Amiens Cathedral. . . .

Paris! . . . all you ever hoped it was, and more . . . and you have four whole days before you . . . Notre Dame and the Louvre . . . the Luxembourg and the Latin Quarter . . . the Madeleine and the Boulevards . . . (don't forget that engagement you made for Maxim's!) . . . a day just looking, letting things soak in . . . the Rue de la Paix, the Champs Elysées . . . a day's trip into the country, Fontainebleau or Versailles, or Chartres . . . or perhaps you'll go to Rouen on your way to Havre and the boat for home. . . .

Six more days of France-Afloat, and you're back in New York . . . it's worth going to Europe just to have the thrill of coming up the harbor and seeing that unbelievable skyline.

NEW HUNT FOR STOLEN PANEL AFTER DEATH OF ART THIEF

Authorities in Belgium Think Van Eyck Work Now Will Be Recovered.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, June 1.—The sudden death from a heart attack of the thief who stole two panels of the "Mystic Lamb" from St. Baven Cathedral at Ghent a year ago may result in the recovery of one Van Eyck panel still missing, authorities say.

Arsene Goedertier, stock broker, who stole the masterpieces, died without having the opportunity to destroy letters and documents which established his guilt. For months before his death he had communicated anonymously with the Bishop at Ghent, attempting to get 1,000,000 francs for the return of the panel he had.

Goedertier's home was virtually dismantled after his death in a search for the great work. The garden was dug up. The homes of his relatives did not escape search. So far there has been no sign of the panel.

It was learned that Goedertier, who formerly was a church guardian at Lede, near Ghent, committed the theft by remaining in the Cathedral after the doors were locked at night. The loss was discovered April 10, 1934.

The thief, after communicating with the Bishop for several months, returned the less valuable of the panels, that of St. John the Baptist. When news of the recovery became known, he ceased all further communication. Four months later he wrote to the Bishop and demanded the large amount for the return of the second panel, "The Upright Judges."

AMERICAN PASTOR PUTS LIFE IN SCOTTISH CHURCH

Canon John S. Mitchell Introduces Hiking, Dancing and News Discussions.

GLASGOW, June 1.—Canon John S. Mitchell, formerly assistant rector of New York's "Little Church Around the Corner," has made his newest charge, St. Columba's Episcopal Church, at Hallside, Cambuslang, near Glasgow, the most talked-of congregation in Scotland.

Dancing, countryside hikes and talks on current divorce suits are among the innovations he has introduced.

Canon Mitchell was on a holiday trip last year when he was offered the Scottish pulpit. He promptly accepted and bade New York farewell. His unusual methods soon drew the wrath of some members of his congregation, and when he started a weekly concert, which was followed by dancing, the dissatisfied went to the Bishop about it.

Canon Mitchell stuck to his guns and soon so many young people were attracted to the church that the opposition withdrew. Now nearly 100 young folk attend his weekly fellowship meetings, which open with prayer and include talks by the canon on the news of the day—whether divorce, scandal, war or unemployment.

"I invite the young people to tell me frankly what they think of my sermons," he said. "We have our own dance band, which plays after the meetings. I wish some of the divinity big shots would attend. It would do them good."

NAZI MONEY EMBARGO FACTOR IN WILL ACTION

Estate of Mrs. Mathilda Gude Unable to Collect $2900 Debt in Germany.

The embargo of the German Government, which prohibits exportation of money from Germany, was a factor yesterday in final settlement of the $75,000 estate of Mrs. Mathilda Gude, 4600 Carrie avenue, who died in January, 1933. The settlement will be filed in Probate Court tomorrow for approval by Judge Arnold.

It was represented that Mr. and Mrs. Otto Toepler of Munich were indebted to the estate on a loan for $5000 which had been made them by Mrs. Gude, but because of the embargo the estate was unable to collect $2900 of the amount deposited in a German bank as part payment. Under a compromise agreement, payment from the estate of $2000 which had been bequeathed in the will to the children of Frederick Gude of Wanne, Germany, is to be waived and the Germain heirs will be reimbursed from the Toepler deposit.

Charles H. Duncker, executor of the will, said he doubted if the balance of the Toepler indebtedness could be collected, as he believes the German Government will continue its embargo policy long after the estate has been settled.

In the suit to construe Mrs. Gude's will Circuit Judge O'Malley recently found that she had the right to dispose of certain property she received from her brother, the late August M. Buschman. The point in controversy was whether she had a life interest in his estate. She left a total of $12,500 to various individuals and the residue to the Deaconess Hospital, St. Peter's Evangelical Church, Eden Seminary, German Protestants' Orphans' Home and the Good Samaritan Old Folks' Home.

Negotiations for the settlement were arranged by former Circuit Judge William H. Killoren and Noel P. Delporte, representing the executor; Detjen & Detjen for the German heirs and Grimm, Mueller & Roberts and John O. Weirich for the principal beneficiaries.

Many Other Phases of New Deal Hard Hit by NRA Decision Now Face Revision or Abandonment

How Securities and Holding Company, 30-Hour Week and Wagner Bill Appear in Light of Court Ruling.

BY RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch,
WASHINGTON, June 1.

WITH the suddenness and the destructive force of an earthquake, the unanimous decisions of the Supreme Court this week in the NRA and the Farm Mortgage cases not only immediately laid low the complicated "codes of fair competition" structure built up by the Roosevelt administration, but their reverberations have shaken the foundations of all other New Deal institutions and undoubtedly will necessitate, as the President suggested in his press conference yesterday, the discarding or radical changing of contemplated additional reform measures.

In the National Industrial Recovery Act, the Agricultural Adjustment Act, the Securities Exchange Act, the Wheeler-Rayburn Public Utility Holding Company bill and the Wagner Labor Disputes Bill the Administration relied heavily on the clause in the Constitution giving the Federal Government authority to regulate foreign and interstate commerce and upon the declared existence of an economic emergency. Following the administration's example, Senator Black and Representative Connery have likewise relied on the commerce clause for authority for their compulsory 30-hour work week bill.

At the momentous press conference yesterday President Roosevelt surveyed the havoc resulting from the court's decision in the NRA case and declared that implications of Chief Justice Hughes' opinion were that the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, the "Truth-in-Securities" act and the Securities Exchange Act were unconstitutional.

Competent observers add that the decision forecasts the invalidating of the Bankhead cotton control act and the Smith-Kerr tobacco control act.

What the Court Held.

Chief Justice Hughes' opinion in the Schechter Live Poultry code case Monday, together with the more emphatic concurring opinion of Justices Cardozo and Stone recalled to administration experts the fact that the lower courts, passing on the recovery and reform legislation had repeatedly given warning that the powers of the Federal Government were limited to the authority specifically granted to Congress by the Constitution.

Justice Brandeis, in the Frazier-Lemke Farm Mortgage case decision, held that the "due process" clause (fifth amendment) of the Constitution barred the way of relief legislation permitting one person to be deprived of property without compensation for the benefit of another. Justice Brandeis implied and Chief Justice Hughes declared that emergency did not enlarge Federal power.

Difficulties in the Way.

Analysis of the enacted and proposed legislation under fire seemingly indicates that the New Deal will have an increasingly hard time in the courts, if indeed it has any constitutional foundation left, to say nothing of the difficulties that will be encountered from the conservative opposition—Republican and Democratic—in Congress. The "Declaration of Policy" introducing the acts and bills under consideration are in essence the same as in the rejected National Recovery Act. They are to the effect that the measures are designed to protect or regulate the flow of interstate commerce and are necessitated by emergency.

Strangely enough, the first real "Recovery" act, the bill creating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, sponsored by the Hoover administration in January, 1932, contained no declaration of congressional policy. It merely stated that it was "an act to provide emergency financing facilities to financial institutions, to aid in financing agriculture, commerce and industry and for other purposes." The remainder of the act is technical and states how the RFC shall be set up.

As is known, the RFC has gradually become engaged in all sorts of transactions since its creation in 1932. It is virtually in the gas business in St. Louis because of the Harley Clarke loans it took over from the Dawes bank in Chicago. It is in the railroad business in the West and the surety business in the East because of similar loans. Federal Judge Grubb has enjoined the Tennessee Valley Authority, another Government corporation, from completing contracts with the Alabama Power Co., holding that a Government corporation cannot do what he says the Government itself cannot do; that is, engage in the power business.

RFC Avoids Suits.

The RFC has avoided such suits and there has been no juridical challenge to its authority. How far the Government can "go into business" has not been settled by the Supreme Court. The first Government corporation, the Bank of North America, was created in 1781 under the Articles of Confederation. It was followed under the Union in 1791 by the Bank of the United States while Hamilton was Secretary of the Treasury.

Former Solicitor-General James M. Beck, commenting on this bank, said: "It required the ingenious opinion of Hamilton, first stating the doctrine of implied powers of Congress under the Constitution, to convince Washington that the act was constitutional. The opinion is a masterpiece and is the chief source of many of the notable opinions of Chief Justice Marshall, which firmly established the implied powers of Congress under the Constitution. Thus began the process of converting a government of limited into one of almost unlimited powers. The incorporation of the bank undoubtedly had an economic justification but no one believed that the expedient would be resorted to for other purposes."

"Government in Business."

The next essays of the Federal Government into what had been considered private business was in connection with the national defense. When the Government decided to build the Panama Canal, one of the properties acquired from the French company was the title stock of the Panama Railroad Co., a New York corporation. This company today owns and operates a fleet of steamships in addition to the railroad. When war was imminent, President Wilson organized the Emergency Fleet Corporation, under the Shipping Board. This was followed by the Food Administration, Grain Corporation, a Delaware corporation, and the War Finance Corporation, set up by Congress. One of the last of the war corporations was the Russian Bureau, Inc., organized under the laws of Connecticut primarily for the purpose of shipping supplies to those parts of Russia where the Czecho-Slovakian troops were operating. After the war, in 1924, the Inland Waterways Corporation was organized by an act of Congress and this was fol-

Labor Party's Plan of Practical Socialism for Great Britain

Would Retain the King but Abolish the House of Lords—Nationalize the Land, Natural Resources and Public Services at Once— Estate and Income Taxes Would Be Greatly Increased.

HUGH DALTON is a member of the National Executive of the British Labor Party, and as such has helped to reshape the party's program since 1931. He has served twice in Parliament, where he was recognized as an authority on economics and finance and was also a member of the last Labor Government. He is the author of several books on economic subjects, including "The Inequality of Incomes in Modern Communities" and "Unbalanced Budgets: A study of the Financial Crisis in Fifteen Countries."

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, June 1.

THE course that the British Labor party will follow toward immediate Socialism, when Labor returns to power, has been charted by Hugh Dalton, a party leader. Using the official platform of the party as a base, Dalton has drawn a detailed blueprint of practical socialization, to be achieved by democratic means through the machinery of Britain's present constitutional government.

With a decisive majority of votes, Labor will take office and proceed to:

Socialize the land.

Socialize industries "ripe" for it—Coal, transport, electricity.

Abolish the House of Lords.

Preserve the King as a symbol of the state's dignity, a "living flag."

Author Thinks Not in Terms of "If," But "When."

In Dalton's blueprint, contained in his new book, "Practical Socialism for Britain," just published in London, these lines are clearly laid down. Labor in Britain, unlike this country, does not shrink from the word "Socialism" and all it means. The Labor party is a Socialist party.

There are no "ifs" in the Dalton book—it is written in terms of "when." The author says that those who speculate on the results of the next general election are only divided "as to whether we shall win a clear majority in the next House of Commons, or, falling a little short of this, shall constitute a powerful parliamentary opposition, needing, for that majority, only a relatively small access of further strength." It is expected now that a general election will take place in the early fall.

Labor leaders have been hard at work for four years rebuilding the framework of the party on what, according to Dalton, is a sounder foundation than ever before. They have succeeded long since, he says, in closing up the gaps left by the withdrawal of such "prima donnas" as Ramsay MacDonald who joined with the conservatives in 1931 to form a coalition government. They have been winning an increasing number of local elections, taking over local governments, including that of the City of London. And they are now prepared to begin the process of socialization on a national scale.

British Socialist Program Retains Even the King.

Dalton never doubts that England can become a Socialist commonwealth by peaceful, constitutional means, preserving even the Crown and the King. And the author suggests that the United States, too, can follow this peaceable path to Socialism. He quotes Karl Marx to refute theorists who insist that Socialism can come only be revolution. Marx wrote, according to Dalton, that in countries with a tradition of political freedom and a history of parliamentary action Socialism could be achieved without violence.

Dalton's book, as he is careful to point out from time to time, is not an excursion into Utopia. It is a discussion of means and measures to be applied as rapidly as possible when a decisive victory at the polls enables the Laborites to take charge of the Government. There must be no delay, Dalton says, in the drive to extend "the socialized sector" which exists in capitalist England. Every country has such a sector, in Dalton's view, even if it consists only of the postal department.

The task of the Labor party is to push out the boundaries of this sector until ultimately it takes in almost the entire province now occupied by capitalism. And Dalton is confident that much can be done in an ordinary term of government, four or five years, despite the inevitable bitter opposition of the Tories. For England, he says, is different from those countries where "gangster governments" rule.

"The British people, in the mass," he writes, "differ from many others in their distrust of logic and distaste for doctrine; their cult of the practical and their gift for compromise; their sense of humor; their interest in sport; their sense of what they call 'fair play,' a term notoriously hard to translate into foreign languages; their capacity, gained through long practice, for all forms of self-government, including the art of running every sort of voluntary organization; their dimness of class-consciousness, alongside their tendency to snobbishness. To talk or act, in politics, as though these qualities were not widespread among us, is to court rebuff."

The immediate program of the Labor party takes due account of the characteristics of the Briton. First, the Laborites would keep the Crown because the Crown has been "acclimatized" to the growth of democracy. Dalton quotes another Labor leader, the late John Wheatley, who said: "I would never lift a finger to change this country from a capitalist monarchy to a capitalist republic." And he cites Tory opposition to the King in the past, adding:

"The Labor party has neyer adopted such attitudes toward the throne. Yet for all democrats loyalty to the Crown is conditional on the Crown's loyalty to constitutional usage. If, contrary to all recent experience, this became doubtful, sentiment would soon change. The almost mystic halo which now surrounds the Crown, would quickly fade. The cheers which now, even in the most depressed areas, greet any members of the Royal Family, would be mixed with other cries. . . .

Plan Favors Abolition Of House of Lords

Aside from certain parliamentary reforms intended to speed up the process of legislation in the House of Commons, almost as cumbersome as in our own Congress, the Laborites would make only one basic change in the form of the government. They would abolish the House of Lords which they hold to be unrepresentative and merely obstructive.

The Lords, says Dalton, are legislators removable by no election short of death. The Labor party would provide them with "an earlier exit," in order "to clear the road which leads from the representatives of the people to the steps of the throne." These are the words of a Conservative leader, Winston Churchill, which Dalton turns to his own use. Even though a measure is supported by the strongest majorities in the House of Commons, it can be delayed for two years by the House of Lords.

With the legislative deck cleared for action, the Laborites, as Dalton points their course, would proceed to the practical problems involved in putting industry and the land to the use of the whole people. Certain industries, in Labor's interpretation, are ripe for socialization, others are less so, and still others, particularly small enterprises, will not be ready for a long time, perhaps will never be socialized. Electricity, transport, coal and its products are first in line for socialization under the Labor program. "They are all ripe for this change," Dalton says.

In the National Grid system an advance has been made in England toward co-ordinating power distribution and bringing it under public control, Dalton writes, but socialization of this vital industry is necessary to serve consumers and other industries most effectively. He points to the chaotic confusion of rates, largely paralleled in this country. Transport in England is in a similar state of confusion and disorder, with disastrous competition between rail, water, motor and air. And here, too, there is a close parallel with the United States.

Coal, which is likewise vital to England's industrial life, is sorely in need of a basic reorganization. This could come, in Dalton's opinion, only by converting the entire coal industry from the profit system to a system of production for use. The well-being of a large share of the population turns on coal and its intelligent use, Dalton says, urging that a Socialist solution must take into account new methods of treating coal to remove the pall of smoke that extends, in its evil effects at any rate, for a radius of 100 miles around London. Just as St. Louis is casting about for some new method of handling this natural resource, in order to remove a serious menace to health and happiness, so is the Labor party considering—on a nation-wide scale—what is to be done about coal.

Method of Handling Socialized Industries

"The Labor party's policy regarding coal must deal, therefore," Dalton writes, "both with the coal industry in the narrower sense, and with coal treatment. As regards the former, the industry must be Socialized, all coal becoming the property of the State, and all the assets of the colliery companies, as such, likewise passing into public ownership. I say 'as such,' becaues a number of private concerns now combine the ownership and management of collieries with other industrial activities, in the iron and steel trade. This may make for capitalist convenience, but under socialization would make for muddle. The iron and steel industry should be separately reorganized, and the collieries separated from the present mixed undertakings."

How would these industries be run once they were socialized? Dalton answers this question more or less specifically. They would in all probability be organized under the form of a public corporation or authority, responsible to the Government and indirectly to Parliament but less susceptible to the evils of bureaucracy than a direct arm of the Government such as the Postoffice. This is the form under which the Government now operates a broadcasting monopoly, the British Broadcasting Corporation. But Dalton adds: "We must avoid the temptation to construct a doctrinaire and cast-iron pattern, and seek to make all socialized industries and services conform to it. There is no one best way of organizing all socialized enterprises. Still less is there one permanent best model to be created in one act and to remain unchanged throughout the future. We must experiment, adapt, learn from experience and encourage variety of form to fit variety of conditions."

This, incidentally, is characteristic of Dalton's attitude. He stresses the need for rapid, pliant adjustment to circumstances in carrying out the program, with common sense applied to each new phase.

Arbiters to Fix Price of Property Taken Over

And now how to get the industries to be socialized away from their present owners? The Labor party, contrary to alarmist reports circulated by political enemies, would pay these owners on a basis that was "fair and equitable" to all concerned, according to Dalton. He suggests several methods by which this might be done—a lump sum paid down, the instalment plan, by terminable annuity, with an Arbitration Tribunal to adjust differences of valuation between the Government and the private owner. The individual owner would not, of course, have a choice of selling or not selling. By what, in Dalton's opinion, would be a wholly constitutional method the owner would be required to sell at a price determined to be fair and equitable.

"Property rights" says Dalton "are derived from the state and based on the law which may at any time be changed. The community is fully entitled to demand the surrender to itself in the public interest of any part of the property rights of any of its members. Taxation whether assessed on income or capital or local rateable value is a con-

The Socialists and the King

"I would never lift a finger to change this country from a capitalist monarchy to a capitalist republic."
JOHN WHEATLEY.

". . . For all democrats loyalty to the Crown is conditional on the Crown's loyalty to constitutional usage. If, contrary to all recent experience, this became doubtful, sentiment would soon change. The almost mystic halo which now surrounds the Crown would quickly fade. The cheers which now, even in the most depressed areas, greet any members of the royal family, would be mixed with other cries.

"Today the Crown is honored and safe, because it stands above the battle, respecting electoral verdicts, welcoming ministers, whatever their policy, who are supported by the House of Commons, and acting constitutionally on their advice."

Missouri Legislature Set Record For Lack of Accomplishment in Second Longest Session Ever Held

Utilities Lobby Framed Sales Tax Compromise—Grip of Casey, Kinney, Brogan Group Occasionally Shaken.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, June 1.

WHEN the Missouri Legislature convened Jan. 2, it had as major problems for solution an antiquated and costly State governmental set-up, a State criminal code used by unscrupulous lawyers to defeat justice, an almost total lack of social security provisions in the laws, inefficient liquor control, an insurance code under which wildcat promoters flourished, unsatisfactory election conditions in the larger cities, a wasteful system of county government, a taxation and revenue system which was inefficient and burdensome.

When the Legislature adjourned May 29, after virtually five months of legislative procrastination and dodging it had failed to solve one of these problems in a comprehensive way.

It passed an old-age pension bill, but the law lacks provision for full co-operation with the Federal act. It passed a liquor control act, but the State Supervisor of Liquor Control has said it is far from satisfactory for the efficient supervision of the sale of liquor. Its sole contribution to a settlement of the intricate taxation and revenue mess was to add more than $10,000,000 annually in taxes through increasing the sales tax rate.

Reform Measures Fail.

Criminal code reform measures were defeated through the manipulations of the lawyer blocs in the Senate and House and revision of the insurance code failed largely because legislators were afraid to antagonize the various insurance groups affected by the possibly too ambitious program of the Insurance Department as outlined in the proposed code.

Nothing was done toward reorganization of State departments, nor toward reduction in State expenditures. In fact general appropriations were increased to an amount approximately $4,000,000 in excess of anticipated revenues for the biennium. No step was taken toward consolidation of counties or of county offices, a mere enabling act to permit cities to pass drivers' license ordinances was substituted for a State-wide drivers' license law and the larger cities were denied permanent registration for elections at the behest of the professional politicians of St. Louis and Kansas City.

Though ignoring or defeating measures for progress in governmental affairs, the lawmakers gave many days of attention to a bill to legalize gambling at dog and horse races and passed the bill despite many public protests that it was framed solely in the interest of the promoters of dog tracks.

Sat Long, Did Nothing.

In session 147 days, the 1935 sitting was the longest in the history of the State with the exception of that of 1931, which continued in session six weeks after conclusion of its regular legislative duties to conduct the impeachment trial of State Treasurer Brunk, who was acquitted. Its record of accomplishment was the least.

Close observation of Legislatures for more than 25 years leads to the conclusion that it is doubtful that any session of the future will be much shorter than the last one and that little progressive legislation may be expected until there is a radical change in the control of the Senate, which with few temporary breaks in many years has been in the hands of the Casey-Kinney-Brogan alliance. This group almost invariably has working with it the Senators tied in closely with the public utility interests, most of the railroad lawyers who are Senators and usually a few of the one-term Senators, who enter the body impressed with the idea there is no use bucking the organization and, if they would get through the petty local bills in which they are interested, they must "play the game."

The delay in handling legislative business which has grown up in the last few years seems to be attributable to a great extent to the improved road system of the State. Many legislators have business interests of one sort or another back home and they go home frequently to attend to them. In the days of local railroad travel parts of the State could be reached from the State Capital only by a two-day trip. Now these same places can be reached in an automobile trip of from two to four hours.

Battering at Old Guard.

It frequently happens that a Senator will leave Jefferson City Thursday night and be back Tuesday morning. In the first few months of a session virtually no work is done in the Senate except on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. A one to two hour session is the rule for Friday morning and the same for Monday afternoon and usually the attendance is light on those days.

There is a possibility that the Casey-Kinney-Brogan control will be broken at the 1937 election. It was seriously endangered several times during the last session, due to the development of a new group, of which the leader was Senator Allen McReynolds of Carthage, who, though a new Senator, quickly established himself as an able and independent force. He with Senator Langdon Jones of Kennett and Jerome Joffee of Kansas City several times broke into the ranks of the old guard and defeated it. That they did not undertake a general program of progressive legislation was due to the fact that McReynolds was new, had no alignments in the Senate at the beginning of the session and that the organization and committees were in almost complete control of the old group.

Sales Tax Compromise.

The electric and gas utility lobby, which has not lost a battle in the Legislature in many years, had little work during the past session, though it was constantly on guard and maintaining its lines through entertainment of Senators at breakfast, luncheon and dinner day after day, and through the entertainment of Senators and their wives at the Union Electric's Bagnell Dam.

It was not until late in the session that it had anything to do, there being no utility bills pending. It had remained aloof from the sales tax fight, the utilities being willing to continue absorbing the one-half of 1 per cent tax, but unwilling to absorb anything higher. Virtually all the "tried and true" pro-utility Senators were in the group opposing an increase in the tax. When a deadlock over the rate had continued nearly a month and there appeared the likelihood that the Legislature would adjourn without the passage of a new tax bill, the utility lobby got into the fight for fear that failure of any bill would mean that Gov. Park would call a special session and would attempt to put through a program of bills to which the utilities were opposed.

The lobby suggested a compromise of the tax rate at 1 per cent to be passed on to the consumer, and directly as a result of the activities of the lobby the compromise was effected and the bill passed in that form.

Revenue Insufficient.

The Legislature gave no attention to any reformation of the revenue laws. It had passed an old-age pension bill early in the session and was faced with the re-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Agrees With Mr. Wells.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NOT always do I agree with H. G. Wells, but when he risks deportation to say he thinks our Constitution is outmoded, I admire not only his "bravery" but his good judgment. He is also right when he says our country is the greatest of open forums, the one in which everybody is freest to proclaim his faith. I might add to this that the United States is the only country in the world that could make radical changes in its government for the better without blood being shed.

It is true that private interests control our legislatures, but it is also true that Congress yields to pressure no matter what the issue. The Patman bonus bill proved this anew, if that was necessary. If the people insisted that we progress socially in order that we might profit by our economic progress, no number of millions or billions of dollars issued by the ruling clique would affect Congress—at least not for long.

Those of us who have suffered least under our antique social and governmental systems see the necessity for change the most clearly. If the masses, who have suffered most, discover there is an answer to their dilemma, then the change to a socialistic form will come immediately, in spite of all the very rich may do in what they think is their interest. And when I say socialistic, I do not mean forms of government such as exist in Germany and Italy, as do some of our unread Congressmen.

Full enjoyment of life is restricted by great wealth as well as by great poverty. We in America are in a position to create abundance for all. The few will find abundance more comfortable than superabundance. They may have to give up yachts and be content to travel with the herd on luxury liners, but in the long run, they will find that this leads to less seasickness.

The press could bring an end to our ancient Constitution and end depressions for all time, but for some reason it seems difficult to convince it that it is in its interest to do so. Change seems to terrify most of us. F. H. I.

Sister Wernera and the Nazis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

REFERRING to the sentence of five years in the penitentiary which was given Sister Wernera by a Berlin court for smuggling a considerable amount of money out of Germany:

There is a different loyalty to God and to one's country, which cannot be judged by the same rule of reasoning. The laws of a country are obligatory to every national and there is no distinction, whether the violation of a German law is committed by a German nun or any other person. Religious organizations and their members owe the same loyalty and obedience to their country and its laws as other subjects.

The German Government took the necessary steps to avoid losses to its creditors and to secure to them the necessary payments by means of standstill agreements. There is no room and no reason for religious societies to seek another way to pay their creditors under the false pretext of good faith, loyalty or similar obligations. The German exchange laws do not allow anybody to take money out of the country. If Sister Wernera smuggled money out of Germany, it means a severe break of loyalty to her country and a severe violation of its laws. The fact that Sister Wernera not only smuggled money out of Germany for the reason of paying a debt to an American bank but to seek for a still larger amount an investment in Dutch securities, makes the violation much more serious.

H. A. HOMEYER.

Would Revise Constitution.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE inevitable result of complete retirement by the Government from the scene of business will be a quick return by business to its old methods, closely followed by the usual wild state of affairs and a depression far greater than the one we are now attempting to overcome, which in all probability will prove to be entirely too much for the capitalistic system to bear.

We are, therefore, facing a most abstruse problem: the prevention of a repetition of the evils which we are—or have been—eradicating.

There remains but one sensible thing to do, if the capitalistic system is to remain in a modified form. And this one thing is a revision of the Constitution.

Naturally, when it was written, it fitted and served existing conditions very fittingly. However, America has been subject to evolution. As a result, the Constitution of these United States is to a great extent positively inadequate to serve our country. It is nothing less than an old worn-out piece of machinery, and it is now necessary that it be replaced with one to fit the needs of the country as a whole. If this essential step is not taken, it will not be long before the question, "How shall we share the wealth?" will be superseded by "How shall we share the poverty?"

Revise the Constitution!

V. G. HOHE.

GOVERNMENT BY LOBBY.

The best that can be said of the recent session of the Missouri Legislature is that it illustrated perfectly the degeneracy of government in the states.

As a matter of fact, it approximated the opposite of government by the people and came very near being government by lobby. No legislation opposed by the powerful lobby succeeded, and no important legislation was enacted without the lobby's consent. The sales tax compromise makes the point. It was supported by the lobby, which feared a special session. The lobby wanted the Legislature to adjourn and stay adjourned.

Never before in the history of Missouri were there so many pressing social necessities before the biennial Assembly. Society was in a state of flux. One-sixth of the State's population was on relief. The people looked to their State Government for alleviation, for help, for light and leading. It was quite proper that they should do so, since the only justification for government is the welfare of the people.

Yet many legislative sessions have done more for the people when the times were more rosy than this one did at a time of unparalleled distress. It was so because of the appalling lack of statesmanship in the Legislature. The lobby was just as powerful as ever.

It towed the legislators around as truly as if they had been in leading strings. Some of the members of the Assembly went home when the Legislature went on a dollar-a-day basis. None of the lobbyists went home. Their sway went on to the end. They were in more ways than one the hosts of the session.

What is Missouri going to do about this situation? Is she going straight into the abyss which yawns before her? Or is she going to redeem herself? What the recent session at Jefferson City did in the important field of code reform did not differ in kind from what it did in almost every other important field. It did pass an old-age pension act, but that was the extent of its interest in social legislation. The United States Supreme Court has asserted in many opinions that there is no hope for social legislation unless it is enacted by the states. The court has emphasized in the Oklahoma ice decision, in the Indianapolis chain store decision, in the Minnesota moratorium decision, in the New York milk decision, the prerogative of the states in fields which cannot be invaded by Congress.

It is the sovereignty of the states in which the court is interested. It wants them to be strong and virile. It wants them to be useful. It wants them to strengthen the American political structure by making themselves those public servants which they were designed to be. No state could have turned her back upon this responsibility more completely than Missouri has done.

It is time for the people of Missouri to think—to end the domination of the State's affairs by political satraps more interested in doing the will of the utilities, the breweries, the insurance companies and the dog-track promoters than the will of the people. Only ruin can result from such a political course as that which government in the State has taken. The last legislative session was a disgrace. It disgraced the Legislature. It disgraced us.

Arise, Missouri!

RIGHT ANSWER TO A STRANGE QUESTION.

As is generally understood, the reason for the Norris amendment, as the twentieth constitutional amendment is commonly known, was to shorten the time between the November election and the inauguration of the President and the meeting of the new Congress. This being the case, it is strange that members of the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives should query the Governors of the 48 states on a proposal to advance the election of presidential electors from November to October. Strange for the reason that the net result would be to lose one of the two months gained in the matter of the induction of the President under the Norris amendment.

Whatever the formulators of the questionnaire had in mind, the states have answered it properly. Thirty-seven Governors or their representatives have responded, and only one is in favor of an October election. He is Gov. Miller of Wyoming, who makes no mention of the electoral machinery but says that his State has better weather in October. Negative replies from two-thirds of the states—among them Missouri and Illinois—settle this unnecessary question.

THE MASKED WRESTLER.

When Jimmie Londos entered the ring in the City of Mexico recently, he found a masked opponent awaiting him. The Golden Greek was informed that to find out who his opponent was, he would have to throw him, which Jimmie of course did. Whereupon the wrestler promptly unmasked. "Joe Cox of Kansas City, at your service," he said.

There is a great deal of such wrestling in this life. We may recall that Jacob had a go at it. The Bible tells us he wrestled with an angel unawares. So does our time wrestle unawares.

It is the most puzzling thing about the post-war era. The Republicans struggle desperately for a hammer-lock on the Democrats and the Democrats strive for a strangle-hold upon the Republicans. Yet neither is the other's enemy. Their common enemy is science.

The nations contend desperately with one another. Armaments grow. Wars portend. Political faiths berate one another. The classes clash. The air is filled with shouts and curses.

Yet, strangely enough, if any of them gained a fall, and the conquered wrestler unmasked himself, there would be general surprise to discover that their common opponent is science.

The nations do not hate one another. Political faiths are not such deadly enemies. The classes are not so antagonistic. Men are at heart tolerant of one another. What they all do in this trying time is to mistake the common adversary.

How simple this equation became when Jimmie Londos faced his masked opponent in Mexico City!

He had only to pin him down to learn that he was Joe Cox of Kansas City.

But it is usually not so easy as that. Who else has downed his masked opponent? Certainly civilization has not done so. The depression has not done so. The great Powers have not done so. The philosophers have not done so. The economists have not done so. The great armies and navies have not done so.

Jacob said to the angel: "I will not let thee go except thou bless me." There is where the difficulty lies. Science is the friend of man. It is the friend of civilization. It is the friend of the nations. Until we realize its blessings, it will not unmask. When we do realize them, it, like Joe Cox, will unmask and say, "Science, at your service."

PHILIPPINE COCONUT OIL.

The Philippine independence bill provided that a duty-free quota of 448,000,000 pounds of coconut oil be admitted to the United States annually. Congress violated this pledge last year, over the protest of President Roosevelt, by placing in the tax bill an excise levy of 3 cents a pound on the product. The result has been twofold: to increase the price of soap to American consumers and to injure a major Philippine industry. In fact, the recent Philippine revolt, in which more than 60 lives were lost, occurred in a region that had been particularly affected.

The levy was not a revenue measure, for it was provided that the proceeds be given to the Philippine Treasury, although the Filipinos vigorously opposed the tax. It was an attempt to aid American farmers, who feared competition with their cottonseed oil, tallow and dairy products. Actually, they had little to lose from coconut oil's competition, but the measure has materially reduced the buying power of a good customer.

Now, when Congress should be seriously considering repeal of the tax, since the islands' independence venture makes their economic well-being more important than ever, an added penalty against coconut oil is proposed: a tax of 10 cents a pound on margarine produced from foreign oils. Such a step would be to ruin the remaining American market for this product of a region for whose welfare our country is largely responsible. The House Agriculture Committee should not hesitate to reject this harmful measure. And Congress should, at the earliest possible moment, remedy its violation of a pledge by repealing the present 3-cent tax.

BROTHERLY LOVE EXPEDITION.

Unless China makes immediate settlement of 14 disputed points, according to Rengo (Japanese) News Agency reports, Japanese forces will move into Northern China. The Associated Press says the advices assert: "The Chinese were warned that Japan's military forces in Manchoukuo might be forced to move south unless anti-Japanese sentiment were ended."

It is Tokio's idea, apparently, that all that is necessary to make the Chinese love the Japanese like brothers, after the conquest of Manchuria, is to send an army into another sector of Chinese territory.

EARTHQUAKES.

The appalling earthquake in Northwest India, with total fatalities estimated at 30,000 or more, is another reminder of how helpless man is in the face of nature's major manifestations. The chief earthquake regions of the world are fairly well defined as, in approximate order, Japan, Dutch East Indies, India, China, Italy and Peru. The science of seismic forecasting is still in its infancy, although accurate predictions in Japan in 1930 are credited with saving many lives. Another safeguard lies in construction to withstand shocks, which has made notable progress in Japan and is being widely adopted in California. In these two developments there is hope of reducing earthquake mortality, which one scientist, Chase S. Osborn, has estimated at 600,000 lives a century.

Japan is the region of greatest earthquake frequency, and India of greatest mortality. The largest known loss of life was 300,000, in the Indian earthquake of 1737. Loss of life, of course, is no accurate criterion of a temblor's severity, affected as it is by the density of population, which causes the figures for Japan, China and India to reach such great size.

The earthquake has terrified man since earliest history, in primitive and cultured civilizations alike. In all times, it has been as prophesied in the Book of Ezekiel: "In that day there shall be a great shaking in the land of Israel . . . and the mountains shall be thrown down, and the steep places shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground." Man cannot stay the earthquake's hand, but some day he may learn how to minimize its destruction.

"OFFICER AND GENTLEMAN."

Gen. Hugh Johnson told a moving story a day or two ago about an army officer "of high rank" who borrowed $2000 from a man who was selling supplies to the army, officially denied it, was tried by court-martial and dismissed. The verdict, Gen. Johnson says, "is the equivalent of a death sentence."

The accused had violated no law, according to Gen. Johnson, who explains there is no law that says an army officer cannot borrow money from one with whom he has official dealings, no law that says an army officer shall not lie. But there is an article of war that prescribes dismissal "for conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman," and this article is not only a tradition but a living obligation which must be scrupulously adhered to.

Perhaps it is a bit quixotic. It carries, somehow, a knight-errantry flavor. But if a similar, or approximate, standard of deportment obtained in civil life, a good many of the ills of today had never harried mortal flesh. In the earlier days of anti-trust agitation, when the public conscience was shocked by the revelations of an ice combination in New York, and the law was helpless, a university president suggested as punishment for such offenders "not to invite them to dinner." What he proposed, of course, was social ostracism. Would it be effective? It has been effective in military circles. Gen. Johnson does not exaggerate when he pronounces it "a sentence of death."

Here in St. Louis, the late Rabbi Harrison of eloquent memory, discussing a case of impressive flagrancy, contrived a characteristic epigram: "If a man steals a loaf of bread, we send him to jail. If he steals a railroad, we send him to the United States Senate." With due allowance for the rhetoric, there was a blasting measure of truth in the apothegm when delivered, and there still is. The country has witnessed some tawdry behavior on the part of eminent citizens—some downright knavery, as a matter of lamentable fact, but it has seen none of them "lose caste," with the exception, perhaps, of a Cabinet officer whom the Supreme Court stigmatized as "a faithless public servant."

Can the military concepts of honorable conduct be introduced into civil life? If they can, we shall never again be afflicted with Insullism, Wigginism, Mitchellism. The necessity for a Blue Eagle will be obviated, for the sweat shop will have vanished and the chiseler be no more.

"ALL I NEEDED WAS TO HAVE THE HARNESS LIFTED."

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Burning Conviction

"HALT!" CRY THE DEAD. Arranged and Edited by Frederick A. Barber. With Forewords by Daniel Poling and Will Irwin. (Association Press, New York.)

DURING the late sixteenth century there sprang up in various parts of Europe flourishing crops of tales about communities of men who did everything backwards, serenely unaware that effects may have definite causes, and always concocting fantastically ingenious answers to the wrong questions. In Germany, such tales concerned the "Schildburgers"; in Holland, "the people of Kampen"; in England, "the wise men of Gotham," "the gowks of Gordon," etc.

There is the tale of the Schildburgers, who built a community house without windows. Finding themselves in darkness, they removed the roof, and lo! there was light. There is the tale of the burning down of all the people's houses by way of killing an elusive cat, which got away, after all, in the universal excitement. There is the tale of the villagers who stood with joined hands about a thorn bush that a cuckoo therein might not escape, but abide there singing all the year.

Then there was, or should have been, let us say, the tale about the time when millions of the Schildburgers, having raised too much to eat and made too many shoes and clothes, found themselves barefooted, in rags and starving. And so they said: "Clearly our grievous lack grows out of our super-abundance." And thereupon they fell to destroying their food that they might be fed, their clothing that they might be clothed, their shoes that they might be shod. Nor did they lack excellent reasons for their acts, being Schildburgers.

Likewise, there was, or should have been, the story of how the Schildburgers were in the habit of periodically murdering their neighbors in a big way and being murdered by them in a way equally big; and since it was clearly the weapons with which the murdering was done, they very sensibly proposed to their neighbors that the quantity and sharpness of the weapons on both sides be limited by a gentlemen's agreement. This proved how humane they were, as well as how masterly in the doctoring of symptoms.

And while making weapons of an excessive sharpness faster than ever, they further proposed to their neighbors that all murdering be ended forever by decree. But not one word did the Schildburgers have to say about the underlying cause of their desire to commit wholesale murder in the first place; for the cause was a holy thing and therefore not to be questioned.

In consideration of precisely what, then, may these oblique remarks be apropos? Precisely nothing, if the blind so wish it!

Well, here is a book about the cost of war and its horrors—an intensely humane book, full of pity for suffering humanity; a book produced with an indubitably noble purpose. More than a dozen lovers of humanity, men and women of the finest character, of very exceptional intelligence in most matters, beyond a doubt, here hold forth with burning conviction to the effect that war is to be regarded as criminal insanity on a tremendous scale. They are right; they are so obviously right that an occasional individual in the audience might well wonder why they pitch their voices so high. They prove with figures that the cost of war is almost, or quite, unthinkable—cost in both money and suffering.

So they want to end war; and certainly the burning desire to do so does them great credit. Their hearts are as right as rain.

But as one reads on, it becomes distressingly clear that some indispensable Hamlet is being left out of this drama of thoroughly righteous emotion. They all want to stop war by amicable agreement, while ignoring the vital core of the matter—the deep determining cause of the last war and of the next one.

In the matter of causation, we arrive at nothing better than the following, quoted from the book: "The hold of war on men's minds, which is the hold of tradition and ignorance, must be broken. There is today no reason for war (!!); there is only the habit of war which the world has so far not overcome."

So it was only the ancient habit of war that flung our millions into Europe! "There is today no reason for war"! A happening so tremendous without a reason! Could a Schildburger do better?

As a matter of obvious fact, there is a more tremendous reason for war now than ever before in the records of mankind; it is the reason for the last one and for the one that is brewing. The reason should be looked for in the very constitution of our acquisitive, and therefore necessarily predatory, societies, based as they are, in true Schildburger fashion, upon the idea that the many things men need and desire are produced not primarily for use, but in order that a relatively small owning minority may grow richer and richer.

In this whole passionately written book of estimable intentions, not once is there any intimation of a vital relationship between the bloodless, unspectacular atrocities of the "depression" and the bloody, spectacular atrocities of war.

Yet the deep-seated cause is the same in each case. The raising of high tariff walls is only modern war without the marching and the guns and the gas, and the results of the bloodless social situation involved are as terrible as war for the dumb, suffering millions in the countries that raise the walls. If casual readers or the good people who contributed to this book are puzzled by these remarks, they could do worse than study "The Open Door at Home," by Charles A. Beard.

There are many pathetic passages in this book. The following, by a very eminent divine, is an illustration:

"If I blame anybody about this matter (the last war) it is men like myself. We went out to the army and explained to those valiant men what a resplendent future they were preparing for their children by their heroic sacrifice. O Unknown Soldier, however can I make that right with you?"

He can't make it right by sentimentalizing about it and passionately "renouncing war," as he does. He shall have to do a bit of clearer thinking about the cause of that which he renounces. It was not his heart that was wrong before; it was his head. And there's nothing in his "ringing" renunciation of war to indicate that the head is working any better now than formerly.

A LONDON STORY. By George Buchanan. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York City.)

THIS is a first novel by a British author whose non-fiction book, "Passage Through the Present," won high praise and a small reading public several years ago. Those who care especially for distinctive writing should not overlook George Buchanan. He sees with a clarity and writes with an economy seldom found in novels.

To read his "London Story" is much like hearing one with a low, well-modulated voice giving what at first appears to be a wholly casual account of minor happenings to several rather ordinary individuals. There are no dramatic stresses, no attempts of any sort to impress. Finally it occurs to the reader that deeper meanings are stealing into the narrative, and that the words have a striking way of being just the necessary ones; that not a word could be omitted without detriment to the story; that the precise simplicity of the language results in a richness and power that compel admiration.

To sketch the story in an effort to convey its exceptional merits would be much like describing the features of a beautiful woman by way of conveying her exceptional charm. Two brothers are working in a great London department store. They both get married, and, in the course of the tale, both are discharged by the owner of the store. Really, that's about all. But somehow, you stay with the book and read; for, first of all, you do not struggle along; rather, you seem to drift on a calm, steady current with never a waterfall or a stretch of rapids. And it's all a trivial enough business, apparently, until you begin to note the increasing crystal depths beneath you.

George Buchanan is only 30 years old, but he is wise beyond most of his fellows.

A GUIDE TO BIRD SONGS. By Aretas A. Saunders. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York City.)

THIS handbook by a distinguished ornithologist is said to be unique. The author has developed a simple method of identifying birds by hearing only. The songs of 150 birds, commonly found east of the Rocky Mountain states and north of Virginia, are described and diagrammed without the use of musical notation. Students of bird life should find the book a treasure.

ANTI-DICKMANN FACTION CLAIMS 40 OF 56 VOTES

36 Necessary to Oust Hannegan as Chairman at Coming Meeting of Democratic Committee.

Igoe, W. J. Brennan, Recorder English and Jimmy Miller at Preliminary Conference.

At a meeting at Hotel Jefferson Friday night of members of the Democratic City Committee and other party leaders unfriendly to Mayor Dickmann, it was concluded that 40 of the 56 members of the city committee could be counted on to vote for making Recorder of Deeds English the committee chairman in place of Robert E. Hannegan. A minimum of 36 votes would be required.

The movement to unseat Hannegan, which grew largely from the feeling of some of his colleagues that he was too friendly to Dickmann, will be settled at the committee's monthly meeting Tuesday. The anti-Dickmannites anticipated that they would win the support of six or seven members of the committee who have been given city jobs in the Dickmann administration.

Some Who Attended.

Among those at the Friday night meeting, it was learned, were William L. Igoe, president of the Police Board and powerful party leader, who formerly was friendly to the Mayor; William J. Brennan, a Democratic State Committeeman; Recorder English, Justice of the Peace Jimmy Miller, Fourth Ward Democratic boss, and a number of other committeemen.

Some of the antagonism against Hannegan grew out of a speech he made at the recent Jefferson Day dinner of the Jefferson Club, in which he called on Democrats to support the administration or be branded as not good party men.

Hannegan's followers have denied that sufficient votes could be mustered to unseat him. They have insisted also that the chairman should be given 10 days' formal notice of an attempt to oust him, but that this was not done. The opponents replied that such a notice would be required only for a special meeting, but that Tuesday's gathering would be a regular one.

Mayor Urged to Fight.

Friends of Mayor Dickmann have urged him to dismiss from the city payroll any committee members who may vote against Hannegan, as Hannegan's friendliness to the Mayor has been made an issue. They have urged also that followers of the unfriendly committee members who are on the payroll be dropped. They advised the Mayor to become more aggressive in opposing the insurgent faction. The anti-Dickmannites have been paving the way to work against his anticipated effort to gain renomination as Mayor in 1937.

Refusal of the Board of Aldermen to vest in William L. Mason, the new Democratic president of the board, the powers of appointing committees and ruling on points of order was another step in the movement against Dickmann, who espoused Mason's election. Under Republican control the aldermanic President was powerful but the Democrats made him a figurehead in the board. The majority of the board, which has been unfriendly to the Mayor, also has created a standing Investigating Committee, empowered to investigate any city department at any time.

JAPAN MAKES BIGGEST GAIN AMONG EXPORTERS TO CHILE

Exchange of Textiles for Nitrate Accounts for 600 Per Cent Increase Since 1932.

By the Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 1. — A Government study shows that Japan has made the greatest relative recovery of business with Chile since 1932. Textiles, bought in exchange for nitrates, are responsible.

Although Chile imports chiefly from the United States and Great Britain, the report says, only imports from Japan can show an increase for 1934 of 600 per cent over those of 1932 and 375 per cent over those of 1933.

Textiles represent 72 per cent of all Japanese imports. Diverse manufactured products, such as light globes, toys and bicycles, make up the rest.

The largest gains shown during the first two months of this year, by comparison with January and February of 1934, were made by Great Britain, followed by the United States. Great Britain shipped 13,100,000 pesos worth, a gain of [illegible] per cent.

In 1932 Japan sold Chile 31 per cent of all the crude cotton cloth imported. In 1933 the percentage was 60. Last year it was 87.

English Laborites' Plan For Practical Socialism

stant illustration of this principls."

Care must be taken Dalton makes clear lest this compensation to the owners of industry become a permanent burden. There should be a provision which would permit retirement of the debt contracted by means of higher "death duties" that is inheritance taxes.

Proposal for Regulating the Bank of England.

Dalton cites the "failure of the financiers" to regulate credit for the needs of the modern community in support of the Labor party's plan to reform the Bank of England. This is a formidable undertaking for as Dalton makes plain the Bank of England is a power unto itself a kind of super-government. The bank's weekly return is a mystery" says Dalton and its half-yearly report a "mockery."

"By varying its bank rate and by its open market operations, it can expand or restrict the volume of credit, lower or raise the rate of interest on gilt-edged stocks, increase or diminish employment, and bring a strong pressure to bear on rates of wages and the standard of life," writes Dalton. "These powers are even greater, now that we are off, than when we were on, the gold standard. The governor of the bank not only exercises high authority in the City; he also plays an important international role. Through his frequent contacts with the governors of central banks in other countries and through his nominees on the governing body of the Bank for International Settlements, he has a large influence on international finance and international politics."

The governor, instead of being elected as he is now by the private directors of the Bank, would under the Labor party's plan be appointed by the Crown on the recommendation of the cabinet minister responsible for finance. The day-to-day business of the bank would be carried on, as at present, by the governor and his subordinates, but the broad lines of the bank's policy would be subject to control of Parliament under a general law regulating the character and volume of the currency and other banking questions. Reorganized on a basis of 'public ownership and control" the bank would become the pivot of the British financial system, Dalton writes.

"Ancient Right of Eminent Domain Brought Up to Date."

The land must be controlled and in considerable part socialized when the Labor party comes into power, Dalton says. This is essential, he holds, to intelligent planning. And this, it may be added here, is the element that Dalton stresses in his discussion of the Labor party's "planned economy"—the need for control, if not actual socialization, of the vital factors to come within a "planned economy."

"The powers required for speedy socialization have been clearly stated by the Labor party in its report on the land and national planning of agriculture," Dalton writes. "'It is proposed that a general enabling act should be passed giving the state power to acquire any or all land, rural or urban, at any time after the passing of the act, and laying down the basis of compensation to the owners.' . . . Further, 'it should be the general policy to transfer to national ownership, as soon as administratively practical, all agricultural land, and the appropriate Minister should have power under the act to issue orders, operative without further reference to Parliament, specifying as and when decided by him the particular land to be transferred.' . . . There is in this procedure nothing new, except the absence of delay. It is the state's ancient right of eminent domain," brought up to date."

This is similar to the right of condemnation, invoked in this country in connection with public works projects such as slum clearance, but only after long delays and in the face of numerous legal obstacles.

Planning on a national scale would provide, under the Laborites' program, national parks such as already exist in this country. It would provide, too, a program of public works, which would be "started and expanded, not as mere supplements to private works, but on their own merits, as projects of public development, hitherto neglected, and of employment." Dalton speaks with scorn of the kind of public works program that "must be fed on the scrag ends of economic activity." A large and rapid reduction of unemployment must be the primary objective of Labor when next it assumes power, in Dalton's view. And he adds that Labor should not take office unless this can be brought about.

"I have discussed," Dalton writes, "a number of separate activities of economic planning. What central machinery is required to co-ordinate these activities and make them fully effective? The Labor party, I think wisely, has given no dogmatic answer to this question. We must proceed experimentally, guided by the light of experience rather than by any elaborate preconceived theory."

Workers would have a considerable degree of control over socialized industries, under the Labor party's plan, Dalton states. The central board in charge of a public corporation, running the electrical industry, say, would be required to hold frequent consultations with the trade unions and the board itself would contain union representatives. Also, leaders of the Co-operative Movement, which now includes about half of all the consumers in Great Britain, will have a part in a plan which approaches self-government by the workers.

Reduction of Economic Inequalities Chief Aim.

Of the ultimate goal to be achieved by these diverse means, Dalton says: "Complete economic equality—in the sense of absolute equality of individual income, or of individual 'outgo' in the form of effort—is neither practically possible, nor ideally good. Nor is it necessary to the attainment of social equality and the classless state. But what is necessary is a very great reduction in our present economic inequalities."

To reduce these inequalities, the Labor party would, besides the steps toward socialization already described, pass a great deal of social legislation, revising the factories act, the shops act, the workmen's compensation act, and so on. Education, now available in its higher reaches only to those privileged by wealth or phenomenal intelligence and perserverance, would be opened to all on an equal basis.

All this means, as Dalton makes clear, an attack on great wealth, and particularly inherited wealth. While wealth in England fluctuates from year to year, Dalton says, the general trend is upward, "both in the total and in the part of this which is left by a small wealthy minority." The depression has made no essential difference in this trend. What Labor proposes is to scale down the larger fortunes, some of which have come down through several hundred years.

Method for Cutting Down Huge Fortunes.

"The subtractions made by death duties (inheritance taxes), on their present scale, have been more than offset by the additions, which the opportunnities of the capitalist system make possible, to the wealth of the fortunate minority. The death duties do not, as yet, arrest the process of continuous concentration of wealth in few hands. They only slow it down. The rich in Britain are still growing richer. And in the last few years the fall in the rate of interest has raised substantially the capital value of land and securities, and of gilt-edged securities most of all."

Labor's program starts off with increases in the present scale of estate taxes, graduated sharply upward in the higher brackets. The highest level at present is 50 per cent on estates of more than £2,000,000. Dalton looks forward to a time when the state will permit inheritance only "in the form of an annuity, terminable at the end of one life, or at most two lives, or at the end of a fixed term of years." Although this is for the distant future, the author proposes an immediate step toward it in the form of a "supplementary inheritance duty" to apply to estates over a certain level, say £50,000.

Favors Putting India in Dominion Status, in Time.

The thorny problem of the colonies, Labor would solve by socialization and self-government. India, under the Labor program, would be accorded the status of the dominions such as Canada as soon as a capacity for self-government had been demonstrated. So far as the rest of the world is concerned Labor would work for the peace proposals that Arthur Henderson, Minister of Foreign Affairs in the last Labor Government, presented at Geneva.

Dalton says little about the opposition that Labor's sweeping program would call forth. There would be "panic-mongering" especially by the Conservative press, he warns. But it is his opinion that the nation—all important elements—would accept the verdict of the voters even though the wealthy would be well aware that this would mean an immediate attempt to break their hold over industry.

Labor makes this very plain—that a decisive victory at the polls will be the beginning of an attempt to convert Britain from capitalism to socialism as fast as the machinery of constitutional government will permit.

WILD BRAZILIAN TRIBE SLEEPS IN PYRAMID IN ONE CABIN

Oldest Members Lie on Ground, Middle Aged Next and So On, With Youngest On Top.

By the Associated Press.

FORTALEZA, CEARA, Brazil, June 1.—The Capuchin friars, who for many years have sought to educate the wild aborigines of the Maranhao forests, and convert them to Christianity, tell of a quaint, if somewhat oppressive sleeping habit among the Urubu tribes.

All in the tribe sleep in one cabin, the friars said. The eldest lie on the ground. The middle-aged lie on top of the old ones. The younger lie on top of the middle-aged, and so on, until the youngest are at the top of the pyramid. This practice, the friars said, does not seem to hasten the demise of the eldest.

If the young men of the tribes fall in love they press their suit in an unusual way. The young men keep loading their shoulders with a heavy burden. Heavier and still heavier loads go on, while the young man tries to catch the eye of the girl he wants. If she understands she runs for the woods on fleet feet. He follows and if he catches her, he is entitled to ask for her hand in marriage.

STATUE OF BLACK PRINCE FOUND TO BE GOLD-PLATED

First Cleaning Reveals Coating on Fourteenth Century Effigy in Canterbury Cathedral.

By the Associated Press.

CANTERBURY, England, June 1.—A statue in Canterbury Cathedral, after nearly 550 years, has been revealed to be gold-plated.

It is the famous life-size statue of the Black Prince, over his magnificent tomb in the cathedral. Familiar to tens of thousands of visitors, it had been black for centuries and of no certain composition. A cleaning process revealed it to be of copper thinly overlaid with gold.

Centuries of grime and a coating of protective enamel were carefully removed to disclose the glittering metal. The beautifully wrought effigy, one of the finest examples of fourteenth century craftsmanship in existence, is in almost perfect preservation.

"We clean the cathedral regularly," said the Dean of Canterbury, "but for some reason—I really don't know why—it never occurred to anyone to clean the Black Prince. Now that we have done so we are delighted. It is one of the most lovely monuments in the world."

Many Phases of New Deal Facing Revision

lowed by several corporations for farm relief.

Judge Grubb did not pass on the constitutionality of the TVA as a corporation. He merely held that the Government corporation had exceeded the powers of the Federal Government when it entered into contracts with private companies for the sale of "surplus" power from the Tennessee Valley project, that is when it engaged in the power business. Should the Supreme Court uphold the reasoning of Judge Grubb, the power of the Federal Government to engage in business would be at least greatly circumscribed.

AAA Linked With NIRA.

The act closest in intent to the rejected NRA is the AAA, now under fire in Congress and in the courts. The connection between the NIRA and AAA was so close that when the decision in the Schechter case became known, the proposed AAA amendments were sent back to committee for reconsideration.

This act, which was approved by President Roosevelt May 12, 1933, carried the following "declaration of emergency:"

"That the present acute economic emergency being in part the consequence of a severe and increasing disparity between the prices of agricultural and other commodities, which disparity has largely destroyed the purchasing power of farmers of industrial products, has broken down the orderly exchange of commodities, and has seriously impaired the agricultural assets supporting the national credit structure, it is hereby declared that these conditions in the basic industry of agriculture have affected transactions in agricultural commodities with a national public interest, have burdened and obstructed the normal current of commerce in such commodities and rendered imperative the immediate enactment of title I of this act."

Based on Emergency.

Thus, in summary, the declaration predicated the act's constitutional authority on the existence of an emergency, which has resulted in the impairment of the national credit structure, the burden and obstructions on currents of commerce and the national public interest.

In the NRA case, Justice Hughes declared that the emergency did not enlarge the Federal power and that the business of growing crops was "essentially local," like building, manufacturing and mining.

AAA officials are fearful for their adjustment act on three other grounds: (1) The licensing and marketing agreements authorized by the act; (2) The delegation by Congress of the legislative taxing power to the Secretary of Agriculture in the processing taxes, and (3) The "due process" clause of the Constitution as it might affect these processing taxes.

The licensing and marketing agreements are somewhat similar to the NRA codes, which were held unconstitutional because of the unconstitutional delegation of legislative power. The processing taxes have already been attacked in the Maryland courts by a processor who refused to pay them on the ground that they were for the benefit of a single class of citizens. The question raised by this suit is whether the processing taxes are special taxes not comparable to other taxes received by the Treasury.

$27 for Each Farmer.

Treasury figures disclose how these taxes transfer funds from consumers to the farmers. Up to June 30, 1934, the AAA had paid out in rental and benefit payments to farmers a total of $228,663,676 and the Treasury had received from processing taxes $371,225,387. In addition the AAA had spent $61,005,824 for removal of agricultural surpluses. Total expenditures amounted to $287,639,500, or $27.47 for each person "gainfully employed" in agriculture, on the basis of the 1930 census. Processing taxes amounted to $9.68 for each person "gainfully employed" in all other industries.

The Constitution authorizes Congress to lay and collect taxes for the general welfare. The question involved in the processing taxes are whether they are taxes and whether they are expended for the general welfare when distributed to a special group and not to the whole population.

Wagner and Black Bills.

Likewise close in intent and method to the NIRA are the Wagner Labor Disputes bill and the Black-Connery 30-hour week bill, both relying on the commerce clause of the Constitution for their authority and both having the support of organized labor as represented by the American Federation of Labor. The Wagner bill, which passed the Senate by a vote of 63 to 12, would create a permanent National Labor Relations Board, which was abolished by the court's NRA decision, and would make permanent the "collective bargaining" provision of Section 7-A of the NIRA. The Black bill, which passed the Senate in 1933, provides for a compulsory 30-hour work week in industries producing goods moving in interstate commerce.

The Wagner bill defines as an "employe" everyone working for another person, excepting, however, agricultural laborers, domestic servants and persons employed parents or spouses.

Senator Wagner says that the NRA decision does not affect his bill because the Supreme Court has repeatedly upheld injunctions in labor disputes. It will be noted, however, that the Wagner bill applies to virtually all employes, and states that strikes and labor disputes burden and affect commerce. There is no mention whether the strikes "directly" affect interstate commerce.

As Hughes Sees It.

Chief Justice Hughes seemingly answered Senator Wagner when he said: "The distinction between direct and indirect effects has been clearly recognized in the application of the Anti-trust Act. Where a combination or a conspiracy is formed, with the intent to restrain interstate commerce or to monopolize any part of it, the violation of the statute is clear. (Coronado Company v. United Mine Workers, 268 U. S. 295, 310.) But where intent is absent and the objectives are limited to interstate activities, the fact that there may be an indirect effect upon interstate commerce does not subject the parties to the Federal statute, notwithstanding its broad provisions. This principle has frequently been applied in litigation growing out of labor disputes. (United Mine Workers v. Coronado Coal Company, 259 U. S. 344, 410, 411; United Leather Workers v. Herkert, 265 U. S. 457, 464-467; Industrial Association v. United States, 268 U. S. 64, 82; Levering & Garrigues Company v. Morrin, 289 U. S. 103, 107, 108.) In the case last cited we quoted with approval the rule that had been stated and applied in Industrial Association v. United States, supra, after reviews of the decisions, as follows: 'The alleged conspiracy and the acts here complained of, spent their intended and direct force upon a local situation . . . for building is as essentially local as mining, manufacturing or growing crops . . . and if, by resulting diminution of commercial demand, interstate commerce was curtailed either generally or in specific instances, that was a fortuitous consequence so remote and indirect as plainly to cause it to fall outside the reach of the Sherman Act.'"

"Direct" and "Indirect."

In another part of the decision, the Chief Justice pointed out that what directly and what indirectly affected interstate commerce could be determined only in individual instances by judicial review. The Chief Justice declared that where the effect of intrastate transactions upon interstate commerce is merely indirect, such transactions remain within the domain of state power.

"If the commerce clause were construed to reach all enterprises and transactions which could be said to have an indirect effect upon interstate commerce," he said, "the Federal authority would embrace practically all the activities of the people and the authority of the State over its domestic concerns would exist only by sufferance of the Federal Government. Indeed, on such a theory, even the development of the state's commercial facilities would be subject to Federal control."

30-Hour Week Bill.

The Black-Connery 30-hour bill is based on the Child Labor Act of 1916, which was held unconstitutional by a 5 to 4 Supreme Court decision in 1918. It would bar from interstate and foreign commerce articles produced under conditions whereby the workers were employed more than five days in any week or more than six hours in any day.

The committee report does not go into the constitutional questions raised by the bill. In the first child labor decision the Court held that Congress, in an effort to abolish child labor, could not use the regulation of interstate commerce as a subterfuge to regulate the conditions of employment. Until the Securities Act became law the withholding of the instrumentalities of interstate commerce relied upon to bar from such commerce products in themselves regarded as harmful. Thus, in 1903 and 1905, Congress passed animal contagion disease and the animal quarantine acts. These were followed by laws barring from interstate commerce improperly labeled foods and drugs, adulterated seeds, immoral women and unmarked prison made goods. Senator Black and organized labor would now extend the bar to articles not in themselves harmful but on which the workers were employed more than 30 hours a week.

View of A. F. L. in 1931.

The support of organized labor is a departure from a stand taken by the American Federation of Labor executive council in 1931, when it opposed the following proposed amendment to the Constitution:

"To promote the general welfare, the Congress shall have the power to reduce the number of hours of service per day for which contracts of employment may lawfully be made."

The Executive Council in its report for 1931, commenting on this proposed measure, said: "Congress has no power at this time to fix the hours of labor, wages or prices in private employment. The proposed amendment would permit Congress to reduce, but not increase the hours in a day's work. The Executive Council believes that this is a dangerous proposal. The American Federation of Labor has always opposed the fixing of hours or wages by law. In this case only the fixing of hours is intended and then it is left to the employes and employers, the same as now, to argue over wages. It should be opposed."

Up to that time the Seamen's Act of 1915 and the Adamson Act of 1916 presented the only efforts by Congress to regulate the hours of labor in private employment outside of the District of Columbia, except under Government contract. The Adamson Act was upheld by the Supreme Court in 1917 as a valid exercise of the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce. It applied to the employes of railroads and there was no question that the employes were engaged in interstate commerce. The Seamen's Act related to foreign commerce.

Court on Regulation of Homes.

Since the 1916 Child Labor Act was rejected by a 5 to 4 decision, there have been several changes in the make-up of the Supreme Court and many observers declare that such an act would be upheld at this time. This is one of the arguments of the advocates of the 30-hour bill. Seemingly Chief Justice Hughes answered this argument in the NRA case when he said:

"The Government also makes the point that efforts to enact state legislation establishing high labor standards have been impeded by the belief that unless similar action is taken generally, commerce will be diverted from the states adopting such standards, and that this fear of diversion has led to demands for Federal legislation on the subject of wages and hours.

"The apparent implication is that the Federal authority under the commerce clause should be deemed to extend to the establishment of rules to govern wages and hours in intrastate trade and industry generally throughout the county, thus overriding the authority of the states to deal with domestic problems arising from labor conditions in their internal commerce.

"It is not the province of the court to consider the economic advantages or disadvantages of such a centralized system. It is sufficient to say that the Federal Constitution does not provide for it. Our growth and development have called for wide use of the commerce power of the Federal Government in its control over the expanded activities of interstate commerce and in protecting that commerce from burdens, interferences and conspiracies to restrain and monopolize it.

"But the authority of the Federal Government may not be pushed to such an extreme as to destroy the distinction which the commerce clause itself establishes, between commerce 'among the several states' and the internal concerns of a state. The same answer must be made to the contention that is based upon the serious economic situation which led to the passage of the recovery act . . . the fall in prices, the decline in wages and employment and the curtailment of the market for commodities."

Securities Exchange Act.

The Securities Exchange Act and the Wheeler-Rayburn Utility Holding Company bills seek to regulate business through the granting and the withholding of the privilege to use the instrumentalities of interstate commerce. These measures, reputedly drawn by Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard and his former students, Commissioner Landis of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and Thomas Corcoran and Benjamin Cohen, have frightened Wall street and many conservatives. Senator Hastings (Rep.), Delaware, insists that the Wheeler-Rayburn bill violates the "due process" guarantee that Justice Brandeis evoked in the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage decision. Hastings asserts that the bill would take property without due process of law. As yet there has been no court decision on the Securities Exchange Act. If the Wheeler-Rayburn bill is enacted, the utility interests undoubtedly will seek a final test of the measure.

The administration is confident that the constitutionality of one of its recovery measures will not be tested, and even if tested in the courts, would be sustained. This is the $4,000,000,000 work relief appropriation.

Soon after the Supreme Court decision on the NRA, Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee was surrounded by a group of reporters intent on finding out how the administration was planning to meet the situation.

A comparatively new correspondent asked the wily chairman about the possibility that the Supreme Court might hold the $4,000,000,000 appropriation unconstitutional on the ground that it was an unwarranted delegation of power by Congress to the executive. The older reporters pointed out that the Supreme Court in the maternity bureau cases had held it was without jurisdiction to pass on the appropriations of the Federal Government.

Chairman Harrison smiled when the question was asked and jocularly remarked that he could not conceive of anybody suing the Government to keep it from spending money, and that if anybody did sue, the courts would throw the case out on lack of jurisdiction.

quirement to meet demands of the FERA for a State appropriation of $500,000 a month for relief. Ordinary State expenses were running in excess of the revenues and the only method of providing funds for relief and old age pensions which was considered was an increase in the sales tax. No consideration was given to an increase in income taxes, or to reducing general State expenditures.

Even with the increase in taxes provided it is virtually certain there will be insufficient funds. It is expected the tax will yield slightly less than $15,000,000 for the remainder of the biennium. From it the Legislature appropriated $6,000,000 for relief, $3,000,000 for aid to counties in the care of indigent insane patients, $2,500,000 for old age pensions, $622,000 for interest on penal and eleemosynary bonds, $600,000 for the expense of administering the tax law, and $250,000 for administration of old age pensions. As one-third of taxes collected by the State goes to the public schools, the Legislature appropriated from this special revenue approximately $3,000,000 more than it is estimated will be received.

An overappropriation of general revenues by nearly $4,000,000 was admitted on the floor of the Senate by Senator Rollins of Columbia, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, but this is expected to be materially reduced by the veto of many items by Gov. Park.

WALL STREET UNDER SPELL OF THE NRA CONTROVERSY

Adverse Supreme Court Decision Followed Later in Week by President's Statement Make for Irregularity — French Cabinet Crisis Also Exerts Influence.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 1.—After selling rather feverishly during the early part of the stock market session today, traders turned abruptly and jumped aboard the equities band-wagon again, concentrating in mining shares.

In its sudden improvement the market recovered most of the ground lost earlier.

The sharp gains in the mining stocks, brokers said, resulted from buying in speculative quarters where it was believed the administration might once more hoist the price of silver in an effort to offset delflationary rorces set in motion by the Supreme Court's decision on NRA.

In addition to this buying there was reported to be a fair amount of investment demand for equities based on the idea that once the initial unsettlement of NRA's dissolution is past, business may canter unharnessed along the road to higher profits.

The heavy clouds of uncertainty whihc drifted over the market from Washington tended to obscure the abatement of the flow of gold from Paris which followed the appointment of the "golden franc" Cabinet headed by Fernand Bouisson.

Although brokers still regarded the French financial crisis as primarily a psychological influence on the market they saw in the sharp rally of the franc a reflection of confidence in the ability of the new Government to make some headway with the intricate budget tangle.

Setback to Sugar Shares.

The sharp drop in automobile output, estimated by Cram's at 65,675 units, compared with 100,705 in the preceding week, was interpreted in Wall street in the light of the fact the holiday had cut operations to a three-day basis. The total compared with 54,185 estimated in the like week last year.

In terms of the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, the market declined .3 of a point to 40.6. The hourly rate of trading was considerably faster than on Friday. Sales totaled 676,450 shares.

The buying of silver stocks carried U. S. Smelting up 5¾ points to 112, Cerro de Pasco up 2⅝ to 55, and American Smelting up 2 to 42½.

Sugar shares still suffered from the aftermath of yesterday's collapse brought on by the drop in futures. Cuban American sugar preferred gave up 4½.

Although run-of-the-mill industrial stocks finished fractionally lower, losses of one or more points were suffered by Air Reduction at 128½, Allied Chemical at 143¼, Columbian Carbon at 81¼, du Pont at 96, Liggett & Myers "B" at 109¼, Union Carbide at 54½ and Woolworth at 57.

In the bond market lower prices prevailed although the treasury section was steady.

After dropping to new lows for the season wheat recovered to close at losses of 1 to 1½ cents a bushel. Corn finished unchanged to 1 cent higher. Cotton ended the session with gains of $1.25 to $1.70 a bale. Imported silver at New York was reduced ½ cent an ounce to 74 cents.

The French franc recovered .01½ of a cent to 6.60¾ cents, while the pound sterling dropped 1½ cents to $4.91¾. Swiss francs and guilders rose .08 and .10 of a cent respectively. The belga was off .14 of a cent.

Down for the Week.

On the week the market declined 1.6 points as measured by the Associated Press average.

The week's prime market influence was the body-blow delivered NRA by the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court. Second to this was the terrific struggle of France to keep her gold footing.

In the background of these forces, domestic trade and industry proceeded at a moderate pace. Steel operations were a trifle slower. A more than seasonal increase in carloadings was about offset by a contraseasonal decline in electric power.

Brokers, bankers, economists agreed on only one thing: that the past week's news had left them dizzy.

In rapid succession they were met with the resounding crash of NRA, the New Deal's king-pin; the dramatic fall of the Flandin Cabinet in Paris; and finally, President Roosevelt's pronouncements on the Supreme Court decision raising the question of constitutionality of most of the New Deal.

What the force of these developments would be on markets for money, stocks, bonds and commodities observers could only guess. And even the guesses of the best circles were made with fingers crossed.

TRADE TRENDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The cotton piece good industry is believed to be in a fair statistical position to resist attempts to weaken the price structure, according to well-informed cotton men. A substantial reduction in output of print cloths since April 1 has helped to hold production to the level of sluggish demand, while unfilled orders were generally holding their own, it was said.

With the Chesapeake & Ohio in the market for 5000 freight cars and New York City inquiring for 500 subway cars, there is estimated to around $35,000,000 worth of equipment business on the market at the present time, the largest since early in 1934.

WEEK'S AUTO OUTPUT ESTIMATE

DETROIT, June 1.—Cram's Reports, Inc., in its weekly analysis of factory activity in the motor industry, placed output for the week at 65,675 units, operations in most plants having been confined to the three days preceding Memorial day. Production for the week ending May 25 was 100,705 cars and trucks, it estimated. A year ago the weekly total was 54,185 units, it estimated.

Production of the General Motors group was 30,040, compared with 36,200 units last week and 23,460 for the same week a year ago, it estimated.

Ford produced an estimated 15,020 cars and trucks against 35,030 last week and 10,001 the same week a year ago, it estimated.

Chrysler output aggregated 11,385 cars and trucks, against 18,925 last week and 13,800 for the like week a year ago, it estimated.

COTTON MARKET REGAINS HALF OF FRIDAY'S SLUMP

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Cotton recovered about half of Friday's sharp break in the late trading today on trade price-fixing, covering and replacement buying with contracts scarce. October recovered from 10.56 to 10.95 and closed 10.91 with the general market closing at net gains of 25 to 34 points.

Early fluctuations were irregular. Initial prices showed slight gains in partial response to relatively steadier Liverpool cables, but further liquidation developed in sympathy with early weakness of wheat and stocks. Renewed support appeared as fresh low levels for the movement were established and observers said the market presented a sold-out appearance following the recent heavy liquidation.

Aside from possible modification of licensing provisions under the AAA, traders were inclined to adopt the view that agricultural control programs would be continued as at present pending court test cases in the fall.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 79,000 bales, against 108,000 last year and 123,000 two years ago.

Spot steady; middling, 11.55.

WHEAT CLOSES DOWN 1C AFTER WIDER RANGE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, June 1.—The wheat market was under the domination of President Roosevelt's comment, raising question of possible effect that might follow in event of an invalidation of the AAA, as well as the weak Liverpool market and bearish crop news. The market closed 1c lower after being down almost 3c at one time. Corn closed unchanged to higher following a lower start and the buoyancy of this grain helped wheat.

Aside from the Washington news the Liverpool wheat market was weak, wheat there closing 1¼ to 1⅜d lower after opening ½@⅝d off.

Winnipeg wheat opened ½c off and early was ⅞c lower. The close was ⅜c net lower.

MORE THAN 3C BREAK IN WHEAT MARKET BEFORE TURN

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Shaken by nervousness over President Roosevelt's suggestion that wheat might possibly fall to 36 cents a bushel, all grains reeled downward today, wheat 3⅜ cents.

Low price records for the season were broken not only in wheat, but also in corn, oats and rye. Substantial rallies from the day's bottom quotations took place in the late dealings, however, largely as a result of buying on the part of previous sellers who were in a position to collect profits.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1 cent to 1¼ cents under yesterday's finish, July 82¾@83, corn unchanged to 1 cent higher, July 78¾@⅞, oats ⅛@⅜ up, and provisions unchanged to 25 cents lower.

Giving added momentum to the tumble of Chicago wheat prices today was weakness of the Liverpool wheat market and of British exchange rates, together with a reduction of the official pegged price for wheat at Winnipeg. Numerous stop-loss selling orders were forced into execution by the rapid descent of values here as soon as trading began. Favorable weather and crop reports contributed to bearish sentiment.

An authoritative unofficial June monthly crop report issued today in advance of others due next week gave a further impetus to the bear side of the wheat market. Domestic winter wheat condition was figured as 74.4 per cent, suggesting a probable crop of 456,445,000 bushels compared with the latest Government forecast of 432,000,000 bushels. Domestic spring wheat condition was estimated at 87.2 per cent, against a 10-year average of 83.3.

Corn and oats prices went down with wheat, but met with better buying support than wheat did. A reason for relative strength of corn was expectation of rains leading to more delays for planting and other field work.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to the action of grains.

Today's break added another link to the chain of price reverses that have hit the wheat market in recent weeks and gave expression to bearishness in some quarters arising from the unsettled condition of the Government program. The 3-cent collapse at the opening was the most violent fluctuation the market has witnessed since the Supreme Court's NRA decision was made known.

Wheat prices in the last month have undergone a pronounced adjustment of 20 cents a bushel as the market reflected improvement in crop prospects following the breaking of drouth in many sections of the farm belt. Dollar-a-bushel wheat, which prevailed late in April, has been wiped off the board, and with it prices of other grains have been sharply pared. Corn is now the only grain future selling higher than a year ago.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN

In the cash grain market Saturday soft wheat was nominally 1½c lower in line with the declines of the futures. There was only one car on hand and buyers lost interest. There was neither inquiry nor offerings of hard wheat and nominal quotations were 1c lower. Corn was 4@4½c higher and the basis 5½@6c above Friday. The trading was restricted by the light supply which went to feeders, excepting a single car taken by a mill. Industries were not in the market. Oats were nominally unchanged. Only one car comprised the fresh receipts and this was applied to contract. A holdover car of sample grade white oats found no bidders.

Local wheat receipts, which were 10,500 bushels, compared with 9000 a week ago and 9000 a year ago included one car local and six through. Corn receipts, which were 6000 bushels, compared with 39,000 a week ago and 18,000 a year ago included four cars local. Oats receipts which were 8000 bushels, compared with 2000 a week ago and 12,000 a year ago included one car local and three through.

CORPORATE BONDS OFF ON SMALL OFFERINGS

By the Associated Press.

U. S. Governments were more steady than for several days past but trading activity dried up to almost nothing and the few issues escaping the minus column did so only by the smallest of fractions. Spectacular advances in French Government bonds following the establishment of a new Cabinet in Paris, featured the Foreign Department.

Sellers outnumbered buyers by a good margin in the domestic corporate list, especially among rails where numerous issues changed hands at concessions of a point or more, including Great Northern 4½s at 78, Nickel Plate 5½s at 62, Baltimore & Ohio 6s at 72½ and New York Central refunding 5s at 61.

Among industrials and utilities the losses were not so severe and a number were able to hold even or get a little higher. Prominent losers included Chile Copper 5s, Remington Rand 5½s, U. S. Rubber 5s, American Water Works 6s, Columbia Gas 5s, Laclede Gas 5½s and Postal Telegraph 5s. Higher prices were paid for Container 6s, International Paper 5s, and Consolidated Gas 5½s.

Five issues of Treasury bonds ended the day 1-32nd to 2-32nds higher, including the 3¼s of 1941 at 107.23 and the 3¼s of 1943 at 105.23. Six other issues yielded about the same amount while indirect obligations pursued about the same course. The turnover in Government bonds amounted to only $970,000.

French Government bonds held the spotlight in he foreign division. The 7½s raced up 12 points to 177½ and the 7s advanced 5½ to 174. A number of the country's private obligations also were higher under moderate demand stimulated by dispatches telling of more normal conditions in the republic following the formation of a new Government and prospects that the franc would be defended more vigorously in exchange markets. Other loans in the foreign division were quiet and showed only slight changes.

Transfers aggregated $5,167,000, par value, compared with $4,132,000 last Saturday. The Associated Press averages were .1 of a point higher to .5 of a point lower.

LOSSES SHOWN IN TRADE ON THE CURB EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Selling again dropped out in today's short Curb market dealings, with resulting losses of fractions to around 2 points. The sharpest declines appeared among specialty shares, while in the general list, some recovery developed in the final minutes of trading. Transfers approximated 112,000 shares, compared with 181,000 a week ago. Murphy company got down about 5 points in a small turnover. Aluminum Co. of America and General Tire & Rubber yielded around 2 each. Other issues off fractions to more than a point included Swift International, Dow Chemical, American Gas & Electric, Armstrong Cork, Humble Oil and Bunker Hill & Sullivan.

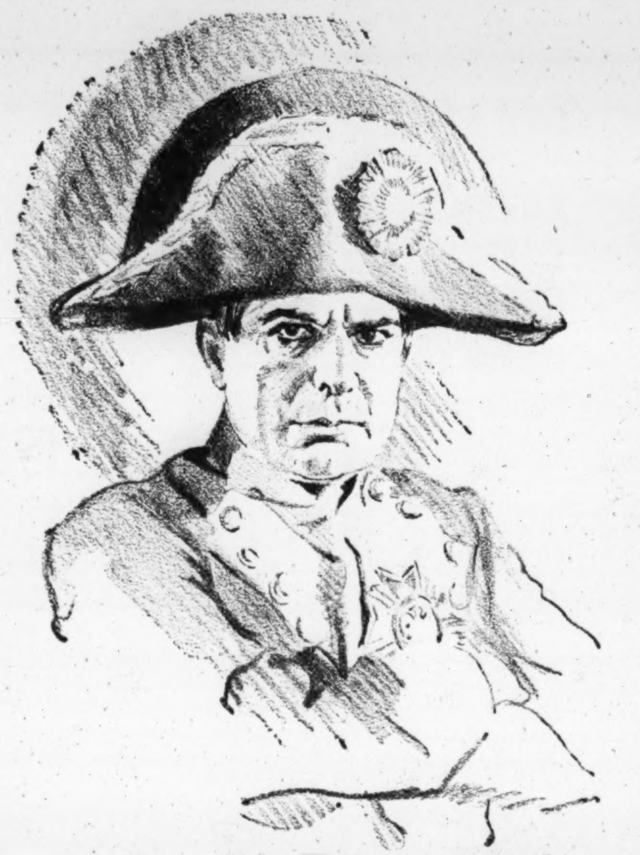
ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 2, 1935.



Leslie Adams as Napoleon Bonaparte in "Teresina."

"Informer," Stirring Drama, Heads Week's New Films

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

CHARACTER studies are rare in the motion pictures, so rare in fact that when the screen offers one of any considerable strength, it is a reviewer's bounden duty to send the word out and rally those who appreciate the better things. "The Informer," which opened at the Shubert Theater yesterday, is such a screen play. I should advise anyone to see it—not only my own class of greedy cinema-lovers but those who have a tooth for strictly the daintier fare and even those sincere ladies and gentlemen who are always telling me that "there's enough misery in real life, without seeing it on the screen." "The Informer" is not all misery, although it dips deep into the bitterness of the days when Ireland was asserting her right to the "separate and equal station" among nations. "The Informer" is only the pitiful story of a brute of a man, hungry and moved by elemental passions to betray his best friend for a reward of 20 pounds sterling. The actor, Victor McLaglen, ascends to the very summit of his art and elbows his way into the company of the invited guests at those February dinners in Hollywood, where gold statuettes are passed out as favors. To any who can immunize themselves from the sufferings of "The Informer," McLaglen offers an hour and a half exhibition of the beauty of acting. To recount the story of "The Informer," I think, would be unfair. Everything happens on "a certain night in strife-torn Dublin, 1920." The betrayed one, Wallace Ford, falls before a raiding squad, the betrayer atones for his sin and receives forgiveness. Woven in are the atmosphere of the foggy night, the grim situation of revolutionary warfare, romance, humor and the grief of a stricken family. John Ford directed "The Informer." As one of two dozen motion picture critics who unsuccessfully nominated his "Lost Patrol" for one of last year's 10 best pictures, I take pleasure in seeeing his continued achievement in "The Informer." His blending of the arts of the silent and talking screen is almost poetic. He has made the betrayer, Gypo Nolan, a primitive hunk of clay alternately commanding sympathy and disgust; he has given Gypo's scarlet sweetheart, (played by Margot Grahame) such moments, although brief, that she rises to the stature of Gypo; he has caught the temper of revolutionists, militia and street crowds, And he has put in such episodes of bloody tussling as to make the Hollywood mortality rate seem surprisingly low. His Irish-English-American company comes through splendidly. McLaglen, Miss Grahame (new to Americans), Wallace Ford, Una O'Connor, Heather Angel, J. M. Kerrigan, Preston Foster, all give memorable performances. St. Louisans who saw the Abbey Players will recognize Dennis O'Dea, handsome young Celt, as one of the revolutionists. His appearance is his screen test for American pictures. Since the Shubert elects also to play a second picture, only enough mention must be made to say that "Dinky," which stars Jackie Cooper, will mean nothing to those who like "The Informer," and yet will go well as a chaser for those who find Irish whisky a little fiery.

Break of Hearts.

A MOVIE publicity man came to the conclusion the other day, in discussing a future picture of some merit, that the "My Man" theme is probably one of the seven basic plots for the films. Or maybe it was, one of the seven cardinal sins. "Break of Hearts" at the Orpheum, is a sin, in that it takes three such sterling actors as Katharine Hepburn, Charles Boyer and John Beal, and wastes them on a surprisingly naive version of Fanny Brice's old number. That Boyer (it's called "Bwah-yay" instead of "Boy-yer") assumes the role of a great symphony orchestra conductor, Hepburn of a struggling composer who marries him and John Beal the outward character of a millionaire playboy, makes no difference. Boyer is still "Mon Homme" and though he has more girl friends than he can shake a baton at, Katie would scrub floors to be around him. The dramatic possibilities of "Break of Hearts" go not far beyond that task. Yet the cast scrub a mean floor, as the expression goes, and "Break of Hearts" emerges a bright and wholesome movie. With beguiling snatches of symphony music to go with it and snapshots from a tour of the best hotels in Europe, plus an elegant wardrobe for Katie, the blooming thing is such as to get most of the trade. That, they will say in Hollywood, was what they were after. "People Will Talk," the second feature, purports to show how Charles Ruggles and Mary Boland cured a daughter and son-in-law of a domestic ailment.

Public Hero No. 1.

THESE Federal men are getting a reputation that will be hard to live up to, and Wisconsin, because of inadvertent hospitality to one John Dillinger on occasions, will have a reputation that will be hard to live down. The latest crack at the career of the darling of Crown Point is taken in "Public Hero No. 1" at Loew's State, a cinematic brainstorm in which Chester Morris goes to prison in order to get next to a gangster in the high councils of the Purple Gang. He and his pal break jail in the California manner, and up bobs a sister of the gangster for Chester to fall in love with, so he can choose between US and U. S. A. On, then, to the Little Bohemia raid (called "Little Paree" here), to Dillinger's face-lifting and the final bang-bang outside a theater in Chicago. Morris, who came to St. Louis for a friendly visit last week, gives the picture all he has, which is a major contribution to any film where all the gentlemen stick out their chins. Jean Arthur makes herself highly believable. The big-time gangster is played by Joseph Calleia from the New York stage, a fine "heavy" type, Lionel Barrymore, as a physician binding up the gang's wounds, dominates every scene he is in. Loew's State includes on its program the fourth edition of "The March of Time."

Nell Gwyn.

WITH "The Private Life of Henry VIII," the English film producers staked an incontestable claim to English historical drama, and we probably should be satisfied to let them do it, keeping Mickey Mouse and gang movies as examples of American genius. "Nell Gwyn," at the Missouri, is an excellent type of English historical drama. How true to fact "Nell Gwyn" is I have not bothered to investigate, although the English scenario writers generally have had more conscience than those in America. Settings seem to have some reality, persons such as Samuel Pepys are far more acceptable. Sir Cedric Hardwicke (the bishop in "Les Miserables") delights as Charles II and Nell (Anna Neagle) is superb. The fault of "Nell Gwyn," if such must be mentioned, arises from a story of too little substance. By way of contrast, an American attempt to reproduce life in South America appears in "Under the Pampas Moon." Warner Baxter, J. Carrol Naish, Jack Larue and a half dozen others pick up accents that are more Spanish than the last 10 pages of Hills' and Ford's little red grammar.

Our Little Girl.

A year and two weeks ago a picture called "Little Miss Marker," with Miss Shirley Temple in the title role, was released from Hollywood. It remains, in my opinion, the unexcelled vehicle for a very capable little actress. Since that time, one Shirley Temple picture after another has been rushed to the bargain counter. "Our Little Girl" achieves definite staleness. Customers will not find it at the Fox after Monday, for "Escape Me Never," the screen version of a play with which Elisabeth Bergner bowled over Broadway this winter, will arrive on Tuesday.

Jean Arthur of "Public Hero No. 1," Loew's.

"Teresina", Opening Municipal Opera's Seventeenth Season Tomorrow Night, An Example of New Individuality

OPENING its seventeenth season at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night, Municipal Opera will offer, in the American premiere of the new Oscar Straus operetta, "Teresina," an example of the individuality now developing on the Forest Park stage and one which it is seeking to further this year under a new director, Laurence Schwab.

Portraying a romance about the career of Napoleon Bonaparte, "Teresina" is an operetta in the best Viennese manner. Straus, now 65 years old, has long been a favorite with Municipal Theater audiences, which will hear his famous "Chocolate Soldier" the week of June 24. "Teresina," which has been played only in Europe, is reported to have several songs comparable to the universally popular "My Hero."

In building its repertory this year, Municipal Opera recognized that it would have to look abroad for material. Accordingly, Schwab drew up a list of available foreign works. One was "Teresina," of which Lester O'Keefe, a former St. Louisan and now production director for a radio chain, had made a condensed version for broadcasting.

With approval of the organization here, Schwab arranged with O'Keefe to write an English adaptation to accompany the original orchestration. Presentation of "Teresina" here is more or less of a tryout, since it is no secret that Schwab would like to produce the show in New York next fall.

TWO other works in the 12 weeks' season stand in the same position. One is "Beloved Rogue," with music by Robert Stolz, which will have an American premiere in Forest Park July 22, and "Lady in the Window," an entirely new Romberg-Harbach work which will be shown for the first time anywhere on Aug. 19, to begin the final week of the season. Many of the principals here may be expected to retain their same roles in Broadway production.

To offer tryout grounds for new operettas has long been the ambition of Municipal Opera, which tried the plan occasionally under the Shuberts. The ambition was one largely forced on the opera by circumstances attending all musical production on the American stage.

Few composers and librettists are writing the tuneful, romantic pieces which lend themselves to the resources of the opera's big stage, its large cast and spectacular scenic setting. Broadway's successes since the depression set in have run to intimate revues, tabloid satires and musical plays which might be produced far less lavishly than the opera counts on.

"Teresina," therefore, takes into account both of Municipal Opera's experiences and its aims. It may be regarded, moreover, as the first result of a new directorial policy, since Schwab has undertaken a type of casting almost completely divorced from the stock company system under which the opera has been conducted. Casts for each of the 12 productions have been chosen independently, with the personnel vastly different from that of last season.

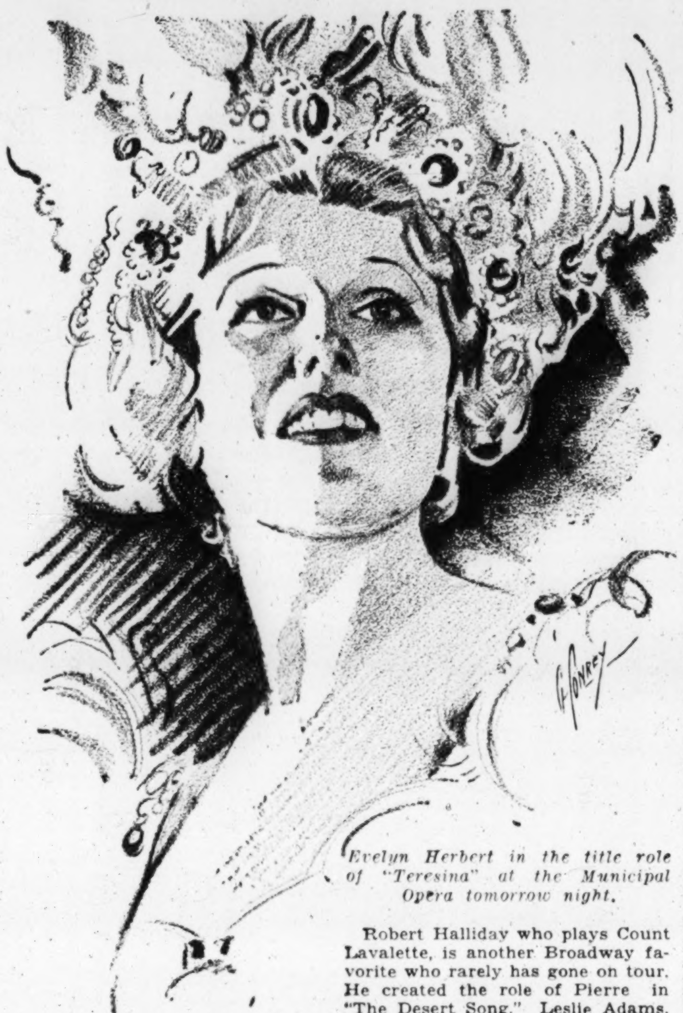
IN THE title role will be Evelyn Herbert, out from New York for the first time in 10 years. She formerly sang with the Chicago Grand Opera Company and created the role of Marianne in the Broadway production of "The New Moon."



Evelyn Herbert in the title role of "Teresina" at the Municipal Opera tomorrow night.

Robert Halliday who plays Count Lavalette, is another Broadway favorite who rarely has gone on tour. He created the role of Pierre in "The Desert Song." Leslie Adams, the Napoleon Bonaparte, is making his debut in Forest Park. He took the Herbert Hoover, King George, Will Hays and John D. Rockefeller Jr. parts in the original "As Thousands Cheer."

Gladys Baxter, popular Municipal Opera prima donna, returns to sing as Pauline, the Princess Borghese. Playing opposite her is Roy Atwell, widely known on the radio for his sputtery sentences and mixed-up aphorisms. He will be making his Municipal Opera debut and will appear only in "Teresina" this season.

Rex Weber, the barber's apprentice in "Teresina," never really learned to sing and yet he made famous the well-known "Brother Can You Spare a Dime?" from "Americana." Weber is a comedian and a ventriloquist and learned all his singing by making his wooden dolls voice the melody he was presenting.

Charles E. Galagher, who appears as the Mayor in "Teresina," is an old friend to Municipal Opera audiences. He was the Little John of the production of "Robin Hood," which inaugurated Municipal Opera 16 years ago. Since that time he has won his way to fame as a concert artist and appeared in many important basso roles in New York productions. Polly Dille, an artist of distinction, comes from Springfield, Mo., and will be seen in character roles throughout the season. Oscar Ragland, Roy Gordon, Earle MacVeigh, Al Downing, Marion Huntley and Victor Casmore are all players of character bits, who will be seen from time to time. "Teresina" will present three of the coming season's specialty dancers, Rosita Ortega, Julianna—a St. Louis girl—and Una Val.

Instead of the usual 84 singers and dancers, Municipal Opera's all-St. Louis chorus this year comprises 92 boys and girls, a special group of 24 dancing girls and 12 dancing men having been created by Producing Director Schwab to emphasize the dancing interest in the coming summer's repertory. The orchestra again will number 50 musicians, most of whom are chosen from the ranks of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

O'KEEFE'S adaptation of "Teresina" was designed to carry out the impudently gay spirit of the story, which is that of a little girl in a strolling band of players and her meeting with the great Bonaparte.

Teresina, or Teresa, as she is known at first, is one of those rare beings who are not in awe of the important people of the world. She puts the great military strategist at a disadvantage immediately by calling him "Lieutenant" and advising him to get a haircut. Yet, by an odd circumstance, she marries one of Napoleon's officers, Count Lavalette, and is deprived of him by the commander.

In the ensuing separation, Teresa becomes the great Teresina, reigning prima donna, and in that role again crosses swords with Bonaparte. For the Emperor, attracted by her beauty, persuades his sister, Pauline, to invite her to sing at a reception. She again meets her husband, too, who has become Marshal Lavalette.

Lavalette does not recognize her, but is attracted to her nevertheless. His suit is hampered by Napoleon, who recognizes a rival. When Teresina reveals her identity to Lavalette, a misunderstanding ensues and the two again are separated, Teresina turning her favor toward Napoleon. But she realizes that she can humiliate even the Emperor and with that advantage, moves toward a solution of the romance.

MUCH of the humor of the work centers about Teresina's pranks, but large contributions to the fun are made by Daniel, the barber's apprentice, a cousin whom Teresina carries away from his village after he has nipped Napoleon's ear as well as cut his hair; by Pauline and her fatuous husband, Prince Borghese.

First-nighters will discover a Municipal Theater stage strikingly different from that of last season. In order to develop a lighting system that would realize the full of the big stage, the opera organization has erected two 50-foot towers flanking the proscenium, with central lights overhead on a cable bridge between the two towers.

An improvement in sound reception also is expected with the placing of amplifiers higher and a little nearer the audience. Cost of improvements is about $25,000. The usual arrangements for transportation directly to the theater have been made by the Public Service Co.

"Teresina" will run for seven performances, to be followed by a revival of "Rio Rita."

Victor McLaglen, as "The Informer," Shubert.

Pie-Throwing Session Is Old Timers' Dish

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, June 1.

"WHY," we were asked by a tourist from back home the other day, "did they stop throwing custard pies in the movie comedies?" Perhaps the answer is that they just went out of fashion. Or, maybe, with the arrival of wealth and position and fine clothes the cinema comedians objected of getting laughs that way.

But there has been a revival.

It may be that the pie-tossing days will not come back to stay but, at least, they are being tried out once more on a grander and better scale—more pies and bigger ones. Of course the very magnitude of the revival may defeat the purpose. The fans used to laugh at an occasional bit of custard thrown by the experts. Whether or not they will laugh when they see 300 of 'em heaved with unerring aim remains to be seen, but the producers are trying it out.

We watched the making of this new, old style, comedy appropriately dressed and seated, we were reliably informed, out of the range of fire. It was something after the manner of seeing them make "G Men," when 10,000 rounds of ammunition were fired in all directions. Only, instead of machine gunners and expert marksmen, this rarest of Hollywood events, an old-fashioned pie fight, was staged by pie fighters of the first water.

Most of the old Keystone Comedy favorites still living were in it. Wally Beery wasn't there, nor Charlie Chaplin, nor even Gloria Swanson. But there was no mistaking Ben Turpin, Ford Sterling, Chester Conklin, Vivian Oakland, Hank Mann, Marie Prevost, Bert Roach, Leo White, Dewey Robinson and several others whose faces and costumes were familiar, although their names are not so easily remembered.

A motion picture pie fight, your correspondent reports, has to be a more or less well ordered affair. It has to be divided into a number of little fights first for close-ups, and then combined into one general battle for the long shots. This, it seems, requires a great many pies.

We had, in fact, gone into the pie-making department before we took up our place of vantage on the battle scene. A pie that is good to eat is not necessarily an excellent throwing pie, we learned.

"A tough crust, like mother used to bake," explained Mr. Sterling, out of his vast fund of knowledge on the subject, "is no good. It doesn't splatter and it is apt to hurt. We need soft, juicy pies."

Well, he got them. Three hundred "soft, juicy pies" were lined up on tables in the anteroom of the set where the fight was to be staged. They consisted of a standard undercrust, a filling made up of cold canned fruits and a marshmallow top. They looked delicious.

THE fight started at a large horseshoe shaped banquet table around which all these old-time comedians were gathered. Two pies were thrown by property boys from outside the camera angle. Both missed their mark which was the pretty, expectant face of a young contract actress who had obviously never before been hit by a pie.

Director Ralph Staub stopped the cameras and went into a huddle with his players.

A loud and very odd discussion followed. "That guy's no pie thrower," shouted Ben Turpin. "You've got the best pie throwers in the world right here on this set, and you're letting an amateur do it."

So, the prop boys retired in disgrace and old-timers took things and pies into their own hands. There was some additional talk about the proper way to throw a pie.

"Not like you throw a discus," explained Hank Mann, "but like a shot put. Flat toward the face. You push it out."

This time the pretty young actress got the pie squarely in the face. When her eyes popped open through a thick facial coating of marshmallow and fruit, she looked very funny and Director Staub beamed with satisfaction.

With that as a starter, the pie fight moved swiftly to its hilarious and unbelievably sticky climax. The camera was moved so that it took in one leg of the horseshoe table. The Keystoners hurled pies from the opposite side, dozens of them, and almost all found a mark. Turpin, on the receiving side, seemed to get a great many more than his share. He was almost buried in crust and fruit juice and marshmallow and it was impossible to tell whether he liked it or not.

Then a new camera set up was made and the other half of the group at the table, as yet unbesmirched, made ready to receive the culinary barrage. Dripping sweetness with every step, Turpin walked by us, a huge pie in each hand and a strange gleam in his crossed eyes. "Watch this," he hissed as he took his place just out of camera range and across the white tablecloth from the derby hatted Hank Mann.

Mann, it seemed, had boasted that his hat would save his head, to some extent, from the effects of the thrown pies. He reckoned without Turpin. The first pie that expert hurled, hit Mann on the forehead and lifted the derby off as slick as a whistle, leaving a fringe of marshmallow in its wake.

MEANWHILE players who had probably never thrown pies or had pies thrown at them, tiptoed onto the set to watch these remarkable proceedings. Warren William was one, Bette Davis another. William even held a pie, offered him by Director Staub, and seemed inclined, for one moment to throw it into the middle of the confused melee. He decided against it, however, and left by a side door when he discovered Turpin whispering to Chester Conklin and pointing in his direction.

When the camera finally drew back to take in one general view of the whole pitched pie battle, your correspondent deserted his post and made toward the doorway, still unmarked. The ammunition by this time had been increased by the addition of countless cream puffs, chocolate eclairs and soft centered cakes. The whole thing looked like a bakery being manhandled by a Kansas cyclone.

On the way out your correspondent came face to face with a pie encrusted woman who was no longer in the scene then being filmed. She introduced herself as Georgia J. O'Dell, who has been making comedies, she says, since 1923. She welcomed the momentary return of pie throwing in the picture business and boasted, gently, of her ability to absorb punishment. "I've taken lamp black pies, water and breakaways," she said, "and hundred and eights' high and broad. Can't draw many big parts these days but I'm still getting laughs." That from a trouper who spent 23 years on the stage, only to become a pie-target!

Chrysler Announces De Luxe Airstream Line of 8 Body Types

Model Added to Airstream Eight—New Radiator—Luxury Interior Appointments.

The Chrysler Sales Corporation announces the De Luxe Airstream Eight, an entirely new line comprising eight body styles. The Chrysler De Luxe Airstream Eight, as the name implies, is characterized by beauty of exterior appearance and luxury of interior appointment. Its price range begins at $930, only $10 more than that of the corresponding model in the Airstream Eight line. The new De Luxe Airstream models are being shown by L. M. Stewart, Inc.

The several body styles are as follows: Business coupe, rumble seat coupe, touring brougham, four-door sedan, four-door touring sedan, convertible coupe, seven-passenger sedan, traveler sedan.

Among the exterior improvements are new-type headlights mounted on the side of the radiator and new fender guide lights contoured to conform with headlight appearance. New dual horns are mounted directly below the headlights in the "catwalk" between the fender and the radiator.

A new radiator has been adopted, with chrome shell and velchrome grill. New safety rubber treads are enclosed in chronium bands on the running boards. An ornamental "8" has been added to the louvres and to the new embossed hub caps. Rear wheel shields and painted sheet metal are now standard equipment.

Luxury for Interiors.

The interiors also are greatly improved, not only in appearance but in comfort as well. Seats are placed at a new angle, providing even greater relaxation and ease.

De Luxe models are available with broadcloth or mohair trim. All models are fitted with armrests in both front and rear compartments. Front doors have pull-to cords. Sedan models have two footrests in the rear compartment and a robe cord. Two assist cords and a dome light are included in thhe rear compartment appointments. A new and improved luggage compartment located behind the rear seat is a feature of the sedan.

In the 133-inch traveler sedan and seven-passenger sedan models each of the two rear-seat arms rests is equipped with ash receivers and a pocket for small personal items, such as vanity and cigarette cases. Two reading lights are located in the coved ceiling between the rear quarter and rear windows. These supplement the dome light. In the traveler-sedan extra space for small parcels is found in two generous compartments built into the base of the front seat.

Bodies All-Steel.

The De Luxe Airstream Eight is powered by an engine of 3¼ inches bore and 4⅛ inches stroke. Floating power engine mountings are used. Engine and transmission are cradled in rubber so that the entire power plan is suspended in perfect balance and power termors are taken up by the rubber, instead of being transmitted to the body. Among the distinctive engine features are positive manual starter, anodic treated T-slot pistons, valve seat inserts, manifold heat control and automatic choke.

In the De Luxe Airstream Eight, the engine and seats have been moved forward approximately six inches which equalizes the weight on the front and rear wheels, and allows passengers to ride in the cradled area between the axles. Individual (knee type) front wheel springing is retained.

Bodies in the De Luxe Airstream line are of all-steel construction, insulated against heat and noise. Old-fashioned body sills have been dispensed with, and the body interlocked, not only to the top of the frame, but also bolted sideways through the frame which conforms to the longitudinal lines of the body. Floors have been lowered 3¼ inches, so that passengers ride with their legs extending straight downward instead of being stretched forward.

A feature contributing to riding comfort is a new type of semi-elliptic, multi-leaf tapered rear spring. In contrast to ordinary types, more and thinner leaves are used.

Production of Autos in 1935 Already Ahead of the Total in 1932

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 1.—The automobile industry entered today upon the final month of the second quarter of 1935 with renewed assurance that factory output for the year will be greater than that in any 12-months' period since the boom year of 1929. The first five months saw production of more than 2,000,000 passenger cars and trucks, more than half a million units in excess of the total output in 1932, low point in the depression for the motorcar industry.

The showing of the first five months and the activity expected in the final month of the second quarter have served to inspire the conviction of motorcar manufacturers that the year's output will not be far below 4,000,000 cars and trucks.

Director of British Daimler Factory at Pierce-Arrow Plant

On a tour of inspection of American automobile factories, Sir Geoffrey Burton, managing director of the Daimler Motor Co. and the Lanchester Motor Co., visited the Pierce-Arrow factory the past week.

Sir Geoffrey expressed the opinion that the streamlining trend will not continue to develop too rapidly.

"In England we perhaps have gone a little further in stream-lined design than here," he said. "Many of the custom-built cars—and there are many more in England than in this country—were made with very individual and eccentric bodies."

New Chrysler De Luxe Airstream Eight

Repeal of Federal 'Gas,' Auto, Tire Taxes Urged by Auto Club

Directors Cite 10 Reasons for Discontinuing Imports—Call Them Class Taxation.

In urging the Missouri delegation in Congress to vote for a repeal of Federal excise taxes on gasoline, automobiles, parts, tires, lubricating oils, and other products used in motor transportation, the Board of Governors of the Automobile Club of Missouri, in a resolution adopted at their annual meeting recently, cited 10 reasons for discontinuing these taxes.

Copies of the board's resolution have been sent to Senators Clark and Truman as well as the 13 Congressmen.

Proposals to repeal the Federal excise taxes are now pending in Congress. Twenty-one State Legislatures have memorialized Congress to discontinue the Federal gas tax as being an invasion of a tax field that should be reserved to the states, and some 300 national organizations have adopted similar resolutions together with scores of communications from local and statewide bodies throughout the country.

Reasons Cited.

The reasons cited by the Auto Club board favoring a discontinuance of the tax are:

1. That these excise taxes constitute special class taxation in addition to all other general taxes upon the motorists of the country amounting to approximately $1,250,000.00 a year.

2. They constitute unfair double taxation because motorists are already subjected to similar state and municipal levies of special taxes, and the Federal tax invades a field which admittedly should be left to taxing agencies of the State.

3. States have pledged their gas tax revenues to the payment of bonds issued for road construction projects.

4. They effect the economy and efficiency of motor transportation for the shipping and consuming public, a handicap not suffered by competing forms of transport.

5. The distance a citizen is obliged to travel or a farmer obliged to transport his products to market by motor becomes, particularly in the case of gas taxes, lubricating oil and tires, the unfair measure of his contribution to general Federal governmental purposes under this tax.

6. The Finance Committee of the Senate and the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives have recognized the unfairness of these taxes and expressed their opposition to their continuance.

Relief Urged.

7. In June, 1934, in enacting the so-called Hayden-Cartwright Act, Congress itself declared that "it is unfair and unjust to tax motor vehicle transportation unless the proceeds of such taxation are applied to the construction, improvement, or maintenance of highways.

8. Federal excise taxes are not levied for the construction and maintenance of highways. Federal aid given to road building is amply justified as a measure necessary for the national defense of all citizens, not merely motorists, and to facilitate the distribution of the mail for all citizens, not merely motorists.

9. These excise taxes were originally imposed as temporary measures definitely fixed to expire June 30, 1935.

10. Relief to the motor industry and allied industry from the burden of these special class taxes will permit them to advance, leading the way to national recovery in a manner that will replace to a great extent these discontinued excise taxes by the increased volume of normal taxes growing out of a revitalized motor industry.

Automobile Studied in School.

The East Technical High School of Cleveland, O., recently observed an Automobile week during which every class devoted time to study of some phase of motors and motoring. In the English classes, for instance, there was discussion of the effect of the automobile on the language, and students wrote compositions on the automobile.

Thumb Insurance for Motorists.

A bill is to be introduced in the Legislature of Pennsylvania to permit motorists to change their license plates "in balmy spring weather" rather than in the dead of winter. The sponsor of the bill says "too many folks are getting their thumbs frozen trying to hook on the new tags with the temperature at zero."

Americans Tour Canada.

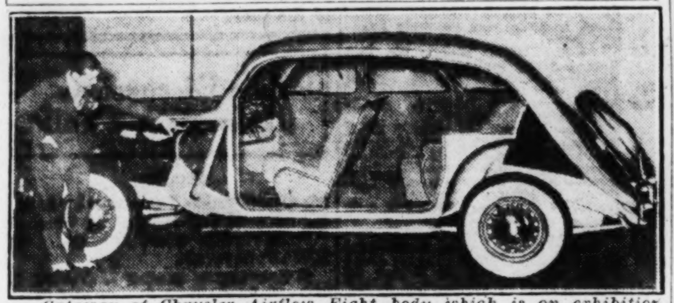
Girder Truss Construction



Cutaway of Chrysler Airflow Eight body which is on exhibition the remainder of the week by L. M. Stewart, Inc. Carroll L. Cartwright, sales manager for the firm, is calling attention to the steel bridge truss type construction in which the passengers are cradled for protection in addition to the protection afforded by the all-steel body. Evident is the girder truss construction, the steel floor construction, the extra bracing at the cowl. The cutaway also shows the space behind the rear seat for stowage of luggage.

Oldsmobile Sure To Set New Output Record, Ralston Says

Oldsmobile production of 1935 model cars up to May 21 exceeded the production in the entire 12 months of 1934, it is announced by D. E. Ralston, vice-president and general sales manager.

A total of 80,623 sixes and eights have been built up to May 21 of this year as compared to 79,813 units in the entire year of 1934.

"The large bank of orders on hand and the sales outlook for Oldsmobile in the summer means that we will continue our record-breaking production schedule, which has necessitated a double shift in all departments in the factory and has smashed all previous production and employment records in the history of the company," Ralston said.

"It is assured that we will pass our all-time high in production this year. The peak, established in 1929, was 103,000 cars."

License for 1902 Car.

The cheapest automobile license ever issued in Texas went to K. Von Boeckmann, of Austin. He paid $2.52 registration fee for a two-cylinder 1902 model "horseless carriage." He bought the car from a junk dealer.

Chevrolet Co. Opens Safety Service School For Its 10,000 Dealers

In conjunction with the National Safety Campaign, the Chevrolet Motor Co. is inaugurating a two-day safety service school for all of its 10,000 dealers.

Starting May 20, and lasting 10 weeks, these schools will be held all over the United States. Every authorized Chevrolet dealer will have at least one man in attendance. Training will consist of proper motor repairing and tune-up, overhauling and adjusting steering gear and service brakes, the three items listed by insurance companies as the major cause of accidents.

It is the duty of all motorists, for their own safety and that of others, to have their cars inspected at least once every six months at a modern, well-equipped service station, the Chevrolet Co. says.

Upon completion of these safety schools the Chevrolet dealers will organize a special campaign on these three important safety features.

LaFayette Tested For Power, Braking And Balance on Slope

The abandoned grounds of the Century of Progress Fair on Chicago's lake front were recently used by the Nash Motors Co. to put a 1935 LaFayette through power, braking and tipping tests.

A bank of concrete stairs, built to conduct visitors into the Hall of Social Science, afforded an opportunity to demonstrate the car's power, brakes and surefootedness.

The stairs of concrete, ten to a bank and three banks high, ascend at an angle of approximately 30 degrees, while each challenged the car's power with a perpendicular lift of six inches. The car was equipped with standard-sized tires inflated to normal pressure. From a standing start at the foot of the first step the LaFayette's 80 horsepower motor carried the 3000-pound car up the 30-degree sloping steps.

Sloped terraces with perpendicular drops of a foot to a foot and a half tempted the test driver—1935 LaFayette's protection against tipping over, through the use of a wide rear tread, was put to a test. Driven along the steeply sloped terraces at a perilous angle the LaFayette remained upright.

Nash Expects Again To Double Gain in Retail Sales Last Year

With orders piling up and production going full speed ahead on the newly announced 400 series, the Nash Motors Co. is in an excellent position to again double the sales gains it made last year, when retail deliveries of Nash and LaFayette were double those of 1933," C. H. Bliss, vice-president and director of sales, reports.

"In the first four months of this year retail deliveries of both Nash and LaFayette gained 69.8 per cent over the same period last year. This sales increase was made before the introduction of our newest addition to the line. With the added market that this new "400" opens to Nash-LaFayette dealers, we expect 1935 to be by far our best year since the 20s."

New Oil Refining Process Declared Beneficial to Autoist

A recent chemical revolution in petroleum refining, involving the application of solvent extraction processes, has resulted in great improvement in the quality of lubricating oils so treated, and justifies claims of manufacturers that their new oils are better for automobile engines, according to an article in the current issue of Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering.

Chief benefits to the motorist from the new process, according to S. D. Kirkpatrick, editor of the magazine, are that it reduces oxidation, or sludging of oil, in motor cylinders, decreases carbon-forming tendencies and the necessity for carbon removal to a minimum. Further, use of the "new" oil, which is being marketed by some of the larger companies, is said to reduce engine wear and to permit higher compression ratios in motors.

The solvent extraction processes produce these qualities by selective action on the oil, removing the "naphthenic" portions and leaving behind the "paraffinic" fractions.

At least $5,000,000 will be spent by oil companies in 1935, according to Kirkpatrick, in further construction of solvent extraction plants, which will bring the total capacity up to perhaps two-thirds of the country's entire consumption of lubricating oils.

Ford Dealers Make Trip to Auto Race Sales Celebration

Celebrating the most successful spring season in their business history, 367 Ford dealers, salesmen and their friends went to Indianapolis last week to attend the 500-mile automobile race at the Speedway there.

Three hundred and five of the Ford dealers, members of their organizations and friends traveled on a special all-Pullman Pennsylvania train. The remainder drove in Ford V-8s to the race.

Upon the arrival in Indianapolis on Decoration day morning, the St. Louis Ford delegation joined thousands of other members of the Ford organization bent upon celebrating what had been the greatest year in their lives.

"Ford dealers everywhere were justified in this celebration," M. N. Johnson, St. Louis Ford manager, said yesterday. "They have outsold their competitors combined this year by a wide margin. Their success was undoubtedly due to the policy adopted by the Ford Motor Co. last year, which allowed the Ford dealer to turn over a new Ford V-8 to anyone contemplating its purchase.

"By pursuing this policy, almost anybody can call a Ford dealer by phone and have a new car driven up to his front door and the keys handed to him. This was an entirely new idea in demonstrating automobiles. The public acceptance of the 1935 Ford V-8 is indicative that buyers everywhere appreciated this courtesy."

On the Decoration day celebration trip to Indianapolis also were a number of prominent Missourians. On the return trip, the delegation had as its guest William Mitchell, Philadelphia Ford manager, who was making a flying trip into the Southwest after the race.

Engine Performance Test Ground Selected In Southern California

Engineers of the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation have selected San Bernardino, Cal., as the base of operations for experimenting in automotive performance.

Choice of San Bernardino followed a quest for an area reproducing within its borders in greater diversity than any other region of the United States the climatic and geographical conditions encountered in everyday automobile operation.

A caravan of motor vehicles, equipped with improved testing devices at a total cost of approximately $10,000 per vehicle, has been transferred from Detroit to San Bernardino, to be the nucleus of a great proving fleet for automotive research.

Test equipment developed to such a point that accurate readings, previously possible only in the laboratory, can be taken on the road makes the scientific work of the caravan significant.

Modification of a car engine allows exact tests to be run simultaneously on each car in every mile. The engine is virtually divided in two, so that half of it can function on one fuel while the other half operates on another fuel. Fuel, air fuel ratio, and compression ratio are among the factors which can be varied.

Climbing from 200 feet below sea level in the Mojave Desert of Southern California to 7000 feet above in the San Bernardino Mountains, and making the descent over all types of roads under varying weather conditions, constitute an ordeal which will represent engine and fuel behavior under the most severe conditions imposed by nature.

On one road the elevation changes almost 6000 feet in 35 miles, 12 per cent grade, occurring at some points. The Muroc Dry Lake on the Mojave Desert is 12 miles long and, because of its flatness and smoothness, permits indefinitely sustained high speeds.

'Average' Driver Uses Brakes 547 Times in 8-Hour Traffic Test

Thorough Demonstration of Importance of Braking in Operation of an Auto.

An average automobile driver applies his brakes more than once a minute in city traffic. At least, Miss Evelyn Willis, an "average" driver, selected by the Automobile Club of Michigan, seemed to prove the statement this past week in a traffic brake test sponsored by the Plymouth Motor Corporation.

Driving a new Plymouth sedan, Miss Willis used her brakes 547 times in eight hours. A "stop-meter," attached to the brake pedal of the car, registered the number of stops.

The brake test was made in Detroit traffic under the supervision of automobile club officials. Police Traffic Commissioner John Fry was present at the start, and Lieut. J. Wesley Brown, head of the Police Public Safety Bureau, inspected the "stop-meter" at the finish. General Manager Richard Harfst of the automobile club announced the results.

Miss Willis drove through all kinds of traffic, the light traffic of outlying districts and residential sections and the heavy rush-hour traffic of the congested downtown area. She used the brakes only when necessary.

The number of stops varied a great deal with the time of the day and changing traffic conditions. Miss Willis stopped 100 times in the first hour and a half of driving. In one hour, between 11 a. m. and noon, she stopped 34 times, while in the next hour, from noon to 1 p. m., she stopped 88 times.

In the eight hours of driving, she traveled 144.3 miles, an average of slightly more than 18 miles an hour. She never drove more than 30 miles per hour, and most of the time the speedometer registered under 25 miles per hour.

General Motors Adds Period for Summer Course at Institute

Applications for enrollment in the summer training course for teachers of automotive mechanics in high schools and colleges have become so heavy, that a second training period has been added by the General Motors Institute in Flint, Mich., Maj. Albert Sobey, director, says.

The second course will open on July 29 and continue until Aug. 23. Dates for the first course are July 1-28, and applications have already come from teachers in 25 states and Canada.

Both courses will include a thorough study of car specifications and adjustments; instruction methods and procedure; service operations and shop equipment and trade and vocational guidance information. Enrollment is open to any qualified teacher and to those of allied professions who are designated by school authorities or General Motors representatives as qualified for such training. Tuition is $25. Applications for enrollment should be made directly to the Institute.

Motorists May Visit Big PWA Projects

Motorists this summer will be able to visit outstanding Public Works Administration projects in every part of the country through special arrangements made by PWA with the co-operation of the American Automobile Association.

Motorists and travelers will be able to locate by highways such engineering feats as the Fort Peck, Grand Coulee and Boulder Dams, the Minneapolis-St. Louis series of Mississippi River dams, leading soil erosion projects financed from PWA funds, and similar projects.

Various motor clubs of the American Automobile Association will be supplied with "courtesy cards" which will be issued to persons wishing to visit projects or tour the more important works undertakings. These cards will admit visitors to construction sites and enable them to inspect the work going forward.

Auto Men to Fight Tax Rise.

Automobile organizations, representing motorists, dealers, road builders and others in New York State interested in highway development, plan to fight the proposal by the Governor to increase the State's gasoline tax. New York car owners now are paying 4 cents tax on every gallon of gasoline—the Federal tax of 1 cent, the regular State tax of 2 cents, and the emergency State tax of 1 cent. The proposed tax would bring the total levy to 5 cents a gallon. Morotists in the State are now paying $87,000,000 a year in automobile taxes.

Prall Credited With Programs Policy Changes

His Reappointment as Head of FCC Expected to Assure Continuance of "Clean-Up" of Broadcasting Which He Started in January.

By SOL TAISHOFF.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Perpetuation of the new policy in radio seems assured with the reappointment by President Roosevelt for a seven-year term of Chairman Anning S. Prall of the Federal Communications Commission.

Although a newcomer to radio, Prall, who had served a dozen years in Congress as a New York member, unburdened himself on programs when he assumed office last January. He struck out at "blood and thunder" children's programs, medical programs that shocked listeners or offended good taste, and other features he believed improper for the home. His philosophy was that nothing should be on the air that couldn't be discussed within the family circle.

There were reshufflings of program schedules and a spontaneous toning down of advertising announcements. Juvenile programs began to lose their gangster and nightmare tinge. Program policies and credos began to pour forth from stations and net works. An era of self-regulation got under way in record-breaking time.

Meanwhile the FCC was citing stations for alleged improprieties in their programs. Today more than 100 citations are outstanding which means that the station owners must step on the carpet in Washington and answer. Theoretically, under the law, the FCC in extreme cases can order the deletion of stations from the air because their programs do not serve public interest. Actually, it is expected that there will be a general censure and a warning that any recurrence will mean punitive action and even loss of station licenses.

The FCC—and is predecessor, the Radio Commission—supervised radio before Prall assumed the chairmanship. But it was inclined to ignore programs, because of a stipulation in the law that it cannot censor what a station offers in its program schedule. However, it can consider programs broadcast in the past when considering applications for stations for renewal of their licenses, which is not construed as censorship.

It was when Prall took the chairmanship of the broadcast division of the FCC that the program fur began to fly. Then three months later, when he was elected chairman of the full commission, he intensified his campaign. Observers believe that the actions of the FCC in the last four months under the Prall leadership have wrought more wholesale changes in broadcasting than in any other period in radio history.

At first JVH will use 20,000 watts power, but Japan is prepared to increase its power as much as is necessary to insure reception in the principal countries of the world. The programs will open with a discussion of current topics—10 or 15 minutes in Japanese, then 10 minutes in English. This will be followed by half an hour of Japanese entertainment and information. Watt, on a several weeks' tour of American broadcasting headquarters, plays no role in "It Seems Only Yesterday." He appears under his own name, in his own character and tells the story as if it really happened—which his British listeners believed when they first heard the show two months ago. The plot, unfolded by dramatization as well as Watt's narration, concerns a British beauty whose adventures as "Miss England" end in her arraignment in an American police court on charges of murdering a movie producer. All music and lyrics in the production were being written for it by Harry S. Pepper. The cast will include a 25-piece orchestra, a soprano and a rhythm singer in addition to several actors.

250 OF CUB PACK AT IRONDALE CAMP

Parents of Webster Groves Group Accompany Youngsters on Outing.

Nearly 250 members of Cub Pack 43 of the First Presbyterian Church of Webster Groves and their parents are spending the week-end at the Boy Scout camp at Irondale, Mo. They departed yesterday and are expected to return to St. Louis this evening.

The cubs gave demonstrations of their work yesterday and last night the group gathered about a large camp fire. Next Saturday and Sunday scout leaders and their families will visit the camp.

A new cub pack will be installed tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock at the Jackson Park School, Jackson and Balson avenues, University City. Charles Banks, superintendent of University City schools, will speak and Troop 116 serve as guard of honor during the program.

A court of honor was held by Troop 116 on May 23, at which 20 awards were made including an eagle badge to Elwood Gooldy Jr. G. H. Hargitt, scout official, made the award, and V. Carl Ilgen awarded eight other merit badges. Two scouts received axes for their aid in the troop's annual entertainment to raise funds for their yearly outing at the camp at New Athens, Ill.

Troop 76 is now sponsored by the Grand and Gravois Business Association. The troop of 50 scouts registered under the new sponsor Tuesday and meetings are being held temporarily at the Fanning grade school. The troop was formerly sponsored by the Winnebago Presbyterian Church.

Law School Reunion Friday.

The annual reunion of the Washington University School of Law will be held at a banquet at the Century Boat Club, 5500 South Broadway, Friday, at 6:30 p. m.

BERLIN FIRM LOSES ST. LOUIS PATENT SUIT

Pallas Apparate Co., Ltd., Fails to Prove Infringement by Carter Carburetor Corporation.

Federal Judge Davis, in an opinion yesterday, decided that the Carter Carburetor Corporation, 2838 North Spring avenue, had not infringed on patents owned by the Pallas Apparate Co., Ltd., of Berlin, as alleged in a suit for an accounting by the Berlin firm.

Testimony in the suit, filed in 1934, was heard in Judge Davis' Court in December. The German company presented testimony of technicians to prove that a carburetor manufactured by the St. Louis firm was identical in construction and principle with the type made by Pallas Apparate Co., Ltd. Experts for the local firm maintained the devices were different and that the German company's patent was invalid because principles of the construction were not new.

In his opinion, Judge Davis unheld contentions of the local firm and dismissed the suit. He found that the Carter device does not embody all elements of the Pallas Carburetor, differing in principle and mode of operation; the former seeking to maintain a constant mixture of air and gas, the latter aimed to thin or enrich the mixture under given conditions.

MORE FEDERAL PURCHASE LAND OPTIONED IN EASTERN OZARKS

35,000 Acres Acquired in May Bring Total for Region to 520,000 Acres.

The total optioned is 520,000 acres with an additional 250,000 acres offered by the owners for sale to the Government. Purchases are limited to forest and sub-marginal lands and no property of great agricultural value is being purchased.

IF THE pen is mightier than the sword, there have been instances when the cartoonist's pencil was more powerful than either. A trenchant graphic satire—like some William Hogarth, James Gillray, John Leech or Thomas Nast [illegible] frequently done more to alter [illegible] of a city, an army or a [illegible] and his party, than all the [illegible] devoted to propaganda or re[illegible]. [illegible] this is apropos the 10 cartoons published here. If it be true, the [illegible] about them the better; for [illegible] Prize-winning cartoons of [illegible] 10 years should speak elo[illegible] themselves and supply [illegible] commentary to the eventful [illegible] were drawn to shape.

[illegible] prize itself is one of the [illegible] established in the late Joseph [illegible] will and is classed as one [illegible] annual prizes in the field [illegible] journalism. It is award[illegible] advisory board that has the ultimate decision in regard to all the prizes, on the basis of recommendations by a special committee of three. Walter B. Pitkin, the Columbia professor who wrote "Life Begins at Forty," has been chairman of this committee during the period these cartoons represent. The basis of choice as originally set down is that the cartoon shall embody an idea made clearly apparent, shall show good drawing and striking pictorial effect, and shall be intended to be helpful to some commendable cause of public importance, due account being taken of the whole volume of the artist's newspaper work during the year. The $500 award for the past year was made just recently to Ross A. Lewis of the Milwaukee Journal. His cartoon, "Sure, I'll Work for Both Sides," needs little comment, save that it was published at the time when the truckers' strike was keeping Milwaukee in a virtual state of siege, with military control, courtmartials and citizens' petitions for assistance to the President.

Of the other pictures, four relate to the world peace movement and the League of Nations, three to domestic, social and political problems, only one to the depression and one to religion. Three of the prize winners, Rollin Kirby of the New York World, Nelson Harding of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle and Edmund Duffy of the Baltimore Morning Sun, have won the prizes more than once; Kirby has won it three times, the first time in 1922.

While it is not specifically stated that the cartoons chosen should give a fair cross-section of world events that have been prominent in the American public mind during the year they represent, this is a logical conclusion and is fairly true of the choices of the past decade—though there are several exceptions.

The cartoon satirizing prolific legislation with which D. R. Fitzpatrick of the Post-Dispatch won the award for 1925 was perhaps less timely when it was published than it might have been several years later, though the month it came out Merle Thorpe, editor of The Nation's Business (United States Chamber of Commerce publication), complained that there were 2,000,000 laws in effect in America, said that 90 per cent of the courts' time was devoted to finding out what the laws meant, only 10 per cent to finding whether they had been violated, and that excessive legislation hurt business. At the same time prohibition was still in force, 17 legal authorities were in Geneva trying to clarify international law and the Missouri General Assembly had adjourned after passing only one major piece of legislation and about 200 minor ones.

The following year Nelson Harding of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle won out with his optimistic cartoon on the pacificist movement and the League of Nations. The month this came out Germany was admitted to the League, the League Council was considering America's plan for entering the World Court, the foreign ministers of Germany and France, Stresemann and Briand, were pledging their countries to perpetual amity, and plans for the 1927 arms conference were being hopefully prepared. The Dawes plan was reported to be working well after two years and no one took a man named Hitler very seriously. The same frame of mind persisted in 1927 when Harding repeated his success by drawing an even more optimistic cartoon showing a plane labeled "Lind 1932—"The Light of Asia," H. M. Talburt, in the Washington Daily News.

NEW YORK.

IT WAS like stepping into another world or waking from a dream when John Louw Nelson returned to New York. For 10 years he had been in the midst of life as remote from the civilization typified by Manhattan as a prayer meeting from a night club. Yet he had never left the United States. Only a few hours away from skyscrapers, ticker tape, wirephotos, air-conditioning and heart balm suits, he had been immersed in a culture separated by centuries from modern existence—an American culture as little known to most Americans as that of the Ubangis of Africa.

Twelve years ago, Nelson, a pianist and composer, went to Arizona for a vacation. A friend took him to the Hopi Indian reservation, in the northeastern part of the state, and the glimpse he got of the tribal customs and ceremonies so interested him that he determined to learn more about them. On his return to the East he sought this information from libraries and museums with little success. There wasn't much, it seemed, on record about the Hopis. There were accounts of the spectacular snake dance, descriptions of the excellent blankets and pottery made by the tribe, and things of that sort, but they seemed too superficial, too limited in scope, to satisfy Nelson.

A museum curator suggested that the musician help the cause of knowledge by collecting some of the missing information himself. Nelson undertook to do that in a small way; he made several trips to Arizona, and brought back some interesting data. These excursions, instead of appeasing him, merely whetted his appetite. So he went back to Arizona to stay indefinitely, to learn about the Hopis by living among them. He went as a representative of the Museum of the American Indian Heye Foundation, New York.

Now, after a decade with these primitive people, Nelson has re-entered civilization and the twentieth century, laden with the fruits of his long study: exhibits of war drums, headdresses, bows and arrows, rugs and other examples of Hopi craftsmanship; still and motion pictures of Hopis and their varied activities, and most difficult to acquire—a head full of knowledge of the Hopi way of life. It is said that this tall, prematurely bald musician is the only white man who really knows the Hopis.

Discovered by the Spanish early in the sixteenth century, these Indians live today practically as they did then. There are about 2500 of them; their numbers are dwindling. They are agriculturists as well as practitioners of such crafts as weaving and pottery making. The principal crops are corn, watermelon, squash, tobacco and peaches. The Spaniards introduced them to peaches and they are extremely fond of this fruit.

"The Hopis," says Nelson, "are a composite people, resulting from the fusion of 12 clan groups. The most recent to join them was the Tewa tribe of New Mexico, and that was several hundred years ago. For some time previously the savage, warlike Ute Indians had been sweeping down on the Hopis and laying waste their property. Three times the Hopis sent emissaries to the Tewa, asking them for help against the Utes, and three times the Tewa refused the alliance. The fourth request was in 1680 and coincided with the Pueblo uprising, in which all Spaniards were driven out. The Tewa joined the Hopis then and together they killed all the Ute warriors but two. These they sent back to the Utes with the message that they would do well to leave the Hopis alone, as the Tewa bear, symbol of courage, was guarding them. Many of the Tewa settled permanently among the Hopis."

A Hopi towncrier who also acts as lookout.

Each of the groups composing the present Hopi nation has retained its own language, but there is also a "clearing house" language which all the groups use. It took Nelson two years to learn to speak this common tongue fluently. One of its peculiarities is that in some cases men and women must use different words to express the same idea. For example, a man says "kwa kwai" for "thank you," but a woman says "askwali." It is quite out of bounds for one sex to use those words belonging to the other.

Some of the most interesting Hopi customs are those governing the relations between men and women. Nelson relates: "They live in a matriarchy. The woman owns the house and the household goods. A man goes under his mother's name.

"Divorce is simple but infrequent. If a woman decides to divorce her husband, she merely pitches his saddle out of their hut. That's all there is to it; the man understands his wife is through with him. When a man wants to end the marriage, he simply moves out. There are no breach-of-promise suits, co-respondents or alimony judgments. On the whole, they are intensely fond of their children and their home life. In all the years I was with them I came upon only one irregular relationship."

Nevertheless, a Hopi marriage is the occasion for a great deal of mud-slinging. But it is literal, not figurative. An actual fight with mud is one of the principal features of the nuptial ceremonies. The combat is between the aunts of the bride and the aunts of the bridegroom. These ladies fill big tubs with mire, shriek a while at one another, then start throwing mud. By the time the mud gives out and the battle ends, the aunts are well plastered with wet soil and their vocal cords are thoroughly fagged.

In Hopi-land, a girl, no matter how festive, waits until she is about to be married before taking down her hair. Says Nelson: "Just before the wedding, the mother of the bridegroom goes to the bride's house and takes down her hair. A Hopi maiden wears her hair in large, upright buns, which they call the squash blossom style. Wearing the hair in this fashion is a symbol of virginity. The boy's mother first washes the girl's hair in yucca suds—a splendid shampoo fluid, by the way, made by macerating yucca root and throwing it into water. After the girl's hair is washed, her future mother-in-law braids it. This signifies her changed status from maid to matron."

THE Hopis, Nelson found, have accumulated, through their various fusions, 800 gods, and many of their dances have religious significance. For instance, the annual snake dance, in which live rattlesnakes are carried by the dancers, is a religious rite; after the dance the snakes are released to carry into the earth petitions for rain to the water gods.

"Rain," says Nelson, "is the focal center of most of their ceremonies. Drouth is a constant menace."

Nelson expects to return to the Hopis soon, even though he knows a formidable ordeal awaits him. As soon as he gets back he must call on the elders of the tribe and eat with each of his hospitable hosts. It's quite a tax on the stomach capacity. But he [illegible] have to manage it, for it is a grave insult to refuse to eat in a Hopi home. Once, on returning from a short hunting trip, he visited 23 Hopi houses a day and had to eat 23 meals.

Wife and Five Children Poisoned, One by One

Frederick Gross, between his attorney and the District Attorney at his arraignment in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, New York.

FREDERICK GROSS was freed again the other day, but his release left a Kings County grand jury in one of the tightest dilemmas that ever faced an official body. Gross, the District Attorney told the court, is "either the coldest-blooded murderer I ever met or the most innocent man."

Gross, a middle-aged bookkeeper for a chemical importing firm, had been held as the result of the mysterious deaths of his wife and four children from poison used to kill rats.

Rejecting the possibility of accident, Kings County authorities insist that planned murder stalked through the humble working-class flat at 179 Eldert street over a six-weeks period.

Whoever plotted the crimes, if there were crimes, succeeded in killing Gross' wife, Mrs. Katherine Gross, 38, who was about to become a mother again, and four of their five small children. One child, Frank, 4, is believed to be recovering, as is Mrs. Olga Bein, the dead woman's aged mother, who dropped in for a cup of cocoa and almost died as a result.

On the night of March 29 Mrs. Gross and all her children became nauseated shortly after supper, at which cocoa had been served. Gross alone of the household was unaffected. He had drunk coffee. Frederick Jr., [illegible], was the only one of the group stricken enough to cause alarm. His parents put him to bed. Later he developed convulsions and Gross called an ambulance. But Freddie was dead when the ambulance surgeon applied the stethoscope. The diagnosis was bronchial pneumonia.

Next day Mrs. Gross and the other children seemed to have recovered completely. In the evening Mrs. Bein dropped in to offer her condolences and help prepare for the funeral of her grandson. Cocoa was again served. The grandmother returned around midnight to the home of her other daughter, Mrs. William Staib, 185 Eldert street, with whom she lived. Next morning she became violently ill and was rushed to Bushwick Hospital.

More cocoa was drunk at the Gross table, and April 1 Leo, 5, died in convulsions. On April 6 Mrs. Gross died suddenly. Ambulance surgeons attributed both deaths to encephalitis. Then Frank collapsed and hovered on the point of death for days before rallying.

Relatives and neighbors showered sympathy on Gross. Stories traveled fast about the mysterious scourge that had stricken his home. The bookkeeper's employers, Pfaltz & Bauer, Inc., [illegible] street, Manhattan, gave him an indefinite leave with pay. Then, on April [illegible], his daughters, Katherine, [illegible], and Barbara, 18 months, died in convulsions just after eating breakfast.

It was not until the fifth death that police began to wonder whether Gross had murdered his wife and children. Seeking for a motive, they finally found it—one they felt fitted perfectly his mild, considerate personality. It was "mercy" killing, on a big scale, they reasoned. The family was impoverished. Gross earned only $20 a week. If the children got to the movies twice a year they were lucky. Their clothing was poor and Mrs. Gross was a kitchen slave. Gross was 49 and he appeared to have hit his top earning power. He was in debt to a small loan company for $120. The suit on his back was not paid for. Soon the children would be wanting to go to high school. Another baby was on the way.

Then scientific crime detection strengthened the theory. An analysis of a box of cocoa from the Gross pantry showed that it contained enough poison to kill 20 persons. A spectroscopic photograph, used the first time in solving a criminal case, showed that the poison, commonly used for exterminating rats, was present in the dead flesh of Mrs. Gross and of all the dead children except Frederick, who had already been buried. This innovation was the work of Dr. L. Edward Gaul, spectroscopist, who burned pin point-size tissues on an electrode and photographed the resulting spectrum. The poison band showed clearly in each photograph.

Detectives traced the brand of cocoa, which was made in France, to Gross' firm, which buys it abroad and sells it to its employes at cost, as a special service. The firm also sells the poison. But analyses of other cocoa samples in the warehouse disclosed no trace of the two having been accidentally mixed. Gross admitted bringing home the cocoa, but denied taking any of the poison.

Further discoveries by the medical experts hemmed in the dazed bookkeeper with a veritable wall of evidence. Assistant Medical Examiner M. Emanuel Martin reported that seven grains of the poison were found in the body of Katherine and two and a half grains in the body of baby Barbara. A lethal dose for an adult is from one and one-half to two grains. Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, city toxicologist, reported that the poison had been administered to Katherine in a glass of orange juice and to the baby in her cooked cereal. Gross readily admitted having fed the pair the deadly foods, but stoutly denied that he knew of their poison content. Then came reports showing that the same poison had been responsible for the death of Mrs. Gross and Leo.

While Gross, who wears an artificial leg as a result of an old accident, was clumping about his cell in Raymond Street Jail, apparently puzzled by the calamity which had befallen him, detectives ran down the two other routine police theories—the "other woman" and insurance.

BOTH theories failed. The candidate for role of "other woman," Mrs. Pauline Dugonics of 965 Herkimer street, proved merely to be an old friend of the Gross family. Gross had met her when he came to America 20 years ago to become an American citizen. She, a native of Rumania, had once given him her name and address and sought his aid in obtaining naturalization. The slip of paper bearing this information was found in Gross' pocketbook, but even District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan, who ordered the prisoner's arrest, admitted it had fallen through. And the total insurance amounted to a few hundred dollars, hardly enough to tempt a man to murder his family.

Neighbors and relatives stuck by Gross and attested to his good reputation, his love of his family and the man's devotion to his children.

Staib, his brother-in-law, said: "I've been thinking this whole thing over, and it doesn't make sense. Fred was a good husband and he was crazy over his children. Like me, he was always playing with his boys, baseball or something. All this that has happened is a terrible business. It just doesn't make sense. Fred never could have done it."

At the tavern where Gross took his daily glass of beer, the proprietor said: "Fred was a white fellow. He loved his family. One glass of beer was his limit."

"He never did a thing like what they say," Frank Valancourt, janitor of the apartment at 179 Eldert street, said. "He thought too much of his kids. He treated them swell. In fact, I think he spoiled them."

Then came the break which turned suspicion at least partly away from the Teutonic bookkeeper, now nursing bruised ribs and a lacerated shin from where detectives had punched and kicked him in an effort to make him admit his guilt. The spotlight turned full upon the matronly figure of Gross' dead wife.

And it was turned by no less a person than the woman's own sister, Mrs. Staib, who had kept her secret to herself in the hope that Gross would be cleared on his own merits and her sister's name protected.

"My sister Katherine often said she wished to do away with herself and take the children with her," Mrs. Staib told police. She turned to Staib and asked: "Isn't that so?"

"Oh, yes," Staib replied. "We often heard her say it, but we didn't think she was serious about it."

This brought Mrs. Augusta Schult, who lives across the hall from the Staibs, into the conversation.

"Just five days before the first child died I saw Mrs. Gross out in front of this house slapping one of the children for asking for a penny," Mrs. Schult related. "She seemed awful irritable.

"'I'll poison you kids if you don't stop bothering me!' I heard her say. I told her she ought not to talk that way in front of children, and she said: 'I've got enough rat poison in my house to poison this whole block. It might take a day or a month, but it's sure death.'

"I said: 'Why, Mrs. Gross, don't you get along with your husband?' And she said: 'I have a fine man, the finest in the world.' And she began to cry. I couldn't help thinking of that when Mr. Gross, after his wife's death, told me: 'Well, my wife and two of my children are dead. There is nothing much left for me to live for.' He is a good man and I don't believe he killed anyone."

These disclosures, added to the revelation that the dead woman had been an avid reader of the gloomy philosophy of Schopenhauer, made Gross appear to be an innocent victim of his own wife's macabre view of life. This supposition was heightened when police learned that the housewife owned a number of medical books, two dealing with poisons and their effects.

It was ascertained that she had obtained the books while a telephone operator in Jewish Hospital, Brooklyn, in 1918, when she met Gross, who was night clerk. The pair were married in 1921, but the wife never lost her interest in medicine.

But Gross indignantly resented the implication that his wife was a murderer and a suicide.

"She would never have done such a thing," he cried in his cell. "If I knew that she did, or if I even thought she did, I would take the blame myself to clear her good name."

"Have you any theory about all this, then?" an attendant asked him.

"NO, NO, NO, but if I could get out of here and get my mind clear again, I might think of something. I know this is a terrible thing and a strange thing, but one day you will find out that neither I nor my wife did it. The truth will come out some day.

"My wife never mentioned anything to me about poisoning our children. She seemed to be happy and we always got along well. And this poverty business is a lot of bunk. My salary was moderate, but I lived in moderate circumstances for years. I did go into debt, but the people I owed were not pressing me for money. I was positive that when conditions improved I would square myself and I looked forward to better times."

By a strange coincidence, an analysis of the effect on the human body of the poison that caused the deaths was published in the American Medical Association Journal on April 13. It mentioned deranged memory, mental excitement and falling out of the hair as symptoms. All were shown by the victims in the Gross home during the six tragic weeks. Those who did not die may lose their minds if they survive.

There was no indication that this issue, or any other issue, of the medical publication had found its way into the Gross home.

Two other items puzzled investigators. One was the fact that after his wife's death Gross, suspecting the cocoa, he said, took some of it to a hospital for an analysis, which the hospital laboratory never got around to. "Does that look like the act of a guilty man?" he asked. Police did not know. It might or might not be, they reflected. A man earnestly trying to solve the mystery might act that way. So might a man preparing a plausible story in advance.

The other—and the real big question mark—was: If Mrs. Gross was the plotter, how explain the fact that she was dead three weeks before the last two victims were stricken.

There was still no answer to the question when Gross' case came up in Homicide Court a few days ago, though exhumation of Freddie's body had shown a deadly amount of the poison in his organs.

"I can't say honestly and fairly that the circumstances point to this man," District Attorney Geoghan, announcing that the grand jury would continue its investigation, told the Court. "We have the possibility that his wife administered the poison. I don't think this man believes that himself."

Pulitzer Prize Cartoons of the Last Ten Years

bergh" casting a cross-shaped shadow labeled "Peace on earth, good will to men" on a Western desert. It was the year of the flyer's unofficial embassy to Mexico.

By the following year, 1928, there were other motifs for the cartoonist. The prosperous era of the '20s was drawing to a close and all was not peace and good will—especially as far as the Republican party was concerned. Hence Kirby's bitter satirical comment on the G. O. P., a caricature of the smug politico he had created to represent the Republicans, raising pious hands in horror to exclaim against the vices of Tammany, while behind him stood a rank of angels (some wearing prison stripes), representing 15 prominent members of the reigning party, including Col. Thomas W. Miller, the Alien Property Custodian who was imprisoned for defrauding the Government; four of the men involved in the Teapot Dome scandal; Charles W. Forbes, Army deserter, director of the Veterans' Bureau and close friend of President Harding, who was indicted for selling $3,000,000 worth of Army supplies for $600,000 and imprisoned for conspiracy in connection with hospital contracts; Governor Len Small, who was tried and found not guilty on criminal charges while holding office for two terms; D. C. Stephenson, boss of Indiana, Ku Klux Klan "grand dragon" and murderer; Truman H. Newberry, who spent $200,000 in campaigning for the Senate and was unseated; Governor Warren T. McCray of Indiana, who went to Atlanta for misuse of the mails; Senator Frank Smith of Illinois, whose seat was paid for by Samuel Insull; Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Secretary of State in New York and ruler of boxing and racing.

When the following year's cartoon was drawn by Charles R. MacAuley for the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, the subject most vexing to the world was settlement of Germany's reparations. The commission which was to accept Owen D. Young's payment scheme in June, 1929, began deliberations in February. After that period the stage was cleared for more haggling over war debts, but first it had to be decided how Germany, the nation that had made last recovery from war depression, should pay for the dead horse she and the others had ridden into it. The charger that had fed on credit had carried the world into a desert no one wanted to occupy. Now it had given up the ghost and left eight countries burdened by debt of $21,760,643,549 to the United States. These proposed to let destitute Germany pay her own share of the cost of the horse, plus some 30 billion dollars toward the liquidation of their share. The question was, how? As subsequent events have shown, the answer is still to seek.

IN 1932, when the condition of America was being tabulated on the basis of the number of bank failures per month, the committee selected the cartoon John T. McCutcheon had published in the Chicago Tribune the previous summer, "A Wise Economist Asks a Question." By the time the award was announced more than 600 additional failures had been recorded.

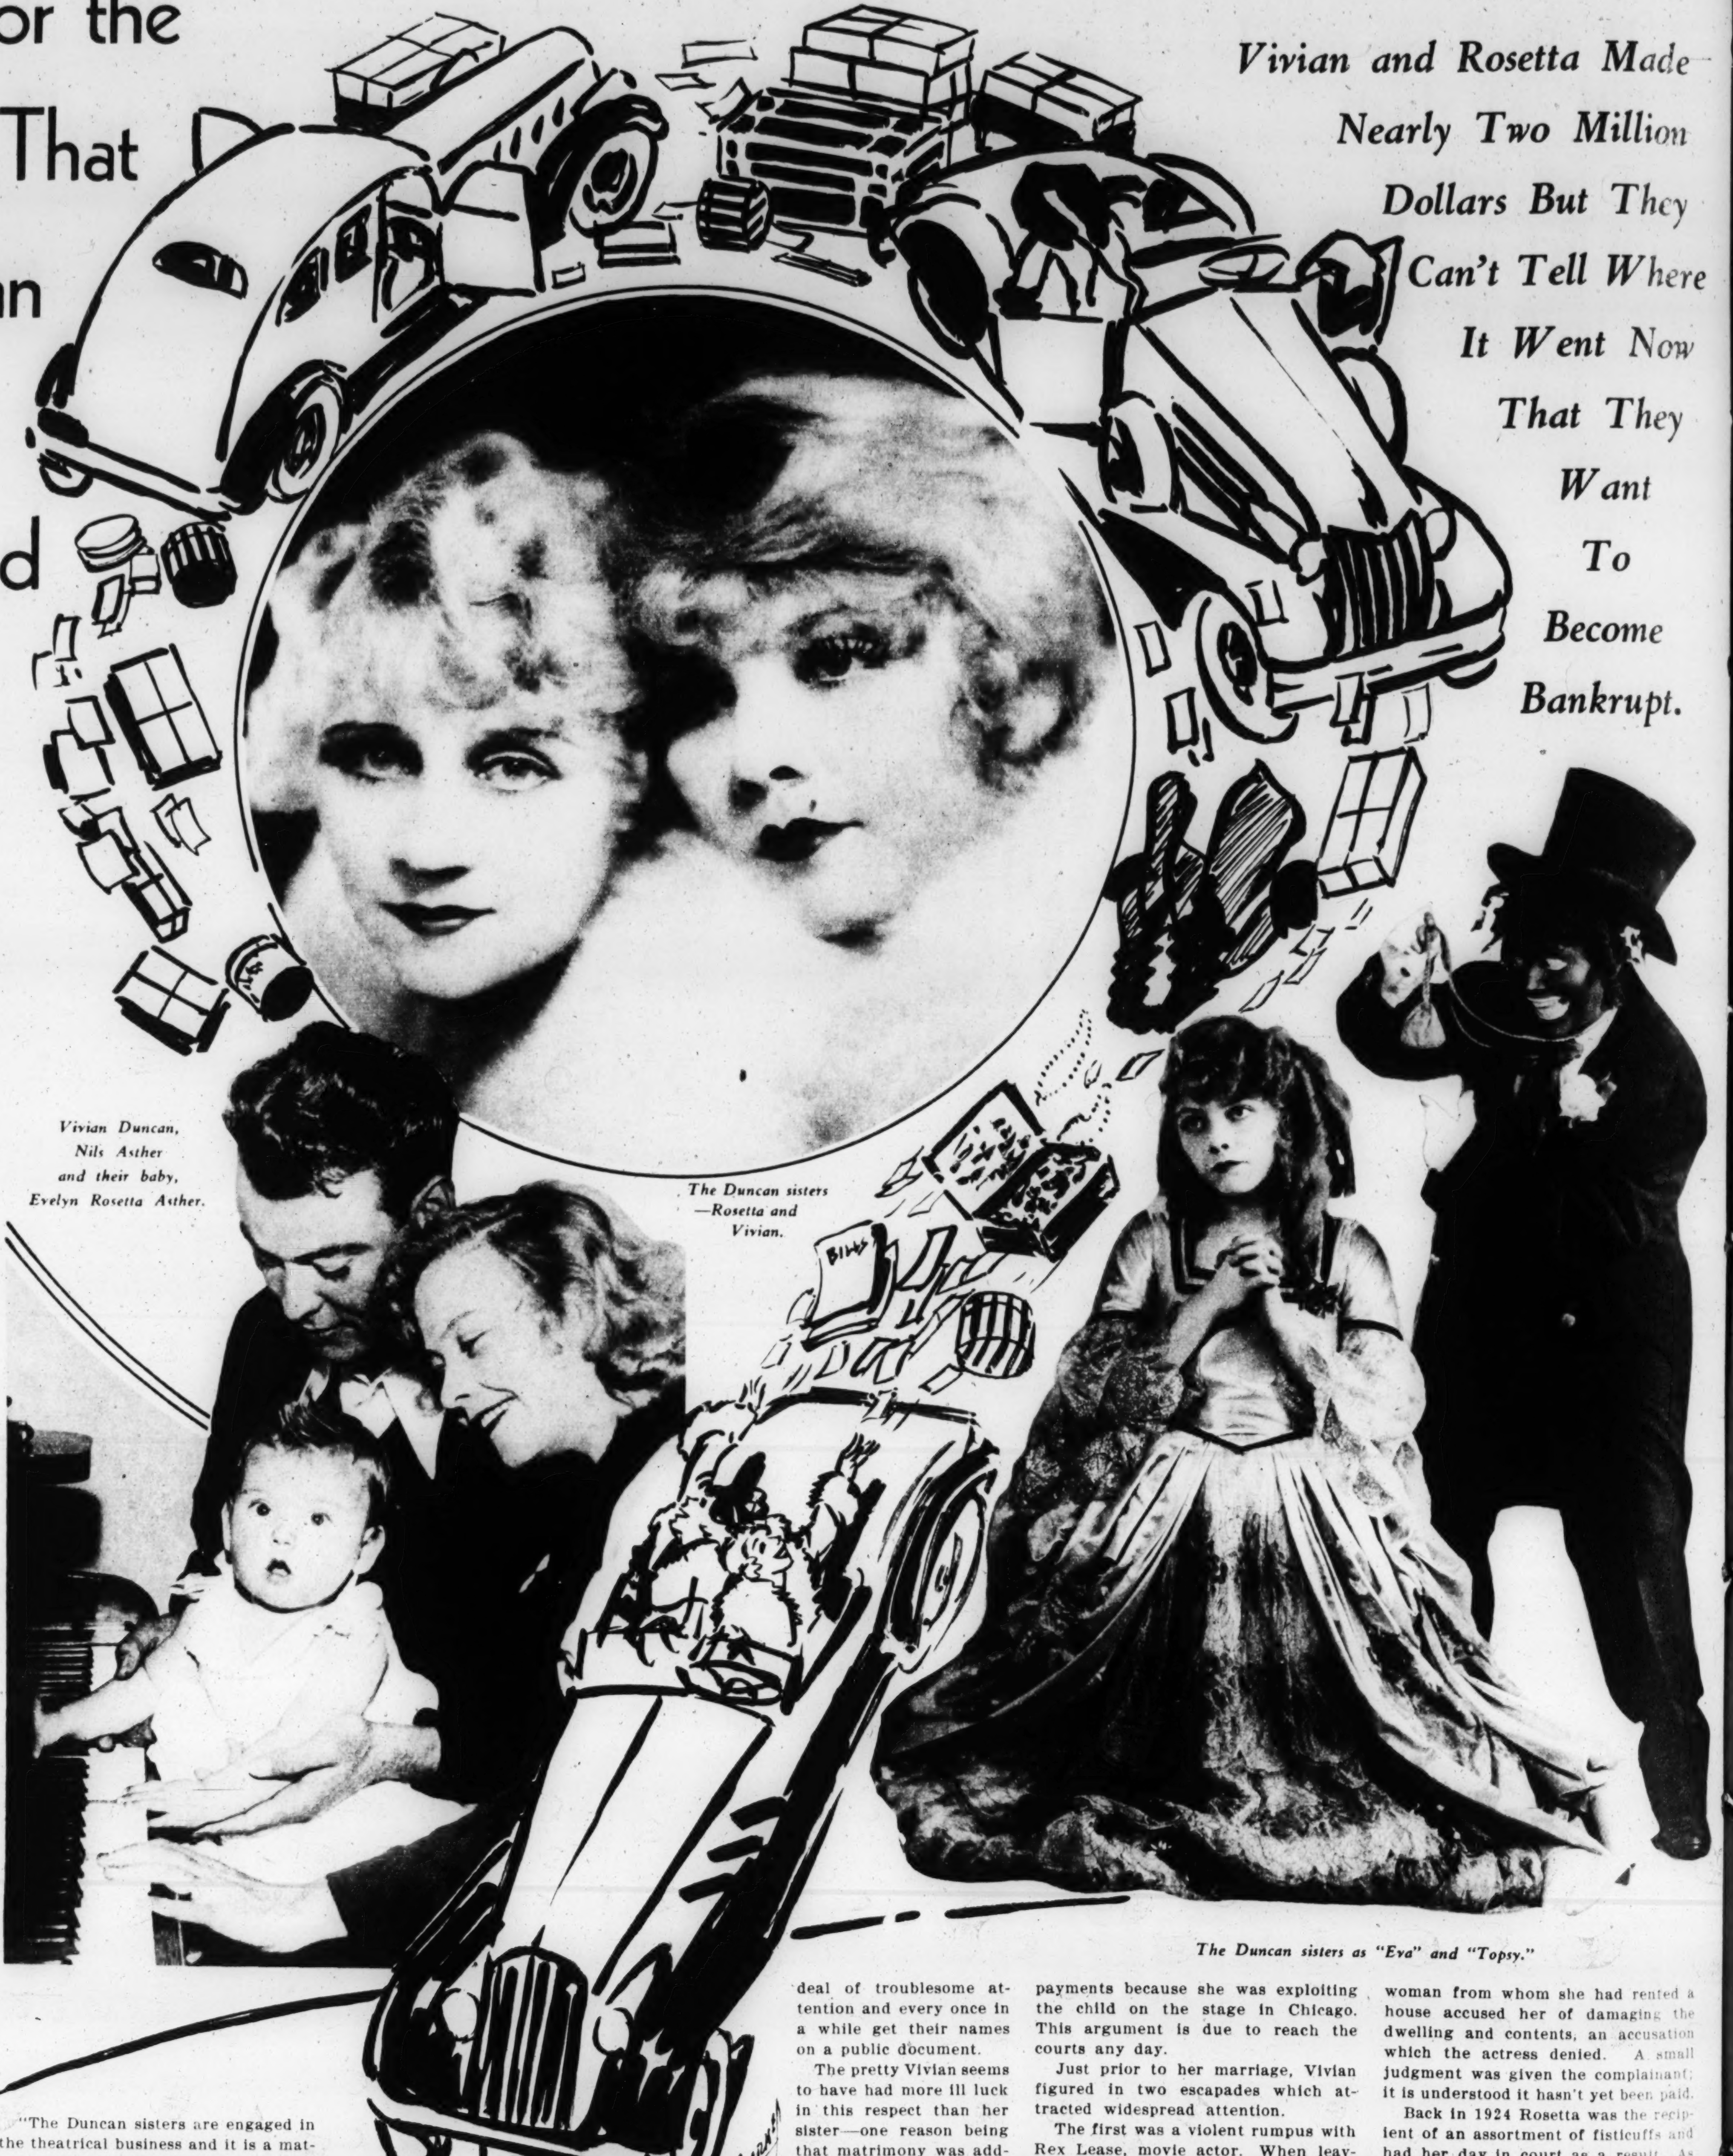
The winning cartoon drawn in 1932 was "The Light of Asia," by H. M. Talburt of the Washington Daily News and the Scripps-Howard News Alliance. It referred to the Japanese invasion of Manchuria in September, 1931, and her subsequent refusal to recognize the demand of the League and the United States that she withdraw her forces in accordance with her pledges in the Kellogg-Briand peace treaty. The conquest of Manchuria and the invasion of China proper gave cartoonists something more pessimistic to bite on than they had had in the days when Nelson Harding's two offerings were considered "helpful to some commendable cause."

A year later the winning cartoon was drawn by Edmund Duffy during the month (November, 1933) that the country was shocked by the lynching in San Jose, Cal., of Thomas H. Thurmond and John M. Holmes, kidnapers and murderers of Brooke L. Hart, and even more shocked when Governor James Rolph commented publicly: "That was a fine lesson to the whole nation. . . . They made a good job of it." Rolph, it will be remembered, had postponed a trip to Idaho, fearing someone might call out the troops in his absence and prevent the lynching.

Peace, war, strikes, bank failures, corruption and the Russian repudiation of orthodox religion—such are the subjects of the winning cartoonists' work.

Looking for the Fortune That the Duncan Sisters Once Had

Vivian and Rosetta Made Nearly Two Million Dollars But They Can't Tell Where It Went Now That They Want To Become Bankrupt.



Vivian Duncan, Nils Asther and their baby, Evelyn Rosetta Asther.

The Duncan sisters —Rosetta and Vivian.

The Duncan sisters as "Eva" and "Topsy."

LOS ANGELES.

A THIRD "expedition" will set sail sometime this summer in search of the sunken "Topsy and Eva" treasure.

It will be headed by a Los Angeles bankruptcy referee and composed of numerous lawyers for, and creditors of, Vivian and Rosetta Duncan, the celebrated music show sister team.

The path will lead through a tortuous, uncharted sea of canceled checks, notes, foreclosed mortgages, unpaid bills, stock certificates and unclaimed pawn tickets.

Although between one and two million dollars is involved, the hunters, oddly enough, have no hope of finding it. Their main purpose will be to ascertain what became of it. Rosetta and Vivian don't seem to know. They earned it, but their custody of the money was very impermanent. It went for this and that—what for didn't impress them as very important at the time. Now the situation has changed. The sisters want to escape from an embarrassing position—people dunning them and all that—by having their debts canceled by due process of law as bankrupts. Before granting them this relief, a Los Angeles court wants to be satisfied that they haven't the money to pay their debts, and this involves finding out what became of the large amounts they received for entertaining theater patrons.

It was in 1931 that Rosetta and Vivian—"Topsy and Eva" in their most successful stage roles—applied for the protection of the bankruptcy law. Debts totaling more than $400,000 were hanging over them, and they said they lacked about $370,000 of having enough to pay them.

The Duncan sisters estimated at that time that they had earned, in their stage career, between one and two million dollars. But when, at a hearing before a Referee in Bankruptcy, the expensively dressed young women were asked what had become of their earnings, they couldn't give much of an accounting. They had sung "Rememb'ring" very well indeed, but they weren't good at doing it.

They vaguely recalled heavy investments in "gold mines" that turned out to be practically devoid of gold and were fairly certain they had pawned jewelry valued at $100,000 or more.

Perhaps a great deal of their money went into expensive automobiles. A story is told of how the sisters, touring in vaudeville, purchased for cash a shiny new car in every city in which they appeared, and when they moved on, just left the automobile in some garage.

Mainly, "Topsy and Eva" just giggled at the hearing. Vivian, the little blonde—the angelic Eva of the team—made faces at Rosetta while the latter was on the witness stand, and Rosetta laughed. The mention of some financial disaster, such as reclaimed automobiles, brought peals of silver laughter from both.

Attorneys and the referee exchanged glances fraught with bewilderment and futility. Spectators howled.

Finally, the sisters were denied discharge from their debts until they could produce more accurate records of their losses and expenditures. The referee held they had failed properly to account for earnings totaling in the neighborhood of $2,000,000.

"What's a million dollars?" sniffed Rosetta when it was all over. "We made it once; we'll make it again."

Their creditors remained unrelieved. A second session, described as a "comedy of errors," ended without result.

Recently United States District Judge William P. James of Los Angeles ordered another review of their tangled finances. Said the jurist in reopening the proceedings:

"The Duncan sisters are engaged in the theatrical business and it is a matter of public notoriety that such persons are negligent and careless in handling their affairs."

Given another opportunity to escape old debts, "Topsy and Eva" plan to repeat the story of how their earnings melted away through bad investments, and will attempt to disprove charges that they "destroyed records of large earnings." They have said that the crash of 1929 and high living expenses on frequent world tours wiped out the large salaries they received for stage and screen work.

THEY said they lost a $50,000 home in White Plains, New York, and were even forced to pawn their jewels in London in 1932 to purchase steamer tickets back to the United States after their show collapsed.

But they were unable to produce any kind of books showing just how much they earned and how much they spent.

Their bankruptcy petition lists liabilities of $405,097.29 and assets of $22,500. But a trustee couldn't find their assets. All he uncovered was $200 in cash and two $1000 bonds, for which he said he was offered $40 each.

A long series of debts which they said they were unable to pay included $13,000 to the United States Government for income taxes, $750 for household goods, $2900 to attorneys, $85,000 to S. S. McClelland of Detroit, who served as their manager for many years, and $20,000 to repay a loan.

Other debts were $9 to an employment agency for hiring a maid and $60 to the maid herself for wages, $1350 to doctors, $540 for clothes, $215 for perfume, $164.50 to a beauty parlor, $2000 for automobile mechanical services, $13.98 for a telephone bill, $9.92 for eggs, $68 for groceries, $175 for vocal lessons and $60 to a carpenter.

This bankruptcy business is only one of the difficulties, financial and otherwise, that the Duncan sisters, individually, and jointly, have encountered in the last 15 years. From the time when they were child entertainers in San Francisco during the World War, through their affluent days as headliners in musical shows and vaudeville, right up to the present, it has been their fate to attract a good deal of troublesome attention and every once in a while get their names on a public document.

The pretty Vivian seems to have had more ill luck in this respect than her sister—one reason being that matrimony was added to her troubles. Rosetta hasn't married. She was engaged to William Beri, a movie executive, for several months in 1927 but the engagement was broken. "We drifted apart," she explained.

Vivian married Nils Asther, handsome Swedish film actor, whom she met in Europe. He came to Hollywood in 1929 and in 1930 they were married in Reno, apparently seeing no ill omen in embarking on matrimony in that center for dissolving marriage bonds.

TWO years later Vivian got a divorce in Los Angeles. She charged incompatibility of temperament, and said her mother-in-law interfered with their domestic bliss Asther also called her nasty names, she said.

The divorce judge awarded her custody of her "international baby," Evelyn Rosetta, born in 1931 in Germany of a Swedish father and an American mother, and she was awarded $25,000 in $500 monthy payments for the child's support.

Not so long ago Vivian complained that Asther's payments were $5000 in arrears and he replied that he dropped payments because she was exploiting the child on the stage in Chicago. This argument is due to reach the courts any day.

Just prior to her marriage, Vivian figured in two escapades which attracted widespread attention.

The first was a violent rumpus with Rex Lease, movie actor. When leaving a party at the home of an acquaintance, according to Vivian's story, Lease made unwelcome advances to her, and when she repelled them, struck her and kicked her. Her automobile keys were involved in the affair, it appeared; her account was to the effect that the actor wouldn't turn over the keys to her unless she kissed him, and she indignantly responded, "You dastard!" or something like that, and battle was joined. Anyway, she had him haled into a Justice court at Malibu, California, the beach resort so popular with the film folk, and charged him with battery. She exhibited a swollen eye in support of her accusation.

Lease at first pleaded not guilty, and declared the petite Vivian had hit him first. Later he pleaded guilty and was fined $50. An aftermath of the brawl was a fight between Lease and Harold Duncan, brother of Vivian. Harold spied Lease in a Hollywood cafe one evening not long after the Justice court presumably had settled the matter, and reopened the case in its physical aspect. When hostilities were halted Lease had the makings of a shiner and a bloody nose. Harold also bore a few marks of conflict.

The other incident was a law suit in which Vivian was defendant. A woman from whom she had rented a house accused her of damaging the dwelling and contents, an accusation which the actress denied. A small judgment was given the complainant; it is understood it hasn't yet been paid.

Back in 1924 Rosetta was the recipient of an assortment of fisticuffs and had her day in court as a result. As she and her brother were passing through Cicero, Illinois, on their way from the races at the Hawthorne track, they were arrested for a traffic violation. By the time they were out of the hands of the police, Rosetta had a fractured nose, a broken rib and sundry other personal injuries and Harold also was a bit battered.

ROSETTA said a couple of Cicero policemen had beaten her with no other provocation than that she had been a little light-hearted about the arrest. Harold, it seems, suffered his damages in trying to protect his sister. The trial of the accused policemen was held by a Cook County Justice in an Evanston theater rented for the occasion. The spectacle drew a crowded house. Bouquets of flowers were presented to the Duncan sisters. The outcome of the matter was a settlement out of court.

Through all their troubles and all their successes, the Duncan sisters have stuck together—except for the separation caused by Vivian's marriage. Now that they are together again, "Jake" and "Hymie"—those are the names of Vivian and Rosetta to each other—are not too downcast even with a million or two gone and some $400,000 in debts.

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

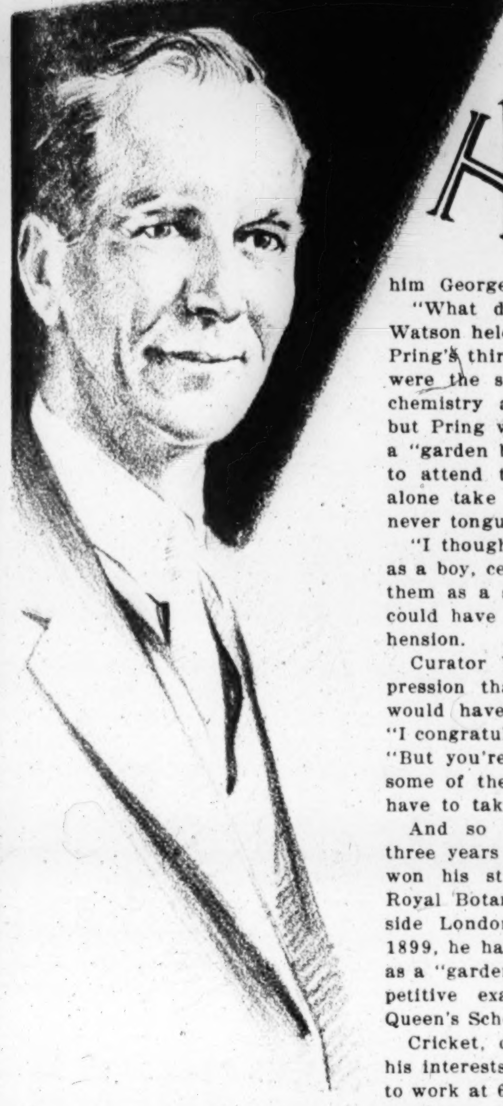
GEORGE H. PRING
CAPTAIN RENE PUGNET

The Precocious 'Garden Boy' Who, by Way of St. Louis, Became a World Authority on Orchids



George H. Pring.

HE'S known now in every botanical garden in the world, but then he was just a scared brat.

"Pring," began the curator, and inwardly Pring shivered. Mr. Watson usually called him George, or "Young George."

"What does this mean?" Curator Watson held out a list of names, with Pring's third from the bottom. They were the students who had passed chemistry and physics examinations, but Pring wasn't a student. He was a "garden boy," and he had no right to attend the students' lectures, let alone take the exams. But he was never tongue-tied.

"I thought if I could pass 'em now as a boy, certainly I'd be able to pass them as a student," he said—but he could have written a book on apprehension.

Curator Watson rose with an expression that, in anyone else, Pring would have called a delighted grin. "I congratulate you, George," he said. "But you're in for it. You've taken some of the lectures, and now you'll have to take them all."

And so George H. Pring at 18, three years under the minimum age, won his student scholarship in the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew, outside London. Five years before, in 1899, he had obtained his scholarship as a "garden boy" in the annual competitive examination (academic) in Queen's School at Kew.

Cricket, dancing and orchids were his interests then. Once, on the way to work at 6 a. m., he had barely time to change from his boiled shirt, but not from his dress trousers. Yellowing newspaper files tell of "Slim" Pring's exploits as a bowler, or pitcher, on the cricket grounds in Forest Park.

At 16 he got acquainted with orchids in the world's greatest collection, and if one asks what about them fascinated him, he still has to confess that he doesn't know. His first glimpse of the Shaw's Garden collection in 1906, when he came here to take charge of it, was disappointing.

So in 1912 he turned to tropical lilies. The results, briefly, were five gold or silver medals for Pring—besides those awarded to the garden—international pre-eminence for Shaw's Garden in that line of hybridization and, for the botanical world, 18 magnificent new flowers.

Things had begun happening to the orchid collection with the bequest of D. S. Brown of Kirkwood in 1918, comprising the finest American collection of lady-slippers from all parts of the world. Five years later, in six months of amusing though painful adventures with a burro in the Andes, Pring collected 5000 showy Colombian Cattleya plants, and the annual Orchid Show in St. Louis began to attract attention in New York and Chelsea and even Kew.

Pring made a trading trip to Europe and three more collecting trips to Panama and the West Indies, discovering curious and uncomfortable facts about redbugs, native hospitality and tropical diseases, but each time discovering new rarities for Shaw's Garden. Several years ago the authoritative Orchid Review announced that Shaw's Garden had definitely passed the traditionally unbeatable Kew collection. Now Shaw's Garden has 15,000 orchid plants maturing in 200 varieties, nearly all of them new and spectacular hybrids grown from the seed by a carefully guarded process.

The orchid-hunter himself, a foreman in 1906, floriculturist in 1918, horticulturist in 1919 and superintendent under Director Moore since 1928, followed the late Eugene Angert as president of the Horticultural Society, headed the recent seven-acre Flower Show at the Arena, and holds or has held office in a flock of professional organizations.

His eldest son is arboriculturist of the State Highway Commission, and his second son is taking a gardening course at the University of Illinois.

Only their closest friends know of the unobtrusive aid he and Mrs. Pring have given unfortunate but undemanding persons. Students of Missouri School for the Blind know his voice and, visiting the garden, listen for it.

He is still "Young George," despite his daily flood of telephone queries—20 to 40 of them—about what's killing the peonies or how can I keep my terrier from uncovering the iris bulbs. He will be 50 next Dec. 2, but, despite thinning hair, he looks 40 or younger. He has an urchin's love of mischief. Friends chuckle that only four years ago he had whooping cough.

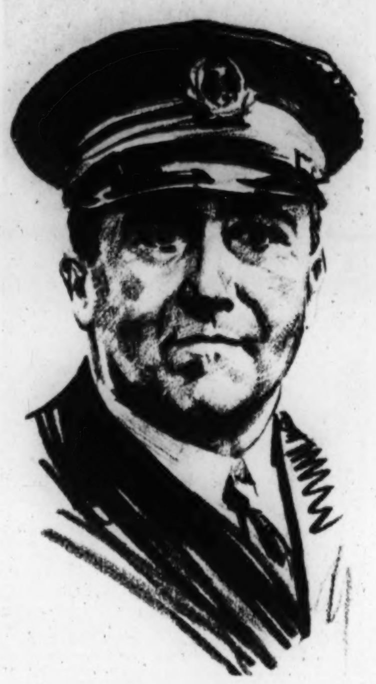
"YOUNG MAN—" said an elderly woman, stopping him for a query last week on a garden walk.

"Thank you," smiled Pring, "I've got my hat on." He answered her questions, but she looked at him doubtfully: "You're sure you work here?" A workman heard her and grinned; Pring agreed there might be a doubt, since he was the superintendent.

Plainly she didn't believe him; how long had he worked there? He told her. "Nearly 30 years, in a place like paradise," she meditated. "It must make you a better man."

Gently Pring pointed out his residence, in the southwest corner of the garden. "You might," he suggested, "ring the bell there and ask my wife. Certainly," he laughed, "she'll tell you the truth!"

Boxer, Artist, Inventor, Linguist, —and Master of the Largest Ship Afloat



Captain Pugnet.

NEW YORK.

BOXER, carpenter, aviator, musician, fencer, linguist, inventor, portrait painter, marksman and ranking commander of the French Line — that is Captain Rene Pugnet, master of the world's largest ship, the Normandie, scheduled to arrive tomorrow in New York on its maiden voyage. Absolute monarch over more than 3000 souls, including the crew, his is the responsibility of navigating the superliner that was designed to win for the French Line the supremacy of the Atlantic Ocean.

The stalwart, dreamy-eyed captain is the first man in a long and distinguished line of Pugnets to leave the traditional careers in art, science and diplomacy for that of a mariner. A great nephew of Frederic Auguste Bartholdi, sculptor who created the Statue of Liberty, Pugnet speaks familiarly of the Goddess as "my cousin, the daughter of my great-uncle."

That Pugnet inherited the abilities of his ancestors is shown by the piano and the viola in his cabin that he made during "spare hours" at sea. On the walls are mementoes of many things and occasions—whiplike foils, fleurets, knives, saber and even sculptures that have been made by the hands of the master mariner.

Several devices on the Normandie were invented and patented by him, including the "Pugnet hole," which allows fire hoses to be played in any cabin without damaging the cabin structure.

Pastels, expertly done, are proof of another art at which he is adept. He has experimented with unusual success for an amateur with natural color photography. Between two pastels hang two sinister dueling pistols of the type used years ago. If Pugnet, known for his good humor, should ever be challenged to a duel he would be equally proficient with boxing gloves, pistols or rapiers.

Born on a rainy Friday that happened to be the thirteenth of the month, in 1881, in the village of Brantome, Pugnet started to sea at the age of 16, after deciding life ashore was too humdrum. He sailed on small sailing vessels and steamers until May 13, 1907, when he joined the French Line.

He was a captain when the war broke out, but he resigned to join the navy, where he served eight months on destroyers before joining the naval aviation service. His most exciting experience during the war occurred when a huge seaplane he was piloting became disabled during a winter storm in the Eastern Mediterranean and he had to make a forced landing on the water near Corfu.

Soon after the seaplane landed darkness fell and a gale that had been brewing descended on the craft and its luckless crew of seven. There was no sign of aid, although Pugnet had released several carrier pigeons soon after he was forced down. Slowly the plane drifted toward the rocky shore, where it was sure to go to pieces among the rocks and breakers. Somehow, though, Pugnet's luck held and the plane drifted onto a 150-foot stretch of beach. It was the only beach on the whole island.

PUGNET is one of the few sailors who has beheld a submarine volcano eruption. He counts that as perhaps his most wonderful experience at sea. He was a mate on the Connetable in the South Pacific at the time.

"It was marvelous, terrific," Pugnet recalls. "It looked like fire everywhere. The wind was blowing at hurricane force and we could not distinguish what we saw because of the smoke in the air and spray lifted out of the sea. But there appeared to be a sea of fire all about us.

"The next morning we saw bed after bed of lava floating for miles and miles. As it had calmed down, we could see quite a distance. We thought we saw a great storm cloud on the horizon, but as we came closer we saw that it was an island 300 or 400 feet high and about a mile long. The island, not since reported, must have disappeared soon after we saw it."

Pugnet, who speaks English, German, Spanish and Russian, "as well as Ouloff, a native tongue of Senegal," is a devotee of detective stories, reading them in foreign languages as well as his own.

Members of his crew have learned that any dereliction on their part is sure to be uncovered by their detective-story-reading captain. He eschews routine inspections at regular hours, preferring to appear unannounced in any part of the ship from the crow's nest to the bilges at any hour.

Marquis Clute, who pleaded guilty to throwing acid in Leah Webb's face.

Lamont Webb, Leah Webb's former husband.

'I'll Make You So Hideous Men Will Shun You'

The Fearful Crime Committed Against Pretty Leah Webb.

TULSA, Oklahoma.

LAMONT WEBB, 20 years old, former Tulsa University student, couldn't stand to see his pretty former wife keep company with other men. The mere thought of it threw him into agonies of jealousy.

"I'll make you look so hideous men will shun you," he told her over and over again since the two became separated after their baby boy was born last summer.

Today Leah Webb, 19 years old, is a patient in a Tulsa hospital, her face disfigured permanently with acid burns. Physicians are afraid she will lose the sight of her right eye.

Lamont has been arraigned on a charge of conspiring to commit mayhem and 15-year-old Marquis Clute is awaiting commitment to the State Reform School at Pauls Valley, Oklahoma, to serve a six-year term. Clute admitted the actual crime.

"He gave me $20 to do it," Clute, whose father is a Tulsa restaurant owner, told police after his arrest. "I met him through a friend and he made the arrangements with his former wife. I met her on a dark street and threw acid in her face. Webb furnished the acid."

The tragic story of the domestic difficulties that culminated in the acid attack was unfolded before police after they had found the young woman in a Tulsa residence writhing, screaming with pain.

She was taken to a drug store by a motorist. Acid had saturated her pretty features. She said her attacker was a stranger, a boy about 15 or 16 years old. She had never seen him before.

Webb was arrested at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Webb, but denied knowledge of the attack. His parents said the boy had been out of the city during the day.

A third boy, Ray Thornton, son of a Tulsa Fire Department captain, went to police headquarters and said he had been with Webb during the day and that the two had conversed with a number of boys.

"I heard him offer one boy $20 if he would throw acid in the face of his former wife," Thornton told the police.

Clute was arrested at his father's restaurant, but denied any knowledge of the crime. He didn't know Thornton or Webb, he told police.

Confronted with Thornton's statement, Clute weakened and admitted taking Webb to a downtown drug store to purchase the acid.

"We bought it from a friend of mine," Clute said. "Then we took a bus out on the east side and played pool during the afternoon.

"Shortly before 6 o'clock Webb called his former wife at her parents' home and told her if she would bring him some letters he had written her and their marriage license, he would give her $50 toward the support of the child.

"After leaving the telephone he told me he had made an engagement for her to meet him in front of a branch library in a thinly populated section of the city."

Clute said Webb told him to approach her and ask her for a date. Then when he got close to her to throw the contents of the bottle in her face.

"I took the bottle and waited in front of the library for nearly an hour. It was nearly 10 o'clock before she appeared. She had a bunch of letters in her hand. They were tied with a ribbon.

"I asked her for a date but she ignored me. She started to walk away and I ran after her. I couldn't get the cork out of the bottle.

"She must have realized what was happening, because she began to run and scream. I caught her and in the meantime had taken the cork out of the bottle.

"I dashed it in her face. Some of it got on my hand and on my forehead. She continued to scream and run. I cut across a vacant lot, walked about six blocks and caught a bus going downtown."

Confronted by Clute's confession, Webb at first stuck to his story that he had been out of the city. Then police showed him a statement made by Ray Thornton which said that he had introduced the former university student to Clute.

"That's right, I guess," Webb declared. "I hired him to do it because I couldn't stand to see her date other men. I love her and I thought if I could destroy that pretty face she would have to come back to me.

"We were married when I was a student in Central High School. Then the baby came. If our parents would have let us alone we would have made it all right. There was too much interference in our married life."

Mrs. John W. Black, Leah's mother, told police that they had been having trouble with Webb since he and her daughter separated.

"He threatened to throw acid in the window on her and the baby while they slept," Mrs. Black said. "Once he came out to our house to kill them both. He drew a pistol as he walked up to the door and my husband took the shells away from him. He acted like an insane man.

Clute was tried in juvenile court because of his age and told Judge A. A. Hatch the same story he had told to police.

"I am sorry you cannot be sentenced for a longer period," Judge Hatch told him. "It is the most heinous crime that has ever come before this court. You will be sentenced to the State Training School until you are 21 years old."

Swathed in bandages, Leah shows concern over the welfare of her husband awaiting trial. Physicians say she will be permanently disfigured because of the burns on her face and neck. Her eye also is badly scarred but the depth of the burns around it can not now be determined.

MURDER AT THE OLD MOAT FARM

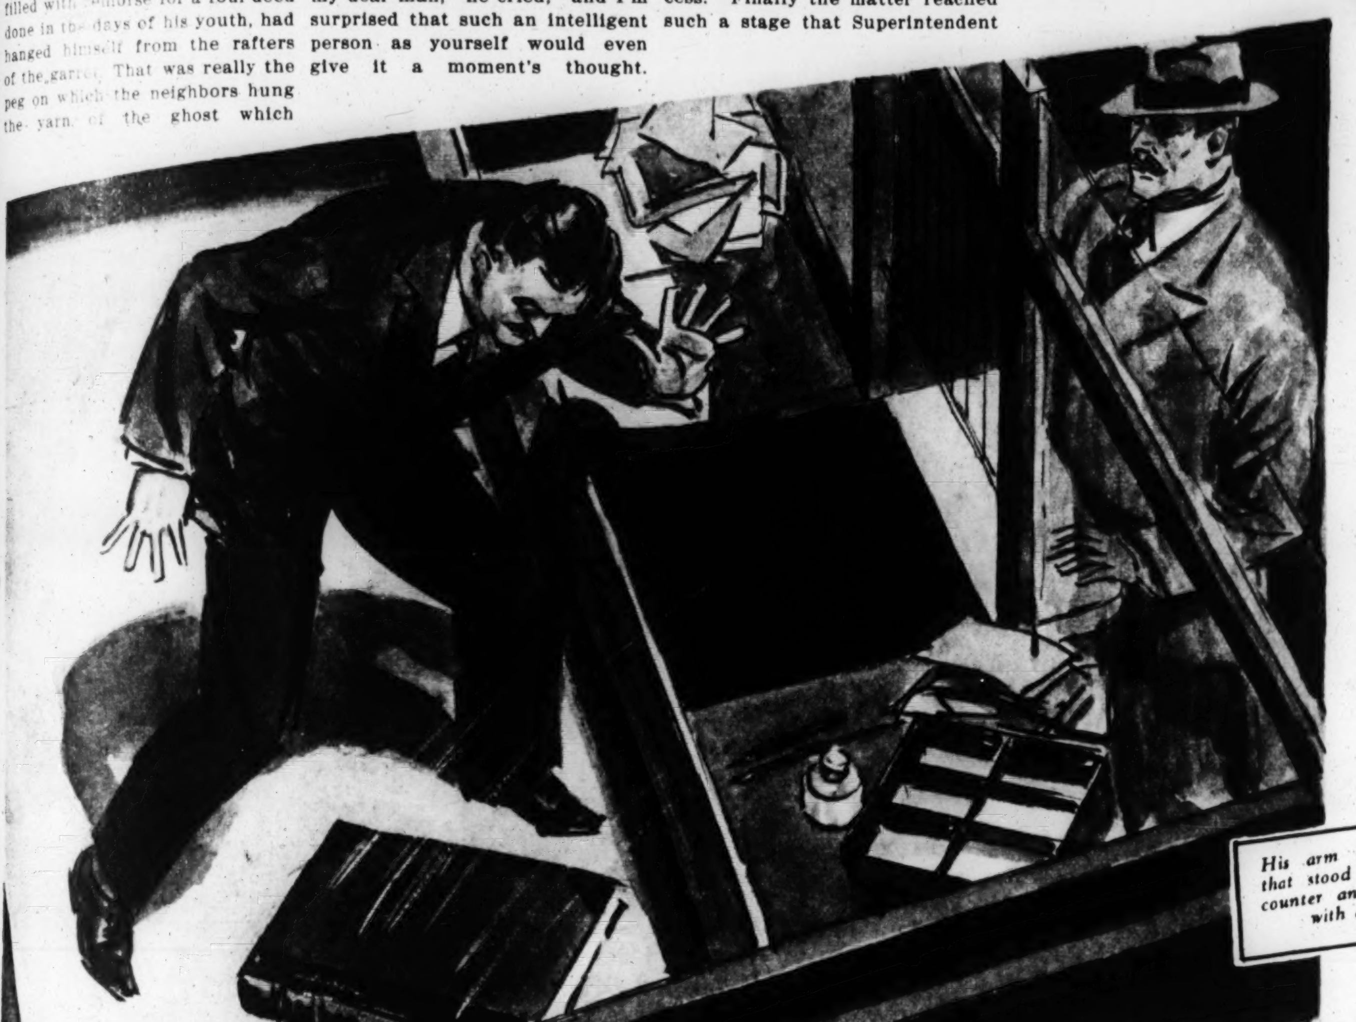
By GEORGE BARTON

THERE was something fascinatingly mysterious about the old Moat Farm, located six miles from the town of Clavering, in Essex, England.

It always had a sinister reputation; there was a tradition in the neighborhood that it was haunted. But that was merely a local superstition which the simple folk of the countryside hugged to their breasts as a prized possession. Yet in the days of which we write even normal persons could not pass the place without experiencing that creepy feeling which causes "gooseflesh" to rise and give one the unexplainable sensation which comes with fear.

There was a rumor that one of the earliest owners of the farm, filled with remorse for a foul deed done in the days of his youth, had hanged himself from the rafters of the garret. That was really the peg on which the neighbors hung the yarn of the ghost which walked the hallways in the dead hours of the night.



As a consequence of the weird stories which were told about the place it was often unoccupied for years at a time. Few persons have the courage to brave the dark, the hidden, the incomprehensible and the inscrutable. Fear is a paralyzing emotion. The fact that it is so often causeless has nothing to do with the case; once such a sensation grips a mortal it is hard to shake off, and there is no doubt whatever that many of those who lived in the neighborhood of the Moat Farm were filled with dismay at the thought of unknown evil.

One thing that helped to spread this apprehension was the absence of light. Coming to the property at night one was likely to be impressed by the tall trees that bordered the walk leading to the main entrance of the home. They had the appearance of ghostly sentinels guarding the way to a house of mystery. It is not surprising that a newcomer should be filled with terrifying anticipation of what was to come.

While gossip concerning this house with the unenviable reputation was at its height the news flew around the neighborhood that a new tenant was coming to brave its horrors.

The property was leased by a couple giving the name of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Dougal. He was a tall, bronzed, soldierly man; she was frail, pretty and cultured. It seemed like a strange place for such a couple, but the newcomers paid no attention to the talk and in a short time settled down to what appeared to be a humdrum existence.

They had brought one servant with them and acted as though they had seen better days. Dougal pottered around the place but made no attempt to farm it on a large scale. The woman cultivated a little garden, but for most of the time remained within the seclusion of the house. The postman regularly brought a considerable quantity of mail to the Moat Farm and this included books and magazines. Evidently the tenants, though far from the metropolis, proposed to improve their minds.

At intervals Mr. Dougal took his wife for a drive around that section of England, but he never presented her to any of the neighbors, an omission which the aforesaid neighbors resented.

They took this as a sign of "uppishness," which was not liked in that part of Essex. Occasionally Dougal went to the village and indulged in a mug of ale, and at such times he was amiable enough. On one of these visits he engaged in conversation with an old resident, who spoke to him concerning the dread which some of the people had for the old house.

This good soul went so far as to report the rumor of the man who was reputed to have killed himself and of how his ghost walked in the night. The soldierly-looking Dougal laughed heartily at this talk.

"It's the worst sort of rubbish, my dear man," he cried, "and I'm surprised that such an intelligent person as yourself would even give it a moment's thought. Ghosts are inventions used to scare little children! We hear a lot about them, but in all my life I have never seen one and I never met a person that had. The ghost walks in 'Hamlet,' but nowhere else."

The vigor with which he uttered these sentiments impressed his hearer, and we may be sure the good villager passed the story of his talk around to the neighbors. The effect of it was to weaken the rumors concerning the haunted house. And yet there was just a trace of misgiving about the honesty of Samuel H. Dougal. Who was he, anyhow, to come there and try to upset the traditions which had caused pleasurable shudders in generations of good folk?

But the "beautiful lady," as she was called, made a favorable impression upon the people of the neighborhood. She was so frail and so wistful that they could not help liking her, even though they only saw her at a distance. One morning Mr. and Mrs. Dougal went out for a drive together.

The woman never returned.

SHE disappeared as completely as though the earth had opened and swallowed her. Days passed; then the gossips got to work in earnest. What was nobody's business became everybody's business. Some of the bolder ones ventured to question Mr. Dougal. He frankly and smilingly replied that Mrs. Dougal had gone to London for a short holiday.

A short time later the only servant on the premises took leave abruptly. Dougal continued to live on the place and to work the farm. He was even seen digging in the garden which his wife had planted with such care.

In the meanwhile the postman continued to deliver letters at Moat Farm addressed to a Miss Holland.

An unofficial investigation brought forth several interesting facts.

The first of these was that "Mrs. Dougal" was in reality Miss Camille Holland. While the two had lived together as man and wife there was no record to show that they had been united in the bonds of matrimony. Probably this omission was due to the fact that Dougal had a wife living somewhere in Kent. It was also discovered that Moat Farm had been purchased in the name of Miss Holland.

But what had become of Miss Holland?

That was a query which the police were not able to answer. About this time a rumor arose that she was being kept a prisoner against her will.

THE report spread like wildfire and in a short time the people of the village were up in arms. Without one iota of proof, men and women were profoundly convinced that the tale was true.

What could be done about it? Some of the hotheads were in favor of taking the law into their own hands and storming the house, to rescue the captive princess. Finally the matter reached such a stage that Superintendent Pryke of the local police felt he would have to do something about it.

Now in England a man's house is his castle and it may not be entered without due process of law. So Pryke had to act with discretion, not to say diplomacy. He determined to make a social call on the "Squire," as some of the country folk had nicknamed Dougal. He was received with the courtesy that was to be expected from such a man.

It was an uninvited guest, to be sure, but nothing would do Dougal but that the superintendent have a glass of ale and a smoke. It was while they were puffing away at their cigars that Pryke frankly told his host of the stories that were going around the countryside.

"That is utter nonsense," Dougal laughed. "I dislike to talk of domestic difficulties, but we have had a quarrel and the lady has left me. She asked me to take her to the train and she went to London. I have been hoping that it would blow over and that she would return home, but so far I have had no word from her."

Superintendent Pryke listened to this quietly and seemed to be convinced of its truth. But as he made no move to go, Dougal invited the policeman to make an inspection of the house. They went from cellar to garret and looked into every place in which a person might be kept a prisoner. They even went into the lady's boudoir and Dougal called attention to the fact that everything there was just as Miss Holland had left it when she abruptly quitted the house.

It was the apartment of a woman of refinement and wealth. The style in which it was furnished and the little odds and ends indicated that it belonged to a person of taste. The officer did some thinking on his own account. He guessed that the woman had become infatuated with Dougal and, having money, had decided to defy conventionalities and live with him in an out-of-the-way spot where she could not be found by friends or relatives.

When Superintendent Pryke left the house of mystery that day it was with the conviction that the complaints against Dougal had been founded on petty gossip.

In spite of that the belief that Miss Holland had met with foul play persisted and it was so insistent that something further had to be done.

So the Chief Constable of Essex, with Detective Inspector Marden of his staff, called at Scotland Yard and poured their tale into the ears of the head of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation. As a result of that visit, Chief Inspector David Scott took charge of the case.

He was one of the greatest detectives of his day and generation. But here he had an enigma to solve that was worthy of his best efforts. It was now four years since Miss Holland had disappeared. Whatever clews there might have been in the beginning were cold, and that made Scott's job all the more difficult.

Was Camille Holland living or dead? Was she a prisoner or was she free? There were the two important questions to be answered. And the third, which was probably the most important of all, concerned the whereabouts of Samuel Dougal, who had departed from Moat Farm shortly after the visit of Superintendent Pryke. The detective concluded that his inquiries would have to be pursued in London and in the town of Clavering. He decided to begin in London.

It was evident that Miss Holland was a woman of means. That meant she would have had a bank account. The facilities of Scotland Yard for obtaining all sorts of information are unsurpassed, so it was not surprising that the police soon located the bank at which Miss Holland kept her account. They were interested in discovering that it was a "live account." From time to time, checks were presented with her signature and regularly paid. Such checks had come from Clavering, but now they were handed in from all parts of the kingdom.

One of the questions which arose at the beginning of the inquiry related to the authenticity of the signature. The officers of the bank were questioned. They said that a year before a check had come in with her name written in a slightly different manner from her usual signature. She was presumed to be traveling, but when this incident was brought to her attention she sent the bank a letter saying that she had hurt her wrist and that this caused the difference in her penmanship. All of her canceled checks but one had been returned to Moat Farm.

This one check was an important factor in putting the police on the right track.

The job was now to find someone familiar with the handwriting of Miss Holland. After a long search a nephew was located near London. He was shown the signature on the check that had been retained by the bank. He examined it with care and then turned to the Scotland Yard man.

"What about it?" he asked.

"I want to know if that is the signature of Miss Holland."

"No, it is not my aunt's signature—it is a palpable forgery."

The natural assumption was that Dougal was the forger. Nothing had been known of him since he fled from Moat Farm and the police were at a loss to know where to begin their search.

Presently it was discovered that he had an account of his own at the Birbeck Bank, where his balance had been quite large. Recently he had withdrawn most of his money in Bank of England notes, but there was still a small amount to his credit and it was reasonable to suppose that he would return to the bank.

At this stage of the game the authorities were really faced with a double disappearance—first the woman and then the man suspected of murdering her. But a man cannot be arrested for murder merely on suspicion; English law demands more than that.

So Detective Inspector Scott planted himself in the Birbeck Bank and awaited developments. The cashier and tellers were informed that Scotland Yard wanted Samuel H. Dougal and they were told that if he came into the bank they were to inform the detective by dropping a heavy book on the floor. That would not arouse the suspicions of the man.

It was said that he was in the habit of coming into the bank on a certain day of the week. On that day Scott sat on a chair near the entrance of the bank, seemingly reading a newspaper, but in reality watching the office of the cashier and the two tellers behind the iron grill and straining his ears to hear the fall of a heavy book.

SHORTLY before closing time a tall, well-dressed man hurried into the bank, walked briskly up to the paying teller and asked him to change a £10 note. The teller smilingly said he would be glad to do so. As he moved away from his post his arm struck a heavy ledger that stood near the edge of the counter and it fell to the floor with a resounding flop. Detective Inspector Scott jumped up from his chair and hurried toward the window.

He was perfectly satisfied that the soldierly Dougal was a master crook and now this bright person had deliberately walked into the trap that had been set for him. By this time the customer had received his money and was counting it and placing it in his pocket. Scott tapped him lightly on the arm.

"I beg your pardon," Inspector Scott said, "but if I am not mistaken I am speaking to Major Dougal."

The newcomer gave a start. And then he moved back a few paces, for he was unmistakably agitated.

He replied roughly:

"No, you are wrong—that is not my name."

"But," persisted Detective Inspector Scott, "you are the very image of the man who I am looking for."

"I tell you that's not my name. Look at the indorsement on that note."

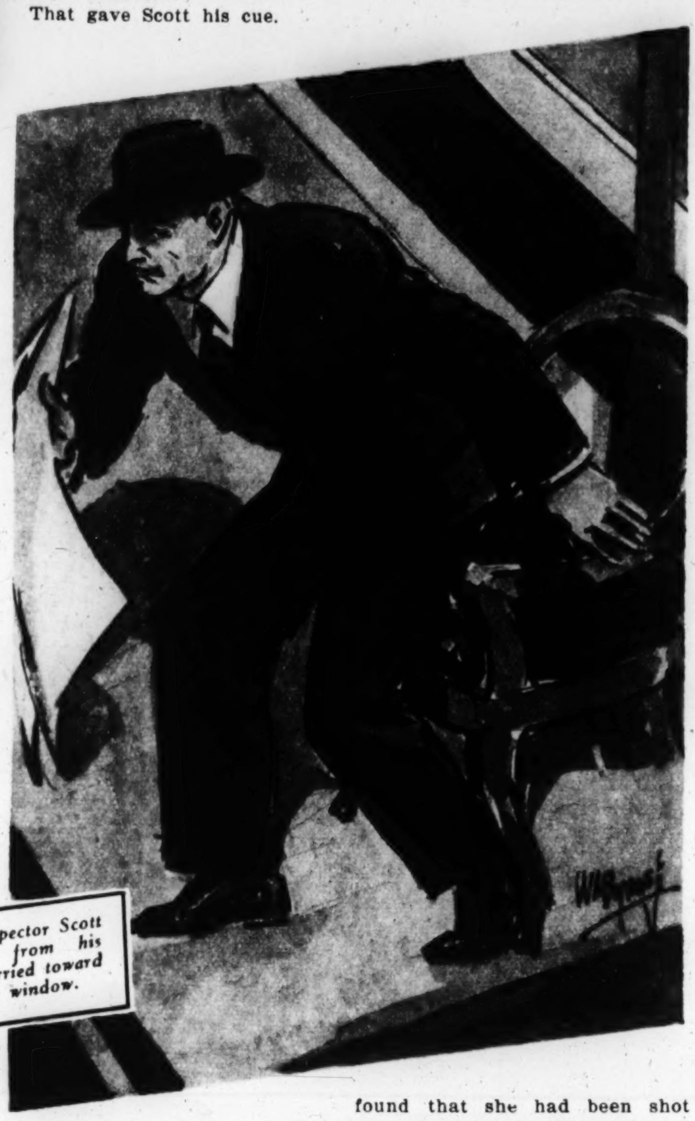
The note in question had been signed with the name of "Sidney Domville, Upper Terrace, Bournemouth."

"It's no use, Dougal," Scott said. "You are wanted by the police and you will have to go with me."

"What for?" the man asked.

Detective Scott knew the time had not yet come to let Dougal into the secret. The plan was to hold him until they secured evidence against him. He must be held for a minor offense while they were trying to prove him guilty of murder.

That gave Scott his cue.



His arm struck a heavy ledger that stood near the edge of the counter and it fell to the floor with a resounding flop.

Detective Inspector Scott jumped up from his chair and hurried toward the teller's window.

"You are wanted for forgery."

Dougal made no resistance, but went quietly with Scott. That word "forgery" seemed to have a quieting effect upon Samuel H. Dougal. Forgery is a serious crime, but it did not lead to the gallows. For the moment matters were quiescent, with Dougal sitting in his cell.

But while Dougal was sparring for time the detectives were doing the same thing. They did not want him brought before the bar of the court until they had an opportunity of "getting the goods" on him. When Dougal was safely lodged in jail Detective Inspector Scott went to Clavering and made his way to the Moat Farm. He had a force of trained men with him and he turned them loose with instructions to find clews. A pretty large order, that—but it soon brought results. In a closet they found a die by which the exact impression of Miss Holland's signature could be made on paper. In the drawer of a desk they discovered a fine-pointed pen. Also there were scraps of paper which showed that Dougal had practiced the writing of Miss Holland's name.

Here was evidence which was sufficient to convict him of forging the name of his victim. It was plain that after her disappearance—or death—he had continued to do business in her name. Her mail came to him regularly and from time to time he cashed checks on her bank.

What the detectives wanted, however, was not proof of forgery, but evidence that the missing woman had met with foul play.

Detective Scott determined to make a thorough search of the ancient moat. A force of men was put to work; they dug a ditch and drained the moat. But they found nothing but a lot of rubbish and old bottles. The workers were sent to other parts of the farm and continued their digging for six long weeks.

The efforts of the diggers came to naught.

Meanwhile Samuel H. Dougal demanded his discharge from prison on the ground that the authorities had no evidence on which he could be legally held.

But Detective Scott managed by some flimsy pretext to have him held for another week. He was confident that they would "have the goods" by that time.

In their search for clews the detectives came in contact with an old man in the neighborhood who was popularly known as "The Pilgrim." This venerable person said that shortly after the disappearance of Miss Holland he had been called upon to cart dirt to the farm for the purpose of filling up a ditch in one of the remote corners of the estate. He was able to point out the spot, and so once again Detective Scott called his squad together and they went at the new site with their picks and shovels.

One morning one of the workers found a woman's shoe on the end of his fork. Excitement ran high.

In a short time they found something else that was absolutely definite—the remains of a woman, fully clothed. It was found that she had been shot through the head. The body was taken to the greenhouse on the property and photographed.

Gradually bits of proof were discovered which made it certain this was the body of Camille Holland. Hairpins and a comb were identified as belonging to the victim. The shoes were taken to the tradesman from whom she got her footgear, and he pointed out little peculiarities to be found in all the shoes he sold to Miss Holland. Her dressmaker was summoned, and when she looked upon the bedraggled gown that had been found upon the body she said there was no doubt it belonged to the poor woman.

But the final test came when the surgeons extracted the bullet from the woman's head. It was carried into the living room of the house, where Detective Inspector Scott and one of his associates from Scotland Yard were waiting. It corresponded precisely with bullets which Scott found in the drawer of a bureau in the room of Samuel H. Dougal in the house of mystery.

DOUGAL had testified that he took the woman to a train at a certain hour upon the morning of the day in which she disappeared from sight. An official of the railroad refuted this by stating that there was no train for London until hours after the time mentioned by Dougal.

The jury before whom he was tried did not waste much time in coming to a decision. They found him guilty of first degree murder and sentenced him to death.

He presented a pathetic spectacle as he stood on the scaffold with the rope around his neck, waiting for the executioner to pull the trap that would send him into eternity. He made heroic efforts to present a brave front, but he was quite a different figure from the soldierly, erect man who had come with Miss Holland to Essex. As he stood there the chaplain said to him in a low voice:

"Are you guilty, or not?"

Dougal's features worked convulsively; then he uttered one word in the faintest of whispers:

"Guilty!"

Next week: Evelyn Herbert.

ROBERT HALLIDAY is the first of the Municipal Opera stars who will appear in this space during the Forest Park season, which begins tomorrow night. He was born in Scotland; went to Glasgow University to study engineering, and there became interested in college dramatics. He decided to go on the stage, his family protested, and he came to America. In 1925 he created the role of the Red Shadow in "The Desert Song." Among the other operettas in which he has appeared are "The New Moon," "Princess Charming," and "Music Hath Charms."

Accompanying Mr. Halliday are three sets of costumes he wears in Municipal Opera shows. Cut out the star and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress him in his proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly. The three types of costumes shown here are worn by this actor in the following productions: 1—Count Lavalette in "Teresina," and the period of this play is that of Napoleon; 2—Jim in "Rio Rita," and Jim is a Texas Ranger; 3—Villon in "The Vagabond King."

Night after night jolly old man Moon has been an interested spectator of the folks living in Hickory Hollow. He would smile broadly at them, and if a cloud appeared and looked as though it would hide the earth from his view, he would look very sad and disappointed. But tonight things are different. The usually jolly old man seems very much alarmed. He keeps rolling his eyes around as though he were following some invisible thing that is flying about his head. A group of natives notice this and we see them excitedly discussing it as

TOM TURTLE—Do you suppose Mr. Moon's sick?

O. HUM—Maybe. And then again maybe he's getting dizzy from being up so high all the time.

HARRY HOARDER—I have an idea. (They all listen.) Let's go to Professor Wisdom and ask him. He knows everything. (This seems like a good suggestion and they are soon on their way to see the learned professor. As they go they pass Jerry and Mary sitting in a tree.)

MARY—Hey, have you fellows noticed the moon? Jerry says he keeps rolling his eyes around because he's expecting to see his sweetheart.

JERRY—Yes, I figured she was late and he was getting impatient. (O. Hum tells them that they are on their way to see Professor Wisdom, and Jerry and Mary fly down and join them. In a little while they meet Grumpy. The moon by this time has stopped rolling his eyes. But now he is looking with great alarm at his nose.) ...

GRUMPY—The moon needs glasses, that's what's wrong with him. (Harry tells Grumpy where they are going and invites him to join them. Then they all hurry along. Soon they come to Prof. Wisdom's tree and climb up in it.)

O. HUM—Can you tell us what's wrong with the moon?

PROF. WISDOM—I've been watching him all night. A fly has been flying around him and is now sitting on his nose.

GRUMPY—Gosh, and he hasn't any hands to chase him away with. (And all the little folks feel very sorry for poor Mr. Moon. How that fly must be tickling his nose!)

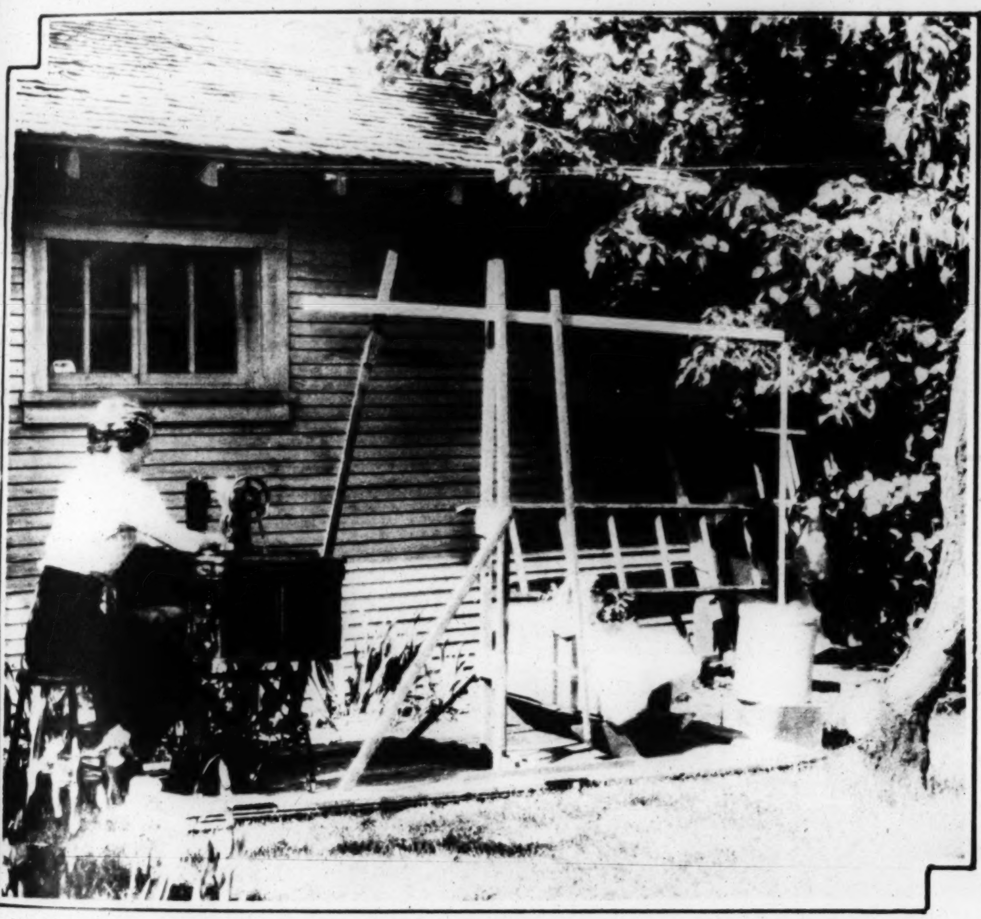
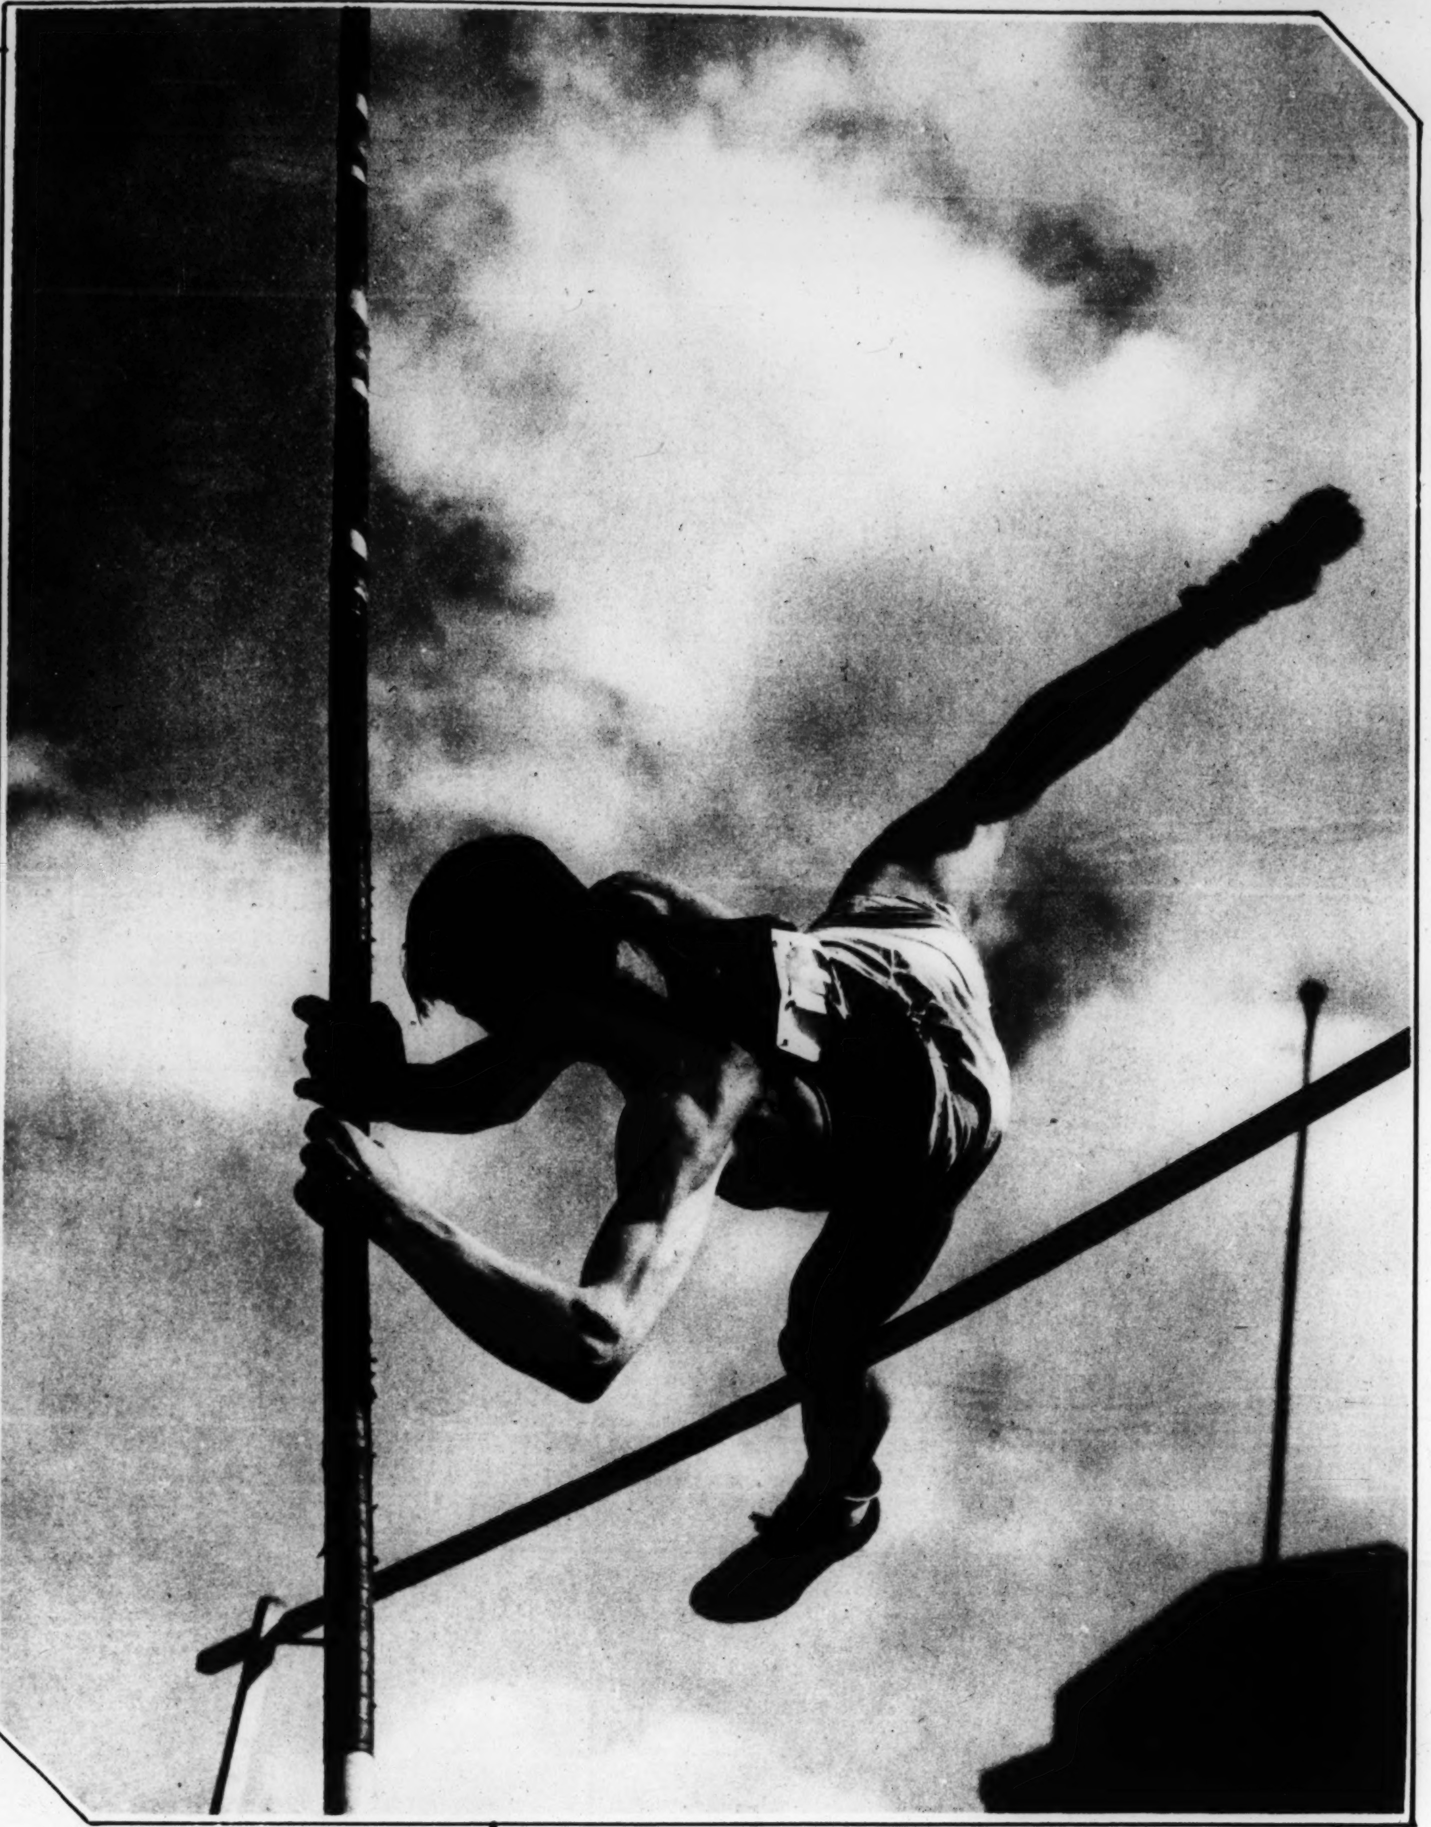
AID TO A REFUGEE—Madelyn Beckett adopted this tiny fawn after it had been deserted by its mother during a forest fire that came only a few hours after its birth. Her father picked it up in the woods near Barnegat, New Jersey.



SIMPLIFYING LIFE AT THE DALLES (OREGON)—Another of the labor-saving devices which have been originated on the Dawson farm in Oregon is this Rube Goldberg combination of a sewing machine, a cradle and a churn—all being simultaneously operated by Mrs. L. Dawson, wife of the farmer-inventor.



VAULTING INTO THE CLOUDS

Such is the impression given by this striking photograph, made while Brackman of Beaumont High School set a new junior division pole vault record (10 feet 5 inches) during the twenty-fifth annual field day of the High School League at the Public Schools Stadium.

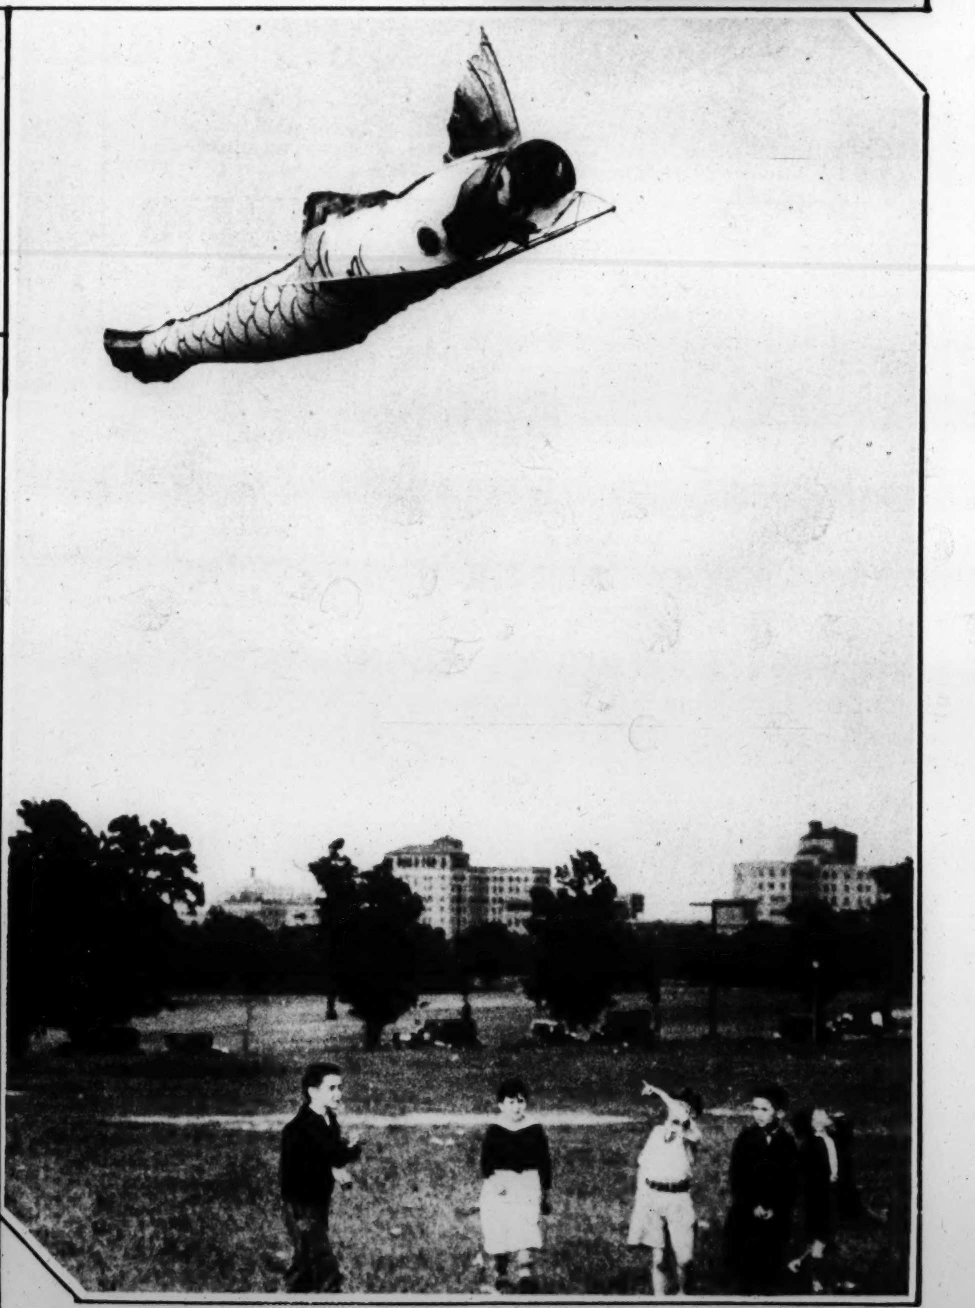
RUSSIA LEARNS HOW OTHER NATIONS PLAY—The first rugby match known to have been played in the Soviet Union took place this spring in the stadium of the Chemists' Trade Union in Moscow; behind the lively arabesques of leaping players stood the towers of Devichi Monastery, a monument of the past.



THE LITTLE FELLOWS SHOW WHAT THEY CAN DO—This apparition, a flying fish kite, was flown by Cub Scouts (Pack 30) during the Boy Scout encampment in Forest Park a week ago. It is owned by Douglas Johnson Jr., a member of the pack.

MOST BAD BREATH BEGINS WITH THE TEETH!"
HOPE MY BREATH WAS O.K., DOC. I DEPEND A LOT ON MY MOUTH PREPARATION
WELL, REMEMBER...MOST MOUTH ODORS COME FROM DECAYING FOOD PARTICLES IN CREVICES OF THE TEETH AND MOUTH.

STEPPING OUT AGAIN? WHERE'D YOU GET THIS SUDDEN POPULARITY?
IT'S MY WINNING SMILE BOB...AND A BREATH THAT NEVER OFFENDS! I GOT 'EM FROM A TUBE OF COLGATE'S
COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM
20¢ LARGE SIZE
Giant Size, over twice as much, 35¢

Why take chances? COLGATE'S removes this cause of bad breath—while it cleans and brightens teeth

THE same thing that causes much tooth decay also causes bad breath, dentists say! That is—improperly cleaned teeth, and food deposits that lodge between the teeth and in hidden mouth crevices.

Colgate's penetrating foam gets between the teeth and into all crevices of the mouth. Wherever they hide—between teeth, on tongue or gums—deposits that cause odors are emulsified, washed away. Every surface of every tooth is cleaned—your whole mouth is fresher, your breath sweeter, after every brushing.

At the same time, a soft, grit-free ingredient gently and safely polishes the enamel. Your teeth grow brighter as natural lustre is restored.

Double Your Money Back

Colgate's Dental Cream costs less per brushing than any other leading toothpaste. If, after using one tube of Colgate's Dental Cream, you are not satisfied, send the empty tube to Colgate's, Jersey City, N. J. We'll refund twice what you paid!

IF YOU PREFER POWDER—Colgate's Dental Powder gives the same amazing results, sells at the same low prices.

READ THESE EASY CONTEST RULES
(Clip and save for reference.)

1. Anyone is eligible to enter the contest (with the exception of employees of Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co., their advertising agency, and families).
2. Write a letter of 100 words, or less, telling "Why I use and prefer Palmolive Soap." Print your full name and address, and name of dealer from whom you bought Palmolive Soap.
3. All letters will be judged on their clearness, sincerity and interest. Literary ability is of no value. Just write as if you were writing to a friend. Simple, easy-to-write letters will win the prizes! (Submit as many letters as you wish.)
4. Each letter you submit must be accompanied by the black bands from three cakes of Palmolive Soap (or reasonably accurate copies). Mail to Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co., Dept. N-9, Jersey City, New Jersey.
5. Contest closes June 15, 1935. All letters must be in the mail before midnight of that date. Winners will be notified on July 2.
6. The Judges will be: Mr. Emil Rohde, Pres., Nat'l Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association; Mrs. Winifred Fayant, Pres., American Cosmeticians Association; Miss Elizabeth Woodward, Associate Editor of Ladies' Home Journal. Judges' decisions must be accepted as final. In event of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.
7. All entries become the property of Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co.

A LETTER AS SIMPLE AS THIS CAN WIN!

"First of all, I prefer Palmolive because of all the olive oil that goes into the making of every cake. I am sure it is just for that reason that my skin is so much softer and smoother than before I used Palmolive.

"Then, I've learned by actual experience that no other soap cleanses my skin so thoroughly, or keeps my complexion so clear and free from blemishes. I honestly think Palmolive is wonderful, and I'm not a bit surprised to hear that it is the world's largest-selling beauty soap."

... for 500 minutes in Pure Oxygen

A TEST TO MAKE SURE THAT DAMAGING GUM WILL NOT FORM IN STANDARD GASOLINE

This severe oxidation test is made on samples taken from all Standard gasoline ready for shipment. In this way we make certain that the gasoline has been so stabilized that gum will not form either in transport or in storage. In other words, you can be sure that the gasoline you buy from a Standard Station will not contain harmful gum.

Gum, which forms in some gasolines upon exposure to the oxygen in the air, slowly but definitely cripples an engine. The damage it does is cumulative. It may go unnoticed until the day of reckoning brings a repair bill.

Important though this test is, it is only one of the many final laboratory checks made on Standard's finished gasoline—despite the fact that the motor fuel has passed numerous rigorous tests on its way through the refinery.

This is typical of the lengths to which Standard Oil goes to protect the quality of all Standard products—to make certain that you get full value for your money whenever you deal at Standard Oil Stations or Dealers.

To provide this protection Standard Oil utilizes the full force of its great resources—unmatched in its field in size, unmatched in alertness, and certainly unequalled in the most important resource of all, men—Standard Oil men.

The heritage of every Standard Oil man is public trust, public confidence—in him, in the organization he represents, and in the good products he helps to make and to market.

Why?

MEN say of her, "Good looking. Good company. Nice Girl. But please excuse me."

Why?

There is just one reason. She's careless about herself! She has never learned that soap and water cannot protect her from that ugly odor of underarm perspiration which makes people avoid her.

She has nobody to blame but herself. For it's so easy, these days, to keep the underarms fresh, free from odor all day long. With Mum!

It takes just half a minute to use Mum. And you can use it any time—before dressing or afterwards. Mum is harmless to clothing, you know. It's soothing to the skin, too. You can use it right after shaving the underarms.

The daily Mum habit will prevent every trace of underarm odor without preventing perspiration itself. Get into the habit — it pays socially. Bristol-Myers, Inc., 75 West St., New York.

Hands are Still Young and Lovely

Why Super Suds is the only soap that could keep Mrs. Booth's hands lovely through 4000 daily dishwashings.

HERE'S how you too can keep your hands soft and beautiful in spite of daily dishwashing! For Mrs. Booth and millions of other women who have used Super Suds for 4 and more years, have proved how wonderfully this remarkably different soap protects hands.

For Super Suds is a new form of soap — created specially for dishwashing! Made in tiny hollow beads, it dissolves instantly, completely! Unlike the average, slow-dissolving soap, it leaves no undissolved particles that irritate tender skin and give hands that red, ugly, "dishwashing" look.

And because Super Suds dissolves so quickly, so completely, it makes dishwashing far quicker and easier. It leaves no gummy, undissolved particles to smear or mar your dishes. Just a quick rinse and they sparkle like new.

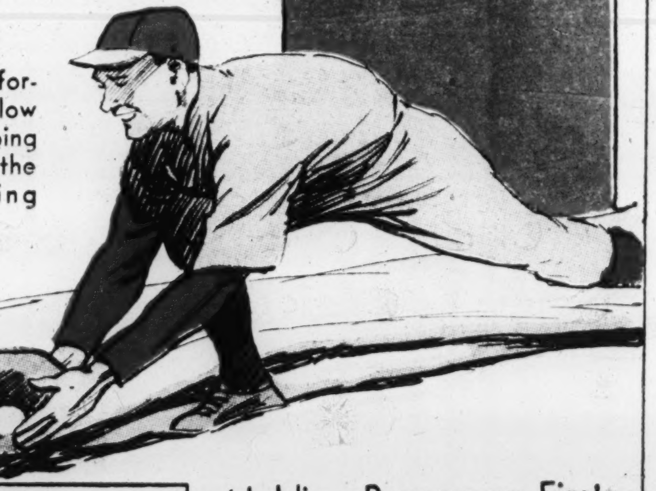
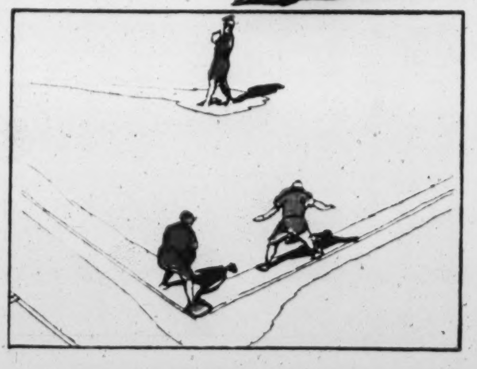
Baseball . . . By NED BRANT

How to Play Firstbase

Being able to stretch out to take throws from the fielders is important to the first baseman. His chances of retiring the baserunner are increased if he can stretch forward and catch the infielder's peg



Right: Stretching forward to take the low throw. He is trapping the ball to prevent the bounce from getting away from him.



Holding Runner on First

Left: First baseman and pitcher work together, along with the catcher, to hold the runner close to the base. When the pitch is delivered, he moves to his fielding position, unless the catcher has signalled he will throw to first.

Learn to shift your feet quickly so that you can handle all types of throws without being pulled off the bag. If pulled off, first stop the ball, then jab your foot at the bag, usually the left foot. When the first baseman runs up on bunts, the pitcher usually covers the bag.

NEXT WEEK . . How to Play Second Base

SAD MOTHER
HAPPY MOTHER

DERE LADIES
My MOTHER USED TO GET AWFULL CRANKY ON WASHDAYS BECAWSE SHE COULD NOT GET THE CLOTHES WHITE. ALSO SHE GOT AWFULL TIRED.
NOW SHE USES RINSO AND GETS THE CLOTHES WHITE AS "SNOW WHITE" IN THE FAIRY TALES

MOTHER HAS MORE TIME FOR ME, TOO, BECAUSE . . .

I HEARD mother tell our neighbor that just by soaking in Rinso suds she got the wash whiter than when she used to scrub and boil it. Mother uses Rinso for the dishes and all cleaning. She says it's wonderful, and so economical.

A little Rinso gives rich, lasting suds—even in hardest water. Soaks clothes 4 or 5 shades whiter. Makes them last 2 or 3 times longer—because they're not scrubbed threadbare. Recommended by makers of 34 famous washers. Easy on hands.
